Value Proposition - Cultural

- China's focus on education to increase productivity and raise the standard of living (college-educated workers are 3x's as productive, and a high school graduates are 1.8x's as productive, as a worker with less than a 9th grade education)
- Middle and upper class families emphasis on private education for higher college entrance exam scores – “Gao Kao” exam
- One-Child Policy – “Little Emperor/Princess” (2 parents and 4 grandparents)
- China's Urbanization – 221 Cities > 1 million population by 2025

(McKinsey & Co. study)

Value Proposition - Education

The Chinese central government has been leveraging education as a key driver supporting the recent economic development as a means to (a) narrow the gap between rural and urban education, (b) address the huge wealth disparity, and (c) maintain social stability.

11th Five-Year Plan continues to signal the importance of education. On March 28, 2011, the Ministry of Education indicates the government's intent to establish a well-educated labor workforce by 2015, placing detailed emphasis on the following:

- Every laborer entering workforce by 2015 would have an avg. of 13.3 years of education,
- Increase gross enrollment ratio in higher learning to 36% by 2015, (compared to 26.5% in 2010)
- Ensure the education system offers a more equitable educational system by 2015,
- Ensure rural and less developed regions receive more subsidies and support,
- Improve student nutrition in less developed areas, and
- Insure that children of migrant workers have equal access to education in cities.

Value Proposition-Economic

- Education comprises 11% of total consumer spending in China, 3rd largest category after food and housing
- Chinese government targets education sector spending to reach 4% of GDP in 2012 (up from 2.8% in 2004 and 3.3% in 2008)
- Chinese spend 15% of disposable income on education, compared to just 2% in the US - growing middle class to accelerate private education growth

Value Proposition - Company

- Consistent Revenues, Net Profit 48%,
No Accounts Receivable – Tuition Prepaid
- Comparable US-listed Chinese peers
trade at high PE multiples – 20 - 45x's
- Private school not subject to income taxes
- Organic and M&A growth through expansion of current business model and teaching methods into new schools, vocational training & international exchange programs
