About

LIFE ON EARTH™

Life On Earth, Inc. is an innovative brand accelerator, incubator and distribution platform focused on building and scaling concepts in the all-natural consumer products category. Our mission is to bring our strategic focus and long-term progressive vision to consumers in the health, wellness and active lifestyle spaces through superior branding, product quality, targeted acquisitions and retail experience.

Further, Life On Earth, Inc. remains committed to aggressive growth, fueled by acquisition(s) of existing and proven consumer brands, while focusing on new and emerging products that have an enhanced presence within the U.S. Officially re-launched in Q1 2018, Life On Earth Inc. represents a demonstrated understanding of the consumer beverage and snack industry paired with a commitment to the principles of lean startup (as modeled by successful startups).

Mission

The mission of Life On Earth is to facilitate the introduction of exotic flavors into the mainstream population via targeted lifestyle brands. We have an ambitious growth strategy based on acquisition, geographic expansion and product-line extensions. Recent industry acquisitions illustrate that the focus on introducing exotic flavors and alternative beverages to the masses is becoming the next “it” approach to market penetration.

Competitive Advantage

We are different. What sets us apart in the industry, is our innovative foundation of well-structured sales, marketing and proprietary distribution. The Life On Earth platform is built for accelerating emerging growth brands in the United States.

At Life On Earth, we are forward-thinking. We have identified ways to build out distribution channels that are more flexible and responsive to today's needs. Our innovations have given rise to distribution channels, which provide robust capabilities embedded in an extended enterprise.

We realize that by sharing resources and capabilities in novel ways with new products in new situations, we can take advantage of profit-making opportunities that individual companies could not exploit alone. Our creation of a more flexible and responsive distribution system is not only a concept; we have applied the practice through implementation with our own brands.

Accelerating All-Natural Brands via Proprietary Distribution in Trend-setting Markets

Our Unique Model

Life On Earth is different. Our model is based on the principle foundation of saving costs by investing in solutions that provide our portfolio brands with economies of scale. We own our distribution platforms in key markets realizing 50%+ margins on our own brands. This model enables us to cut out the middleman and own the distribution process within targeted key strategic markets to facilitate brand acceleration.

Our model is unique and represents a bold approach. Historically, companies and brands won't engage in this process because they don't know how to manage and leverage their own platform for the benefit of their brands.

At Life On Earth, we are savvy enough to acquire distribution points below market cost, turn that spend into an asset and make it a profitable business, while executing our brand accelerator plan. This approach is monumental and few competitors (if any) will engage in a similar model due to their lack of understanding integrated distribution and logistics.

Commitment

We are reintroducing flavors from days past and bringing flavors from different cultures to market in an effort to become part of the American mainstream diet. Our company is committed to building long-term relationships with our consumers by offering superior, high quality products at the most competitive prices.
