WORDLOGIC CORPORATION
(A DEVELOPMENT STAGE COMPANY)

Pro forma information regarding net income and earnings per share is required by SFAS 123 as if the Company had accounted for the granted stock options under the fair value method of that Statement. The fair value for these options was estimated at the date of grant using the Black-Scholes option-pricing model with the following assumptions:

Risk-free interest rate.....	1.01%
Dividend yield.....	0.00%
Volatility factor.....	90.14%
Weighted average expected life.....	5 years

The Black-Scholes options valuation model was developed for use in estimating the fair value of traded options, which have no vesting restrictions and are fully transferable. In addition, option valuation models require the input of highly subjective assumptions including the expected stock price volatility. Because the Company's stock options have characteristics significantly different from those of traded options, and because changes in the subjective input assumptions can materially affect the fair value estimate, in management's opinion, the existing models do not necessarily provide a reliable single measure of the fair value of its stock options. However, the Company has presented the pro forma net loss and pro forma basic and diluted loss per common share using the assumptions noted above.

Note 6 – Litigation Settlement

In March 2002, Hewlett-Packard Company ("HP") was granted a license to distribute a trial version of the WordLogic Predictive Keyboard. In December 2002, the Company filed a Copyright infringement claim, as well as related claims under California State law, against HP in the United States District Court for the Northern District of California, San Jose Division.

The case was scheduled for trial in October 2004. Although HP continued to deny liability, on July 22, 2004, the parties signed a settlement agreement whereby HP agreed to pay the Company $2 million in exchange for the Company agreeing to release its claims and dismiss the lawsuit. The settlement has now been completed. The Company's attorneys retained $400,000 out the settlement as payment for fees and costs related to the case, and the remainder has been paid to the Company. The net gain on the settlement, totaling $1,600,000, is included in the accompanying condensed statements of operations as an extraordinary gain.

Management Plan of Operations

The WordLogic™ Predictive Keyboard is unique and intuitive information interface for use on computing and communications devices, especially mobile devices that are limited in screen dimensions. The software is compact and compressible allowing it to operate effectively in small handheld devices such as Personal Digital Assistants (PDA's), cell phones, smart phones, tablet computers as well as other touch screen devices.

The WordLogic™ Predictive Keyboard has the ability to learn and adapt to a user's vocabulary, which makes information entry more efficient each time it is used. Its patented word prediction and WordChunking™ technology allows for fast and accurate word completion especially for long or complex words and phrases.

The Company presently markets its software in seven languages to consumers using online commerce engines such as handango.com and pocketgear.com. In addition, the Company has trial versions of its software available on a number of international websites. Historically, the Company has not generated significant revenue from these direct sales to consumers.

In the 3-months ended September 30, 2004 the Company commenced with the development of a desktop version of its Predictive Keyboard. Currently nearing the end of the development stage, a Beta version will be released in late November 2004 with the commercial release expected in Q1 2005. The Company believes this new product will have widespread appeal with desktop users of all ages and typing skills.

The Company's growth plan is to generate additional revenue through the enforcement of its intellectual property rights. On March 4, 2004, the Company's first Patent was granted (see below). As its patent portfolio of five additional patents becomes crystallized, the Company will claim royalty rights from any software applications, operating systems or handheld wireless devices that infringe upon existing or future patents. These patents will provide the foundation for Company's expandable technology and are expected provide broad coverage and a commercial pathway to increase revenue streams through the enforcement of intellectual property rights.

In addition, the Company intends to license its technology to OEM's and other software developers in return for a royalty based on the number of units sold and will continue to market its product to end users via its commerce engine and/or direct marketing programs. There are also numerous vertical market opportunities for the Company in terms of industry-specific applications, the learning disabled market, customized dictionaries and the use of the WordLogic technology by other software developers.

On November 16, 2004, the Company announced the appointment of Dr. David Stirling as Vice President of Business Development for the newly-created Educational Division. Prior to joining WordLogic, Dr. Stirling was Principal of Kyuquot Elementary Secondary School and Director of the Houpsitas Adult Learning Center in Kyuquot, British Columbia. Throughout his career, Dr Stirling has been developing individual education programs for students with learning difficulties. Dr. Stirling has utilized the WordLogic Predictive Keyboard™ with his students and has discovered that is a powerful tool in enabling individuals to communicate effectively.

Patents & Trademarks

Six individual Patent applications have been filed for "Method, system and media for entering data in a personal computing device" in the United States, Canada and Europe.

On March 4, 2004 European Patent No. 1171813 entitled "Data Entry for Personal Computing Devices" was granted to the Company by the European Patent Office. There are over 7,000 claims allowed under the Patent which are directed to methods and systems for entering data on a personal computing device using a search list, a digital keyboard and a pointing device. Examples of "Pointing Devices" are provided for illustration in the Patent specifications and include a pen, stylus, finger, mouse, trackball or the like. The Patent also indicates that the invention may be used with a variety of "personal computing devices" including personal digital assistants ("PDAs") and other hand-held devices, personal computers including tablets, mobile phones, internet appliances and embedded devices having a graphical display and an input interface using a Pointing Device. In addition, the Patent states the invention may be applied to several different types of digital keyboards and keyboard layouts including traditional keyboards.

In the methods and systems claimed, a digital keyboard is displayed on a user interface when a user is entering text. The user-input signal activates an automated search to obtain a list of complete words based on a partial text entry, and then a search list is provided containing completion candidates for the user to select from. Although not specifically defined in the Patent, this process is commonly known as "word completion" or "word prediction".

WORDLOGIC CORPORATION
(A DEVELOPMENT STAGE COMPANY)

Preferred embodiments in the Patent include the activation of automated search when a character on the digital keyboard remains selected by the Pointing Device; the automated search is terminated when the Pointing Device is lifted from the surface of the digital keyboard; and the digital keyboard and the search list are displayed simultaneously while the keyboard is in use.

European Patent No. 1171813 has also been nationalized in Germany, France, The United Kingdom, Italy Finland, Spain, The Netherlands and Portugal.

The other five additional patents are pending in the United States, Canada and Europe.

On October 21, 2003 The Company received Trademark approval for the mark “WordLogic” under Reg. No. 2,774,468. A similar trademark application has been approved and registered in Canada under TMA576,700.
