2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Basis of accounting

The accompanying statement of financial condition is presented on an accrual basis. Income is recognized when earned. The costs and expenses attributable to earning such income are reflected in the results of operations concurrently.

Use of estimates

The preparation of the statement of financial condition in conformity with GAAP requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statement and the reported amounts of revenue and expenses during the reporting period. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

Cash and cash equivalents

Cash and cash equivalents for purposes of reporting cash flows includes cash on hand and highly liquid investments with original maturities of less than ninety days, that are not held for sale in the ordinary course of business.

Revenue recognition

In accordance with ASU No. 2014-09, "Revenue from Contracts with Customers" ("ASC Topic 606") revenues from contracts with customers is recognized when, or as, the Company satisfies its performance obligations by transferring the promised services to the customers. A service is transferred to a customer when, or as, the customer obtains control of that service. A performance obligation may be satisfied at a point in time or over time. Revenue from a performance obligation satisfied at a point in time is recognized at the point in time that the Company determines the customer obtains control over the promised service. Revenue from a performance obligation satisfied over time is recognized by measuring the Company's progress in satisfying the performance obligation in a manner that depicts the transfer of the services to the customer. The amount of revenue recognized reflects the consideration the Company expects to receive in exchange for those promised services (i.e., the "transaction price"). In determining the transaction price, the Company considers multiple factors, including the effects of variable consideration, if any.

2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES (continued)

Commissions

The Company commissions are comprised of mutual funds and 12B1 fees. The Company enters into arrangements with pooled investment vehicles (funds) to distribute shares to investors. The Company believes that performance obligation is satisfied at the point-in-time of distribution to the investor. The Company generates two types of commission revenue through such arrangements: sales-based commission revenue that is recognized at the point of sale on the trade date and trailing commission revenue that is recognized over time as earned. Sales-based commission revenue is based on a percentage of an investment product's current market value at the time of purchase. Trailing commission revenue is generally based on a percentage of the current market value of clients' investment holdings in trail-eligible assets, and is recognized over the period during which services, such as on-going support, are performed. As trailing commission revenue is based on the market value of clients' investment holdings, this variable consideration is constrained until the market value is determinable. Distribution fees recognized in the current period are primarily related to performance obligations that have been satisfied in prior periods.

Leases

In connection with the new FASB standard 842 regarding leases, which takes effect as of the first day of the fiscal year January 1, 2019, management has evaluated the financial impact the standards will have on the Company's financial statements using a modified retrospective approach. As of January 1, 2020, the Company does not maintain any leases in excess of a one year term. As such, the Company does not have an obligation to record a right of uses asset or an offsetting lease obligation.

Deposit with Clearing Broker

The Company, per the terms of its clearing agreement, is required to maintain a security deposit with its clearing broker. Such deposit amounts are refundable to the Company upon termination of the agreement. As of December 31, 2019, this amount was $50,100.

Receivable from Clearing Broker

The Company clears all security transactions through its clearing broker. Amounts earned are reconciled monthly and paid in the subsequent month. As a result, the Company considers the amounts due from its clearing broker to be fully collectible, and accordingly, no allowance has been established as of December 31, 2019. As of December 31, 2019, the amount due from the broker was $16,506.

Income taxes

No provision has been made for federal income taxes. The Company has elected to be treated as an S Corporation under the Internal Revenue Code and, where permitted, under the related sections of applicable state tax codes. The Company's stockholders include the operations of the Company in their individual income tax returns. The Company pays state franchise tax, when applicable.

The Company's conclusions regarding uncertain tax positions may be subject to review and adjustment at a later date based upon ongoing analyses of tax laws, regulations and interpretations thereof as well as other factors.
