BUSINESS AND ANTICIPATED BUSINESS PLAN

7. Describe in detail the business of the issuer and the anticipated business plan of the issuer.:

COMPANY

Baby Barista is a Los Angeles-based small business. Our mission is to transform the infant formula feeding experience, making it accessible to all types of parents: special needs parents, foster and adoptive parents, and everyday parents that have chosen to formula feed their babies. The company was started by Cara Armstrong, R.N. in 2014, inventor, founder, and CEO of Baby Barista, an ER nurse, disability advocate and mother to three beautiful children. Cara's youngest daughter, Mia, was born with Down Syndrome and couldn't breastfeed due to her condition. As a mother and disability advocate, Cara realized that families are not one size fits all and that each family faces unique challenges when it comes to feeding their children in the early years of life. Given her nursing background, she understood the importance of creating an aseptic infant formula system. Baby Barista focused on using concentrated liquid formula as opposed to powder, following the CDC's recommendation that liquid formula reduces digestive burden and eliminates the risk of cronobacter sakazakii that can live in powdered infant formula. Additionally, clumping, spoiling and inaccurate dosing were potential pitfalls of creating a machine that housed powdered formula.

To bring the idea from ideation to proof of concept, a friends and family round was raised. The money was utilized for a research and development phase with both formula and breastfeeding parents. Parents participated in a lengthy interview in their homes and answered questions about purchasing habits, bottle preparation rituals, and identified key "must-have" features for the Baby Barista aseptic formula machine. Utilizing the learning from these interviews, foam form factors representing different embodiments of the Baby Barista aseptic formula machine were placed on the participants' kitchen countertops during a subsequent interview. They weighed in on the most ergonomic and intuitive placement of various design features by physically interacting with these non-functional foam form factors. The learning from this user research informed the design of the working proof of concept machine. In 2018, Cara left her job as a bedside nurse to commit full-time hours as CEO to accelerate the commercialization of the Baby Barista aseptic infant formula machine, now protected by three granted US patents.

Over the past year, Baby Barista has participated and won awards at many prestigious programs and competitions, including Angelcon 2020 where we won the Audience Choice Award, Pepperdine Graziadio 2020 Most Fundable Companies (narrowed down to top 20 from a pool of 4500 startups, was awarded the designation of one of California's top design innovations on California by Design (featured on CBS and available on Amazon Prime Video in January 2021, Baby Barista was named California's #7 Design Innovation out of 33 companies including Uber). Through these programs and competitions, Baby Barista has garnered the attention of a growing network of Angel and VC investors from whom we can seek investment.

MARKET, CUSTOMER, AND COMPETITION

According to Fortune Business Insights, the Infant Formula Market in the U.S. was worth USD 2.66 billion in 2018 and is projected to reach USD 5.07 billion by 2026, going at a projected CAGR of 8.3% (Fortune Business Insights, 2020). Liquid formula solutions are gaining in popularity over powder driven by demands for nutrition and convenience. Baby Barista competes directly for share of the liquid formula category which is $718 million as of 2020.

US market trends show that parents care about the composition and quality of the ingredients in their infant formula, in addition to other factors pertaining to innovative packaging, premiumization, and cleaner ingredients. Market trends in the US show that American parents are going to extreme lengths to purchase European formula options. In Europe, formula manufacturers largely stay away from using corn syrup as a sweetener, instead turning to lactose-based options. In addition, infant formulas are not allowed to have any detectable level of pesticides or use carrageenan - health attributes that have been proven to assist with lowering childhood obesity rates and preventing other negative health consequences (European Commission, 2015). This has created a black market as US parents are importing large quantities of European formula, circumventing the FDA. Due to shifting trends, there is an emergence of new, smaller, well-funded independent infant formula players. Their offerings tend to the growing concerns of American parents and ensure that their products avoid such contentious ingredients. They are racing to put forth FDA-notified stage one infant formulas, similar to what is being produced in Europe, to compete against the four large player in the US, Abbott, Meade Johnson, Nestle and Perrigo.

Baby Barista sees this movement as a great opportunity to co-manufacture an infant formula that is nutrient-dense and offers the cleanest ingredients available.

Customer: The three primary categories for infant formula are powdered, concentrated liquid, and ready-to-feed, all of which primarily distinguish themselves through nutrition, price, and/or convenience. Powdered formula is the cheapest option and the most commonly used variety. Ready-to-feed is the most expensive option because it comes ready to consume once heated. It is worth noting that ready-to-feed solutions once opened have a 24-hour shelf life. The most common formats for ready to feed solutions come in standard-sized bottles with attachable nipples at protracted serving amounts that are often too little or too much for an infant to consume. This leads to the formula being wasted. Multi-serve ready-to-feed solutions most often come in 32 ounce containers and have to be used within 24 hours of cracking the seal. Once the seal is broken, refrigeration is a must. Concentrated liquid formula offers more convenience than powder because it is less messy to reconstitute but the same rules regarding use within 24 hours and mandatory refrigeration still apply. In comparing cost across the formats, concentrate is more expensive than powder but less expensive than ready-to-feed. This is because of the relatively light weight of powder compared to the premium cost of ready-to-feed due to its heavy weight and associated shipping costs. Liquid solutions are preferable to powder for the reasons previously noted above, specifically the propensity for bacteria to live in dry foods and the undue burden that powdered formula puts on an infant's digestive system.

When initially choosing a brand of infant formula, consumers will be influenced by a number of internal and external factors including their pediatrician, DTC marketing efforts, the price-quality heuristic, and listening to the advice of friends and family. 90% of baby product purchasing decisions are made by moms, who tend to initially pick the formula that they were provided in the hospital at the time their baby was delivered, but have a 65.6% chance of switching within the first month postpartum, a noted window of marketing opportunity for new customer acquisition (Huang et al., 2013). Coupon offers also resonate strongly with mothers, 19.6% of mothers will select a formula because of a coupon offer. 23.2% of mothers will choose what a doctor recommends (Huang et al., 2013). In cases where mothers have chosen to go with formula options due to health or personal reasons, the price-quality heuristic usually makes it so that they will turn to the most expensive and premium offerings on the market, believing that price and quality have a positive correlation. Family, friends, and personal experiences can also have an impact on formula choice - new parents are likely to listen to the recommendations made by family and friends while returning parents are likely to have established sentiments towards certain brands based on past experiences.

Competition: The formula industry is an oligopoly, controlled by four key players - two big pharmaceutical companies (Abbott Laboratories and Mead Johnson), Gerber (which is owned by the world's largest consumer goods company Nestle with a staggering $90.8 Billion dollars of revenue in the U.S.) and Perrigo (which provides private and white labeled formulas for supermarkets and big box retailers) (Curran 2020). Together, these four players account for 86.8% of market share as of 2020, a number that has decreased from 93.3% in 2015 (Curran, 2020). Largely founded in the 19th and 20th century, these veteran companies have benefited from the high level of market share concentration that has ultimately stifled innovation, with very little intra-industry technological development taking place. Because of this oligopoly, innovation has been slow when it comes to automation and consequently, parents are manually preparing bottles the same way that they did more than 100 years ago.

There has yet to be a widely adopted, safe, effective, and efficient mechanized bottle preparation system. Current solutions have crucial health and safety drawbacks, including improper dosing methods, dangerous bacterial contamination issues and require complex cleaning procedures. We have one notable mechanized hardware competitor, Baby Brezza. Baby Brezza has a commercially available mechanized bottle preparation system that is a stand-alone disconnected piece of hardware (currently sold online and in retail locations). The MSRP for the machine is $199.99. The machine uses bulk powdered formula from canisters (the contents of which are not sterile). Each powdered formula has a different molecular weight and in order to dose the formula, an aperture device must be identified and placed inside the machine. The machine is boxed with multiple aperture devices leaving room for error. Because the powdered formula is subject to clumping, it does not reliably produce correct concentrations. To prevent contamination and serious health concerns, the machine needs to be disassembled and the user must hand wash 8-10 plastic components after every fourth use (as much as twice a day). This negates any convenience that a machine offers. In addition, infants are still at risk for all of the maladies associated with improper formula to water ratios including water intoxication, dehydration, malnutrition, electrolyte imbalances, and seizures. Solidifying this assertion, in March 2020, the New York Times reported that more than 100 complaints had arisen against Baby Brezza for producing infant formula bottles that were too watery and lacked appropriate nutrients (Singer, 2020). Separately, five pediatricians reported to the New York Times that they had treated babies whose parents had fed them Brezza-dispensed bottles for failure to thrive, a condition caused by lack of nutrients.

By contrast, as a result of Baby Barista's CEO Cara Armstrong's nursing background, it was essential that Baby Barista be an aseptic system. This means that none of the formula ever touches the internal components of the machine. Instead, the liquid-concentrated formula and water are mixed and dispensed in an external chamber that is dishwasher safe, easily cleaned, and attaches to the machine magnetically. This external mixing chamber is the only component that needs to be washed. All of this technology is patent protected.

INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY PROTECTION

Baby Barista and its CEO and founder Cara Armstrong hold two utility patents and one design patent. The utility patents cover the housing of the machine, the liquid concentrate receptor, the motor attached to the housing of the machine, and the pump that is connected to the water tank. The external magnetic mixing chamber is also covered including the spray head with multiple spray jets that dispense into the mixing chamber. The mechanism by which the mixing chamber attaches and detaches to the machine and the interface between the cam-shaped ridge and the spray heads are also protected. The design patent covers the unique look and ornamental aspects of the dispensing machine, including the shaping, design, and other ornamental features.

PRODUCTION AND MARKETING PLAN

Product: The Baby Barista formula feeding system aims to be the most reliable, safe, and convenient breastfeeding alternative solution available and promises to give parents back time, control, and savings. The ecosystem includes a patented Nespresso-like aseptic machine for infant formula which makes the perfect bottle in less than 30 seconds, a monthly subscription box containing single-serve formula pouches offered at a competitive price, and a connected mobile application that enables parents to prepare bottles remotely, track their baby's feedings and growth trajectory and manage their formula supply. The data collected enables parents to make smarter and better-informed feeding choices and provide their pediatrician with real-time feeding statistics. Baby Barista's connected technologies together comprise the most innovative solution in the infant formula industry for more than 100 years.

Product Positioning and Regulatory Positioning: The Baby Barista aseptic formula machine, associated nutrient-dense concentrated liquid infant formula, and the connected mobile app will work together to form the first complete infant formula feeding ecosystem to ever be introduced to the U.S. market. Baby Barista will work with experts and formula-manufacturing partner to ensure that this unique product is the safest most convenient alternative to breastfeeding. The Baby Barista aseptic formula machine will produce infant formula with all required vitamins, minerals, proteins, and fats at a precise formula to water ratio to prevent illnesses associated with improper re-constitution (dehydration, water intoxication, electrolyte imbalances, seizures), heat the formula to a safe temperature to prevent scald injuries and reduce bubble production to mitigate the risk of colic (painful gas in the gastrointestinal tract and associated crying). The nutrient-dense formula formulated by the formula-manufacturing partner is the result of 15 years of research and development to create a formula that strives to mimic the unique properties of breastmilk. It will arrive at the consumer's door ready to be used with the Baby Barista aseptic infant formula machine. Parents no longer need to put babies (who have immature immune systems) into dirty shopping carts and can rest assured that they will not be exposed to disease. The formula itself, being high quality and nutrient-dense will provide the ultimate nutritional value. The mobile application will allow parents, grandparents, and caregivers to remotely prepare bottles, create feeding logs (valuable for tracking daily intake and providing pediatricians with accurate feeding data) and manage their formula supply. The result is a novel and innovative experience that no other formula brand can offer.

Distribution Strategy: Baby Barista is well-suited for the direct-to-consumer and e-commerce economy. In the first few years, we intend to develop relationships with and learn about our customers by interacting with them directly and getting valuable feedback in real-time. Because there is an educational component to our product, we believe that blindly placing it on a retail shelf upon launch places us at a significant disadvantage. Additionally, it is important we manage our supply chain and gauge product orders and quantities. With the collaboration between Baby Barista and engineering partners, we have made substantial progress with supply chain partners that we will continue to build on and foster as we move towards commercialization. In 2019, Baby Barista's management team traveled throughout North America, meeting with the senior baby buyers of five major North American retailers. The buyers at these retailers were unanimously excited to place Baby Barista on their shelves. We interpreted their enthusiasm and interest as validation of our value proposition and as paving the way for future retail expansion. Ultimately, we see Baby Barista as being a hybrid model (both direct-to-consumer and in major retail locations). This will enable us to effectively scale.

Target Customer & Acquisition Strategy: Baby Barista's target customers are parents with infants who are unable to breastfeed. These parents include families where mom or baby have a medical condition, HIV-positive mothers, gay parents, and foster and adoptive parents that are not biologically able to produce breastmilk.

Baby Barista is perfect for parents, grandparents, and caregivers, but we are sensitive to the fact that 90 percent of purchasing decisions are still made by moms. While mom is the final decision maker, we know there are other strong influences in her life. Namely her pediatrician, her own mom, and her co-parent. Reaching these key audiences plays an important role in our customer acquisition strategy. Ultimately, however, our job is to elevate the Baby Barista brand and build trust with Mom. To do this, we will meet her at virtually every touchpoint of her life in the prenatal and neonatal phases. These touchpoints include online search, direct mail, podcasts, social media, blogs, books, radio, email, doctors, mobile, print, events, and television. As Baby Barista continues to penetrate the market and grow market share, we will expand our target customers to include career-oriented mothers where breastfeeding and pumping are not feasible given work environments.

While paid digital media will be an important part of our customer acquisition strategy, we believe that based on our history, generating organic and earned (non-paid) media opportunities will not be difficult. CEO Cara Armstrong, R.N. was honored on the ABC Television show "The View" in 2018 for being a fearless mother. In June of 2020, Baby Barista won the Audience Choice Award at Angel con, an event sponsored by the San Luis Obispo SBDC and Cal Poly San Luis Obispo. In July of 2020, Baby Barista was named one of California's Top 10 Design Innovations on a CBS affiliate show called "California By Design". That same month, Fast Company Magazine and USA Today wrote feature articles celebrating the Baby Barista aseptic infant formula machine as a novel and innovative solution. In August 2020, Baby Barista was ranked in the Top 10 companies out of a pool of 4500 applicants as a part of Pepperdine Graziadio Business School's Most Fundable Companies of 2020. As a result we were seen in Entrepreneur Magazine in December 2020.

Baby Barista will also launch a celebrity and influencer campaign targeting Millennial and Gen Z parents who value simplicity and excellent customer service experiences. This public relations strategy in combination with a strong digital presence will bring brand awareness to effectively reach our target audience. We also plan to roll out an affiliate marketing campaign, allowing micro-influencers and mommy bloggers to promote Baby Barista in order to attract and convince potential customers that the Baby Barista aseptic formula machine and its associated ecosystem is the quality solution that they are seeking.

Having a strong social impact associated with the Baby Barista aseptic baby formula machine and ecosystem is something that CEO Cara Armstrong R.N. is very passionate about. We estimate that the average customer will use the Baby Barista aseptic formula machine for about 17 months. This is based on the metric that the average American household has 1.9 children (US Census Bureau, 2019). We are acutely aware that once machines are not being used that they will most likely be passed on to other mothers. We would like to initiate a machine donation program to benefit foster care parents that do emergency foster care placement. With the growing opioid epidemic, in 2017, an estimated 2.2 million children and adolescents had a parent with opioid use disorder (OUD). This means that 1.4 million children are living with a parent with OUD. 325,000 children who have been removed from the home and live in foster care due to opioids. If current trends continue, an estimated 4.3 million children will have had OUD or a parent with OUD by 2030 (United Hospital Fund, 2019). Having the Baby Barista infant formula machine and a formula scholarship would be a game-changer for these vulnerable, drug-addicted infants and the foster parents that care for them as they detox from the substances that their mothers exposed them to in utero. Additionally, there is a desire to create a meaningful social impact that would benefit the Down syndrome community, in honor of Mia Armstrong, Cara Armstrong's daughter who inspired the creation of the Baby Barista aseptic infant formula system. Our single-serve pouches will be upcycled into durable goods that will be donated to Hearts of Joy International, a non-profit that provides life-saving heart surgery to children with Down syndrome in developing countries. Baby Barista will partner with Hearts of Joy to increase their ability to improve the lives of children with Down syndrome in Africa, India, the Philippines, Mexico, and the United States. It is essential that children with heart anomalies get the ultimate nutrition in the pre and post-operative period. Baby Barista is uniquely suited to provide that needed nourishment. Our nested hearts logo represents our commitment to participate in healing these little hearts. As parents, we all desire health and happiness for our children. Our customers will have a unique opportunity to help other mothers find a pathway to healing - just by purchasing a Baby Barista machine. The social impact initiative is currently being developed by our team and will continue to evolve as we scale.

8. Discuss the material factors that make an investment in the issuer speculative or risky:

We have limited operating history upon which you can evaluate our performance, and accordingly, our prospects must be considered in light of the risk that any new company encounters.

The Company is still in its early phases and has not yet implemented its business plan. There can be no assurance that we will ever operate profitably. The likelihood of our success should be considered in light of the problems, expenses, difficulties, complications and delays usually encountered by early stage companies. The Company may not be successful in attaining the objectives necessary for it to overcome these risks and uncertainties.

We have not prepared any audited financial statements.

Therefore you have no audited financial information regarding the Company's capitalization or assets or liability on which to make your investment decision. If you feel the information provided is insufficient, you should not invest in the Company.

The amount of capital the Company is attempting to raise in this Offering may not be enough to sustain the Company's current business plan.

In order to achieve the Company's near and long-term goals, the Company may need to procure funds in addition to the amount raised in the Offering. There is no guarantee the Company will be able to raise such funds on acceptable terms or at all. If we are not able to raise sufficient capital in the future, we may not be able to execute our business plan, our continued operations will be in jeopardy and we may be forced to cease operations and sell or otherwise transfer all or substantially all of our remaining assets, which could cause an Investor to lose all or a portion of their investment.

We may face potential difficulties in obtaining capital.

We may have difficulty raising needed capital in the future as a result of, among other factors, our lack of revenues from sales, as well as the inherent business risks associated with our Company and present and future market conditions. We will require additional funds to execute our business strategy and conduct our operations. If adequate funds are unavailable, we may be required to delay product launches or marketing efforts, any of which may materially harm our business, financial condition and results of operations.

We rely on other companies to provide components and services for our products.

We will depend on suppliers and contractors to deliver our products to our customers and conduct our operations. Our ability to meet our obligations to our customers may be adversely affected if suppliers or contractors do not provide the agreed-upon supplies or perform the agreed-upon services in compliance with customer requirements and in a timely and cost-effective manner. Likewise, the quality of our products may be adversely impacted if companies to whom we delegate manufacture of major components or subsystems for our products, or from whom we acquire such items, do not provide components which meet required specifications and perform to our and our customers' expectations. Our suppliers may be unable to quickly recover from natural disasters and other events beyond their control and may be subject to additional risks such as financial problems that limit their ability to conduct their operations. The risk of these adverse effects may be greater in circumstances where we rely on only one or two contractors or suppliers for a particular component. Our products may utilize custom components available from only one source. Continued availability of those components at acceptable prices, or at all, may be affected for any number of reasons, including if those suppliers decide to concentrate on the production of common components instead of components customized to meet our requirements. The supply of components for a new or existing product could be delayed or constrained, or a key manufacturing vendor could delay shipments of completed products to us adversely affecting our business and results of operations.

We may not be able to manage future growth effectively.

If our business plan is successful, we may experience significant growth in a short period of time and potential scaling issues. Should we grow rapidly, our financial, management and operating resources may not expand sufficiently to adequately manage our growth. If we are unable to manage our growth, our costs may increase disproportionately, our future revenues may stop growing or decline and we may face dissatisfied customers. Our failure to manage our growth may adversely impact our business and the value of your investment.

We rely on various intellectual property rights, including trademarks, in order to operate our business.

The Company relies on certain intellectual property rights to operate its business. The Company's intellectual property rights may not be sufficiently broad or otherwise may not provide us a significant competitive advantage. In addition, the steps that we have taken to maintain and protect our intellectual property may not prevent it from being challenged, invalidated, circumvented or designed-around, particularly in countries where intellectual property rights are not highly developed or protected. In some circumstances, enforcement may not be available to us because an infringer has a dominant intellectual property position or for other business reasons, or countries may require compulsory licensing of our intellectual property. Our failure to obtain or maintain intellectual property rights that convey competitive advantage, adequately protect our intellectual property or detect or prevent circumvention or unauthorized use of such property, could adversely impact our competitive position and results of operations. We also rely on nondisclosure and noncompetition agreements with employees, consultants and other parties to protect, in part, trade secrets and other proprietary rights. There can be no assurance that these agreements will adequately protect our trade secrets and other proprietary rights and will not be breached, that we will have adequate remedies for any breach, that others will not independently develop substantially equivalent proprietary information or that third parties will not otherwise gain access to our trade secrets or other proprietary rights. As we expand our business, protecting our intellectual property will become increasingly important. The protective steps we have taken may be inadequate to deter our competitors from using our proprietary information. In order to protect or enforce our patent rights, we may be required to initiate litigation against third parties, such as infringement lawsuits. Also, these third parties may assert claims against us with or without provocation. These lawsuits could be expensive, take significant time and could divert management's attention from other business concerns. The law relating to the scope and validity of claims in the technology field in which we operate is still evolving and, consequently, intellectual property positions in our industry are generally uncertain. We cannot assure you that we will prevail in any of these potential suits or that the damages or other remedies awarded, if any, would be commercially valuable.

Although dependent on certain key personnel, the Company does not have any key person life insurance policies on any such people.

We are dependent on certain key personnel in order to conduct our operations and execute our business plan, however, the Company has not purchased any insurance policies with respect to those individuals in the event of their death or disability. Therefore, if any of these personnel die or become disabled, the Company will not receive any compensation to assist with such a person's absence. The loss of such a person could negatively affect the Company and our operations. We have no way to guarantee key personnel will stay with the Company, as many states do not enforce non-competition agreements, and therefore acquiring key man insurance will not ameliorate all of the risk of relying on key personnel.

We operate in a highly regulated environment, and if we are found to be in violation of any applicable regulations, our business could suffer.

We are subject to regulations by various government agencies including the Food & Drug Administration. Compliance with regulations is costly to obtain and maintain, and may delay the Company's business plan. Any violation in outstanding or future regulations could result in actions against the Company, including an inability to operate.

DELIVERY & CANCELLATIONS

11. How will the issuer complete the transaction and deliver securities to the investors?:

The Baby Barista Company, Inc., will issue to investors the right to certain shares of the company's capital stock via a SAFE. If the issuer reaches the target offering amount prior to the deadline identified in the offering materials, it may close the offering early if it provides notice about the new offering deadline at least five business days prior to such new offering deadline (absent a material change that would require an extension of the offering and reconfirmation of the investment commitment).

If an investor does not cancel an investment commitment before the 48-hour period prior to the offering deadline, the funds will be released to the issuer upon closing of the offering and the investor will receive securities in exchange for his or her investment.

If the Investor does not reconfirm, he or she will receive notifications disclosing that the commitment was cancelled, the reason for the cancellation, and the refund amount that the investor is required to receive. If a material change occurs within five business days of the maximum number of days the offering is to remain open, the offering will be extended to allow for a period of five business days for the investor to reconfirm.

If the Investor cancels his or her investment commitment during the period when cancellation is permissible, or does not reconfirm a commitment in the case of a material change to the investment, or the offering does not close, all of the Investor's funds will be returned within five business days.

Within five business days of cancellation of an offering by the Company, the Company will give each investor notification of the cancellation, disclose the reason for the cancellation, identify the refund amount the Investor will receive, and refund the Investor's funds.

The Company's right to cancel. The Investment Agreement you will execute with us provides the Company the right to cancel for any reason before the offering deadline.

If the sum of the investment commitments from all investors does not equal or exceed the target offering amount at the time of the offering deadline, no securities will be sold in the offering, investment commitments will be cancelled and committed funds will be returned.

Ownership and Capital Structure

THE OFFERING

13. Describe the terms of the securities being offered:

This investment will be via a SAFE and associated Proxy. Both are available as Form C Exhibits available for download. We recommend that you have an attorney review for your benefit and at your expense.

The Baby Barista Company, Inc., a Delaware Corporation (the “Company”), hereby issues to the Investor the right to certain shares of the Company’s Capital Stock (defined below), subject to the terms set forth in the Agreements and excerpted in summary below. All other definitions, terms and conditions are defined in the SmartSAFE™ and associated voting rights Proxy agreement documents that accompany this Form C filing.

The Target Number of securities to be offered is 50,000

The Maximum Number of securities to be offered is 250,000

The Price per security offered is $1.00

The “Discount” is 20%

The “Valuation Cap” is $10,000,000

Key definitions excerpted from the SmartSAFE include:

Capital Stock means the capital stock of the Company, including, without limitation, the “Common Stock” and the “Preferred Stock”.

Conversion Price means either: (1) in the event that the per share price of the Standard Preferred Stock is computed on the basis of a pre-money valuation of equal to or greater than the Valuation Cap (without taking into account conversion of this SmartSAFE, any other outstanding SmartSAFEs, SAFEs, promissory notes and the like), the SmartSAFE Price, or (2) in the event that the per share price of the Standard Preferred Stock is computed on the basis of a pre-money valuation of less than the Valuation Cap (without taking into account conversion of this SmartSAFE, any other outstanding SmartSAFEs SAFE, promissory notes and the like), the Discount Price.

Equity Financing means a bona fide transaction or series of transactions with the principal purpose of raising capital, pursuant to which the Company issues and sells Preferred Stock [at a fixed pre-money valuation] OR [at a fixed pre-money valuation, with an aggregate sales price of not less than $2,500,000 (excluding all Convertible Securities converting into SmartSAFE Preferred Stock or Preferred Stock)]. Note: Company to determine whether to include a threshold on the amount raised that would trigger a conversion of the Purchase Amount into SmartSAFE Preferred Stock. Omitting a threshold means that a small financing, at, potentially a low valuation, could trigger conversion in the First Equity Financing (or be utilized to determine the conversion price of the Purchase Amount in a Subsequent Equity Financing).

First Equity Financing Price shall mean (x) if the pre-money valuation of the Company immediately prior to the First Equity Financing is less than or equal to the Valuation Cap, the lowest price per share of the Preferred Stock sold in the First Equity Financing or (y) if the pre-money valuation of the Company immediately prior to the First Equity Financing is greater than the Valuation Cap, the SmartSAFE Price.

SmartSAFE Preferred Stock means the shares of a series of Preferred Stock issued to the Investor in an Equity Financing, having the identical rights, privileges, preferences and restrictions as the shares of Standard Preferred Stock, other than with respect to:

- (i) the per share liquidation preference and the conversion price for purposes of price-based anti-dilution protection, which will equal the Conversion Price;
- (ii) the basis for any dividend rights, if any, which will be based on the Conversion Price;
- (iii) voting rights, pursuant to which the SmartSAFE Preferred Stock shall be non-voting Preferred Stock to the maximum extent permitted under applicable law;
- (iv) the Information Waiver;
- (v) the proxy granted pursuant to the Proxy Agreement; and
- (vi) the Preferred Stock (and securities issuable upon conversion thereof) shall be subject to a right of first refusal in favor of the Company or its designee, as may be set forth in the Bylaws of the Company.

Please refer to the complete SmartSAFE and associated Proxy Agreement documents for complete terms and conditions for this investment.

14. Do the securities offered have voting rights?:

No

15. Are there any limitations on any voting or other rights identified above?:

No

16. How may the terms of the securities being offered be modified?:

Any provision of this SmartSAFE may be amended, waived or modified (either generally or in a particular instance and either retroactively or prospectively) only upon the written consent of, or a written instrument signed by, the Company and the Investor, provided, however, that this SmartSAFE may be amended, together with all other SmartSAFEs, by agreement of the Company and holders of SmartSAFEs representing at least a majority in interest, based upon aggregate purchase amounts under all of the then issued and outstanding SmartSAFEs, so long as such amendment and/or waivers (i) are applicable to all SmartSAFEs; (ii) do not modify this provision; and (iii) do not reduce the Purchase Amount of this SmartSAFE or reduce the Discount Rate or Valuation Cap. The Company may amend any terms of the SmartSAFEs provided such amendments do not have a material or adverse effect on the holders of the SmartSAFE.
