Notes to Financial Statements
8. Stock-based Compensation
2011 Offerings, page F-24

1. Please refer to your response to comment 2. You state that the April 2011 warrant liability was allocated to RXi's financial statements "based on the expected use of the offering proceeds at the time the offering was completed, rather than on the basis of whether the proceeds were subsequently used for RXi's operations." It appears that RXi did not receive any of the April 2011 offering proceeds and thus received no consideration for the 50% allocation of the warrant liability. We continue to question why you believe it is appropriate to record the derivative relating to the April 2011 offering in the historical financial statements of RXI. In addition, you state that at the time of the March 2011 offering, "Galena operated only one business, the RNAi business. It was not until the Apheria acquisition that occurred on April 13, 2011, that Galena operated a business other than the RNAi business". Thus, you have allocated 100% of the warrant liability related to the March offering to RXi's financial statements. However, at the time of the Apheria acquisition it appears that the offering proceeds should have been reallocated to the business in which the proceeds were to be used. In preparing the financial statements for RXI's spin-off, amounts that are specifically applicable to a subsidiary should be recorded in the subsidiary's financial statements. In absence of specific identification, a reasonable allocation may be made. As it appears that the proceeds from the March offering were not used for the business of RXI, it is not clear why allocating the warrant liability associated with the offering is reasonable. Please refer to the guidance in SAB 103 Topic 1.B.1.

12. Subsequent Events, page F-30

2. Please disclose your intended accounting treatment for the exchange of warrants for Galena stock and the elimination of the fair value of $2.5 million of warrant derivatives on your balance sheet. Clarify in the filing if the warrants associated with the March and April offerings will continue to be exercisable for Galena common stock after the spin-off and not RXI common stock. In addition, please confirm to us that the shares after distribution in "Results of Distribution" on page 30 include the shares as a result of the exchange of warrants for Galena stock in December 2011.
