Government Regulations

United States, page 11

1. We note from pages 12 and 18 that it appears as though you will need to request premarket approval from the FDA for your products prior to August 8, 2018. Please revise your filing to clearly state your intentions with regards to the FDA approval process, including whether you have filed such approval, if you have not filed a request for approval, your intended date to do so, and the progress to date with any such premarket approval requests. In addition, your risk factors and MD&A should fully explain the risk to your business if you do not file such approval request with the FDA, or if the FDA does not approve any requests that you make. In addition, you should consider disclosing the expected costs of such filing with FDA in your MD&A section.
