Dear Mr. Wu:

We have reviewed your letter dated July 2, 2012 in connection with the above-referenced filing and have the following comments. In our comments, we may ask you to provide us with information so we may better understand your disclosure.

Form 10-K for the Fiscal Year Ended December 31, 2011

Item 7. Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations

Liquidity and Capital Resources, page 56

1. We note your response to prior comment 2 and the reasons for the increase in DSO between 2009 and 2011 for the first customer listed in Appendix 1 of your July 2, 2012 response letter. To the extent the impact of the increase in unbilled receivables resulting from the undertaking of more complicated software and solution services and longer implementation phases is material, we believe that you should disclose this information in explaining material changes in DSO. Additionally, please disclose if this represents a trend that you expect to impact DSO in future periods, if applicable. Additionally, please confirm if you invoice your customers upon meeting the milestones described in your contracts or if there is any significant delay in the timing of sending the invoice after completing the milestone. Finally, as it relates to the sales and marketing strategy you describe, please confirm how you analyze the payment terms extended to such customers to ensure that collection is probable/reasonably assured in order to meet revenue recognition criteria at the time of the sale.

2. We note your response to prior comment 4. Since the reserves discussed in prior comment 5 are calculated based upon PRC GAAP, we believe it may be beneficial to describe differences between PRC GAAP and US GAAP if they are significant. For example, you may consider indicating that PRC GAAP and US GAAP for the company may vary materially or that the most significant difference between PRC GAAP and US GAAP for the calculation of profit and loss relates to the timing of recognition of revenue. It may be more relevant to provide this information in your disclosures of Note 20 rather than in your liquidity discussion.

You may contact Megan Akst, Staff Accountant, at (202) 551-3407 or Melissa Feider, Staff Accountant, at (202) 551-3379 if you have questions regarding comments on the financial statements and related matters. Please contact me at (202) 551-3499 with any other questions.

Sincerely,

/s/ Kathleen Collins
