Company Description

Our team of instructors, alongside our clients, have cultivated an atmosphere unmatched by any Pilates studio in Houston.

I'm proud of what we're doing here and confident you'll find yourself, your friends and the strongest version of your body at Citizen.

- Jess Hughes, Founder

Citizen Pilates is a destination studio in Houston's historic Heights neighborhood. The studio is revered for its upbeat, fitness-based group reformer classes, and its positive and inclusive environment has given members a fresh take on an otherwise stuffy studio archetype.

Demand for classes has exceeded capacity at the first location, and Citizen is opening its second location in December.

Citizen first opened its doors in August 2015. Its founder and original Citizen, Jessica Hughes, had a vision for a fitness studio that stood out from what the market already offered. Citizen's atypical approach to high level client service and intimacy, coupled with affordable boutique pricing, welcomed members of all ages to experience Citizens' strong culture.

Over 11 million people practice Pilates as a form of exercise. Pilates is characterized by slow and controlled movements that make your muscles toned, long and lean. Reformer Pilates involves balancing and doing exercises on a customized machine, using various pulleys to slowly tone muscles. The setup can be intimidating for newcomers, but Jess's vision for the studio included personalized attention and small class sizes to help foster a more intimate class setting.

What makes a fitness studio is the classes it offers. But what makes a community are the relationships that are built and the culture that is created. Citizen has carefully crafted a community, both online and offline, to develop a winning formula for both its members and the business.

Demand for classes at Citizen has outgrown the space. By March 2016, the studio began implementing an automated online wait-list to accommodate the excess demand. The original studio is currently offering 50-60 classes per week, with most days starting as early as 5:30am and ending as late as an 8:30pm session. Even with classes throughout the day, reservations have filled up quickly. The sole complaint from members became, "We can never get into class."

In August of 2016, Jessica Hughes secured Citizen's second location, just 2 miles west of their flagship studio. The proximity of the two locations will serve as a carefully crafted ecosystem, allowing the studio to effectively double its capacity while still maintaining the intimate experience and close community that it's created.

Citizen Pilates' core values are centered around its members and the ability to service clients turned off by high-end boutique exclusivity. Its CRM systems allow managers and instructors to establish and retain genuine relationships with their clients beyond class time in an effort to consistently grow membership.

The fitness industry continues to grow at a rapid pace. An estimated $25.8 Billion (<http://www.ihrsa.org/>) was generated by gym memberships in the United States in 2015, and nearly 42% of memberships are with boutique fitness studios.

Specifically, Pilates and yoga studios are dominated by smaller, boutique single locations or smaller local chains. With less than 5% of the industries total revenue coming from the top 4 companies, this is an industry that thrives at the local level. From 2010-2015, the Pilates and yoga industry saw 7.5% annual growth and $9 billion (<http://www.ibisworld.com/industry/pilates-yoga-studios.html>) in revenue. Read More

Location Analysis

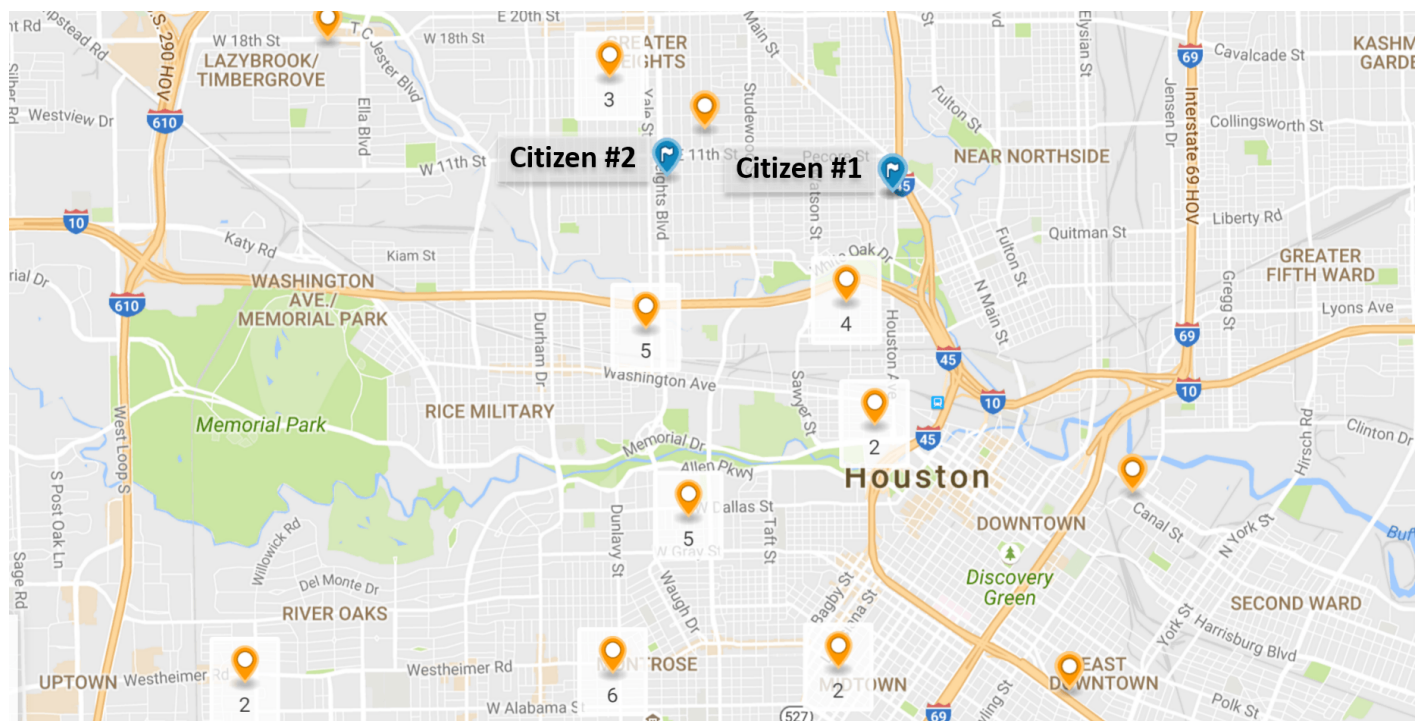

Citizen Pilates operates the following two locations:

- Citizen #1: 3217 Houston Ave, Houston, TX 77009 – in operations
- Citizen #2: 940 Heights Blvd, Houston, TX 77008 – under construction

Both locations are in the Heights district of Houston, a community located just 4 miles from downtown. The Heights is one of the earliest planned communities in Texas, dating back to the 1800s and is well known for its historic homes.

The Heights population is diverse in all categories, as young couples, millennials and professionals, have been flocking to the Heights over the past decade for its prime real estate, growing restaurant and bar scene, and eclectic shops.

Due to its prime location and strong sense of community, the Heights real estate market has been one of the best performing neighborhoods (<http://www.houstonproperties.com/>) in Houston over the past one, five and ten-year periods. The neighborhood's charm and small-town feel was also recognized by CNN Money (http://www.bizjournals.com/houston/morning_call/2013/08/houston-tops-cnn-moneys-best-places.html), coming in at #4 on its 2013 ranking of the Top 10 Big City Neighborhoods.

Yellow flags indicate Pilates and yoga studios in the vicinity. INVEST NOW

Because the first location has maintained close to maximum utilization, Citizen strategically sought expansion opportunities within close proximity to its first location. This will allow the business to service existing customers and draw new customers in a centralized, prime location in Houston. The yellow flags in the map below represent yoga and Pilates studios. Among the greater Heights and surrounding downtown areas, very few locations offer Pilates, and fewer than a handful offer reformer Pilates. Read More

Leadership

Jessica Hughes, Founder

Jessica Hughes is a native Houstonian and the owner and founder of Citizen Pilates. Her career as an analyst for two Houston-based oil companies helped shaped her keen sense of detail to economic sensitivities, project management and executive administration.

Despite her admiration for corporate culture, Jessica is a successful entrepreneur with recognized strengths in small business start-ups and proactive marketing initiatives. In 2010, she co-founded an independent bicycle fitting studio – a model never successfully proven by predecessors within Texas' cycling industry. Today Tad Hughes Custom Fit Studio remains Texas' only independent, service-based bicycle diagnostic center. Its brick and mortar location in the Heights services cyclists, runners and triathletes throughout the southern United States.

Jessica has also served on the boards of Northwest Cycling Club, where she is a lifetime member, and the Texas Bicycle Racing Association.
