RISK FACTORS

The SEC requires the company to identify risks that are specific to its business and its financial condition. The company is still subject to all the same risks that all companies in its business, and all companies in the economy, are exposed to. These include risks relating to economic downturns, political and economic events and technological developments (such as hacking and the ability to prevent hacking). Additionally, early-stage companies are inherently more risky than more developed companies. You should consider general risks as well as specific risks when deciding whether to invest.

These are the risks that relate to the company:

- We have not yet established an extensive operating history. We first organized in January 2016 and have not commenced full scale operations nor generated significant operating revenue. Since then we have worked to enlarge our customer base, engage new partners, and refine our services. There is no guarantee that we will be able to maintain and grow our customer base and partnerships. Should we not be able to grow, our financial results and operations may be negatively impacted.
- Our financial review includes a “going concern” note. Our ability to continue as a going concern for the next twelve months is dependent upon our ability to generate sufficient cash flows from operations to meet our obligations, and/or to obtain additional capital financing from our members and/or third parties. No assurance can be given that we will be successful in these efforts. These factors, among others, raise substantial doubt about our ability to continue as a going concern for a reasonable period of time
- We are targeting a new and unproven segment within the dog food delivery service market. Targeting a new and unproven segment introduces unknowns, such as customer adoption. We will only succeed (and you will only make money) if there is sufficient demand for this service, people think it is a better option than the competition and DoggyChef has priced the services at a level that allows the company to make a profit and still attract business.
- We depend on a small, unpaid management team. We depend on the skill and experience of Deborah Goldberg and Timothy Hirsch. Though our management team has a passion for DoggyChef and has equity interests in the company, Deborah Goldberg and Timothy Hirsch are not paid employees. If we are not able to call upon Deborah Goldberg or Timothy Hirsch for any reason, our operations and development could be harmed.
- We are controlled by our officers and directors. Our President and CEO, Deborah Goldberg, who currently holds 82.8% of our Common Stock, and at the conclusion of this offering will continue to hold 82.8% of the company’s Common Stock. After the offering our founders, Deborah Goldberg and Timothy Hirsch, will get to determine the majority of the Board of Directors. There will be limited oversight, and limited ability for additional parties to act as checks and balance. Investors in this offering will have limited ability to control a vote.

- The company will likely need more money. The company might not sell enough Preferred Shares to meet its operating needs and fulfill its plans, in which case it may cease operating, which could lead to the total loss of your investment. Even if it sells all the Preferred Shares it's offering now, it will probably need to raise more funds in the future, and if it can't get them, the business could fail. Even if it does make a successful offering in the future, the terms of that offering might result in your investment in the company being valued less, because later investors might get better terms and the issuance of additional shares may dilute your proportional ownership.
- We will need more people to join our company.
We will need additional executive officers and people with the skills necessary to ensure we create and sell a premium product. The people we bring on should come with specialized skills that bring value to the company. There are no guarantees that we will be able to find the right people for the job.
- We have a number of competitors more established than we are.
There are other companies providing services similar to ours. Some of these companies are large established companies with resources far superior to ours. Accordingly, they may be able to attract customers and clients faster than we can.
- You will have limited rights. Investors who invest less than $50,000 in this offering will be considered non-major purchasers under the terms of the purchase agreement that they will execute and will not be granted participation rights in future offerings or inspection rights, and will receive more limited information than Major Purchasers.
- We still need to create the Series Seed Preferred Shares. Though we are selling Series Seed Preferred Shares in this offering, we have yet to authorize those shares and will need to take several corporate actions in order to do so, including amending our Certificate of Incorporation. This will need to be completed prior to any closing.
- Any valuation at this stage is difficult to assess. Unlike listed companies that are valued publicly through market-driven stock prices, the valuation of private companies, especially startups, is difficult to assess and you may risk overpaying for your investment. In addition, there may be additional classes of equity with rights that are superior to the class of equity being sold.
- The purchase agreement contains dispute resolution provisions which limit your ability to bring class action lawsuits or seek remedy on a class basis. By purchasing Preferred Shares in this offering, you agree to be bound by the dispute resolution and class action waiver provisions found in Sections 8.11 and 8.12 of the purchase agreement. Those provisions apply to claims regarding this offering. Any debate about the terms of the Series Seed Preferred Shares will be governed by New York corporate law. Under those provisions, disputes under the purchase agreement will be resolved in arbitration conducted in New York. Further, those provisions may limit your ability to bring class action lawsuits or similarly seek remedy on a class basis.
- You can't easily resell the securities. There are restrictions on how you can resell your securities for the next year. More importantly, there is no market for these securities, and there might never be one. It's unlikely that the company will ever go public or get acquired by a bigger company. That means the money you paid for these securities could be tied up for a long time.

If the next financing the company undertakes provides for more favorable provisions (e.g., registration rights, rights of co-sale, etc.), holders of Series Seed Preferred Stock will be entitled to substantially similar provisions. Further holders who are Major Purchasers under the purchase agreement relating to this offering, will be considered Major Purchasers with respect to provisions in the next financing (to the extent the major purchaser concept is used in such financing). If there is right a first refusal for the transfer of Common Stock by a key holder, and the company does not exercise that right, Major Purchasers will be entitled to exercise that right for a pro-rata share of the key holder's common stock. Major Purchasers are entitled to participation rights granting them the right of first refusal to purchase their pro rata share of new common and preferred shares.

Holders of Series Seed Preferred Stock are subject to a drag-along provision as set forth in the Purchase Agreement, pursuant to which, and subject to certain exemptions, each holder of shares of the company agrees that, in the event the company's Board, and a majority of both (i) the holders of the company's Common Stock then outstanding, and (ii) if the number of shares then outstanding equals or exceeds 25% of the initially issued shares, the holders of a majority Common Stock that is issued and issuable upon conversion of shares of Series Seed Preferred Stock vote in favor of a deemed liquidation event (e.g., merger or sale of the company) and agree to transfer their respective shares, then all holders of shares will vote in favor of the deemed liquidation event and if requested perform any action reasonably required to transfer their shares.

Offering Perks

To encourage participation in this offering and the concurrent offering pursuant to Regulation D, the company is providing specific perks for investors. The company is of the opinion that these perks do not alter the sales price or cost basis of the Series Seed Preferred Shares in this offering. Rather, the perks are promotional discounts on future purchases of the core service of the company. The perks for this offering are as follows:

What it means to be a minority holder

As an investor in Series Seed Preferred Shares of the company, your rights will be more limited than the rights of the holders of Common Stock who control the company in regards to the corporate actions of the company, including additional issuances of securities, company repurchases of securities, a sale of the company or its significant assets, or company transactions with related parties. Even if your securities convert to Common Stock of the company, investors in this offering will hold minority interests, potentially with rights less than those of other investors, and will have limited influence on the corporate actions of the company.

Dilution

The investor's stake in a company could be diluted due to the company issuing additional shares. In other words, when the company issues more shares (or additional equity interests), the percentage of the company that you own will go down, even though the value of the company may go up. You will own a smaller piece of a larger company. This increase in number of shares outstanding could result from a stock offering (such as an initial public offering, another crowdfunding round, a venture capital round, angel investment), employees exercising stock options, or by conversion of certain instruments (e.g. convertible bonds, preferred shares or warrants) into stock.

If the company decides to issue more shares, an investor could experience value dilution, with each share being worth less than before, and control dilution, with the total percentage an investor owns being less than before. There may also be earnings dilution, with a reduction in the amount earned per share (though this typically occurs only if the company offers dividends, and most early stage companies are unlikely to offer dividends, preferring to invest any earnings into the company).

The type of dilution that hurts early-stage investors most occurs when the company sells more shares in a "down round," meaning at a lower valuation than in earlier offerings. An example of how this might occur is as follows (numbers are for illustrative purposes only):

- In June 2014 Jane invests $20,000 for shares that represent 2% of a company valued at $1 million.
- In December the company is doing very well and sells $5 million in shares to venture capitalists on a valuation (before the new investment) of $10 million. Jane now owns only 1.3% of the company but her stake is worth $200,000.
- In June 2015 the company has run into serious problems and in order to stay afloat it raises $1 million at a valuation of only $2 million (the “down round”). Jane now owns only 0.89% of the company and her stake is worth only $26,660.

This type of dilution might also happen upon conversion of convertible notes into shares. Typically, the terms of convertible notes issued by early-stage companies provide that in the event of another round of financing, the holders of the convertible notes get to convert their notes into equity at a “discount” to the price paid by the new investors, i.e., they get more shares than the new investors would for the same price. Additionally, convertible notes may have a “price cap” on the conversion price, which effectively acts as a share price ceiling. Either way, the holders of the convertible notes get more shares for their money than new investors. In the event that the financing is a “down round” the holders of the convertible notes will dilute existing equity holders, and even more than the new investors do, because they get more shares for their money.

If you are making an investment expecting to own a certain percentage of the company or expecting each share to hold a certain amount of value, it’s important to realize how the value of those shares can decrease by actions taken by the company. Dilution can make drastic changes to the value of each share, ownership percentage, voting control, and earnings per share.

FINANCIAL STATEMENTS AND FINANCIAL CONDITION; MATERIAL INDEBTEDNESS

Financial Statements

Our financial statements can be found at Exhibit B to the Form C of which this Offering Memorandum forms a part. DoggyChef, Inc. was formed in January 2016. DoggyChef has been in operation since 2016.

In the following paragraphs, we include a discussion of our financials, which have been reviewed by a US accountant (Independent Accountant's Review Report dated February 22, 2017).

Financial condition

DoggyChef, Inc. began operations in January 2016. DoggyChef began generating revenue in 2016. We are a development stage company and are dependent on additional financing, including this offering, in order to have the funds to develop our products and services. To date, the company has not commenced full scale operations nor generated significant operating revenue.

Results of Operations

The company Independent Accountant's Review Report provides that the company's financials were prepared on a going concern basis, which contemplates the realization of assets and the satisfaction of liabilities in the normal course of business.

For the year ended December 31, 2016, we recorded net revenues of $15,841. To determine the company's gross profits, the costs of net revenue, which include credit card merchant accounts, are deducted. For the year ended December 31, 2016, the company's cost of revenues which primarily consists of acquisition of inventory, totaled $13,676, for a gross profit of $2,165.

The company's operating expenses consist of sales and marketing, general and administrative, and research and development. For the year ended December 31, 2016, the company's total operating expenses were $37,302.

As a result of the foregoing, our net losses for 2016 were $35,137.

Liquidity and Capital Resources

As of December 31, 2016, the company had approximately $4,888 in its checking account and total assets of $5,269.

The continuation of the company's business is dependent upon raising adequate additional financial support, which includes raising additional capital through our fundraising campaign, incurring additional debt through a financial institution, or the sale or merger of the company.

We anticipate that the offering of securities under Regulation CF will expand the company's available cash resources. At the current average burn rate of approximately $3,204 per month, the company will have a runway of approximately 31.2 months.

We have not committed to make any capital expenditures, and in the event we do not raise sufficient funds from this offering, we will defer the capital expenditures we have planned.

Recent Trends; Operations since Date of Financial Statements

As of December 31, 2016, the company generated $15,841 in net revenues with a cost of net revenues of $13,676, for a gross profit of $2,165.

Indebtedness

We currently have no indebtedness.

Recent offerings of securities

At the time of our organization, we issued 85% of the Common Stock to Deborah Goldberg and 15% of the Common Stock to Timothy Hirsch in reliance on Section 4(a)(2) under the Securities Act, for a nominal amount. We have not made any other issuance of securities.

Valuation

We have not undertaken any efforts to produce a valuation of the company.

As discussed in "Dilution" above, the valuation will determine the amount by which the investor's stake is diluted immediately upon investment. An early-stage company typically sells its shares (or grants options over its shares) to its founders and early employees at a very low cash cost, because they are, in effect, putting their "sweat equity" into the company. When the company seeks cash investments from outside investors, like you, the new investors typically pay a much larger sum for their shares than the founders or earlier investors, which means that the cash value of your stake is immediately diluted because each share of the same type is worth the same amount, and you paid more for your shares (or the notes convertible into shares) than earlier investors did for theirs.

There are several ways to value a company, and none of them is perfect and all of them involve a certain amount of guesswork. The same method can produce a different valuation if used by a different person.

Liquidation Value — The amount for which the assets of the company can be sold, minus the liabilities owed, e.g., the assets of a bakery include the cake mixers, ingredients, baking tins, etc. The liabilities of a bakery include the cost of rent or mortgage on the bakery. However, this value does not reflect the potential value of a business, e.g. the value of the secret recipe. The value for most startups lies in their potential, as many early stage companies do not have many assets (they probably need to raise funds through a securities offering in order to purchase some equipment).

Book Value — This is based on analysis of the company's financial statements, usually looking at the company's balance sheet as prepared by its accountants. However, the balance sheet only looks at costs (i.e. what was paid for the asset), and does not consider whether the asset has increased in value over time. In addition, some intangible assets, such as patents, trademarks or trade names, are very valuable but are not usually represented at their market value on the balance sheet.

Earnings Approach — This is based on what the investor will pay (the present value) for what the investor expects to obtain in the future (the future return), taking into account inflation, the lost opportunity to participate in other investments, the risk of not receiving the return. However, predictions of the future are uncertain and valuation of future returns is a best guess.

Different methods of valuation produce a different answer as to what your investment is worth. Typically liquidation value and book value will produce a lower valuation than the earnings approach. However, the earnings approach is also most likely to be risky as it is based on many assumptions about the future, while the liquidation value and book value are much more conservative.

Future investors (including people seeking to acquire the company) may value the company differently. They may use a different valuation method, or different assumptions about the company's business and its market. Different valuations may mean that the value assigned to your investment changes. It frequently happens that when a large institutional investor such as a venture capitalist makes an investment in a company, it values the company at a lower price than the initial investors did. If this happens, the value of the investment will go down.

USE OF PROCEEDS

The identified uses of proceeds are subject to change at the sole discretion of management based on the business needs of the company. The following uses of proceeds are based on the company's current spending forecast and include (all numbers are approximate).

We are seeking to raise a target amount of $100,000 and a maximum oversubscription amount of $750,000 in this offering through Regulation Crowdfunding. The net proceeds of this offering to the issuer, after the expenses of the offering (payment to SeedInvest and legal, accounting and related expenses), will be approximately $83,000 under our target amount and $684,250 under our oversubscription amount. We plan to use the proceeds as follows:

- Marketing – 30.4%
- Kitchen Team (Chefs & Sous-Chefs) – 23.5%
- Management & Interns Costs – 39.7%
- Occupancy Expenses – 5.7%
- Product Development- 0.7%

We do not plan to use the proceeds to pay off debt. In addition, we have no plans to acquire assets at this point.

If we receive funds in our concurrent offering under 506(c) of Regulation D, we may allocate some of those funds to cover some, if not all of the costs, of uses identified above.

INVESTING PROCESS

Making an investment in the company

How does investing work?

When you complete your investment on SeedInvest, your money will be transferred to an escrow account where an independent escrow agent will watch over your investment until it is accepted by the company. Once the company accepts your investment, and certain regulatory procedures are completed, your money will be transferred from the escrow account to the company in exchange for your preferred stock. At that point, you will be an investor in the company.

Regulation CF rules regarding the investment process:

- Investors may cancel an investment commitment until 48 hours prior to the deadline identified in the issuer's offering materials;
- The intermediary will notify investors when the target offering amount has been met;
- Unless the company raises at least the target amount under the Regulation CF offering, it will not close this offering;
- If an issuer reaches a target offering amount prior to the deadline identified in its offering materials, it may close the offering early if it provides notice about the new offering deadline at least five business days prior to such new offering deadline;
- If there is a material change and an investor does not reconfirm his or her investment commitment, the investor's investment commitment will be cancelled and the committed funds will be returned;
- If an issuer does not reach the target offering amount prior to the deadline identified in its offering materials, no securities will be sold in the offering, investment commitments will be cancelled and committed funds will be returned; and
- If an investor does not cancel an investment commitment before the 48-hour period prior to the offering deadline, the funds will be released to the issuer upon closing of the offering and the investor will receive securities in exchange for his or her investment.

What will I need to complete my investment?

To make an investment you will need the following information readily available:

1. Personal information such as your current address and phone number
2. Employment and employer information
3. Net worth and income information
4. Social Security Number or government-issued identification
5. ABA bank routing number and checking account number

What is the difference between preferred equity and a convertible note?

Preferred equity is usually issued to outside investors and carries rights and conditions that are different from that of common stock. For example, preferred equity may include rights that prevent or minimize the effects of dilution or grants special privileges in situations when the company is sold.

A convertible note is a unique form of debt that converts into equity, usually in conjunction with a future financing round. The investor effectively loans money to the company with the expectation that they will receive equity in the company in the future at a discounted price per share when the company raises its next round of financing.

How much can I invest?

An investor is limited in the amount that he or she may invest in a Regulation Crowdfunding offering during any 12-month period:

- If either the annual income or the net worth of the investor is less than $100,000, the investor is limited to the greater of $2,000 or 5% of the lesser of his or her annual income or net worth.
- If the annual income and net worth of the investor are both greater than $100,000, the investor is limited to 10% of the lesser of his or her annual income or net worth, to a maximum of $100,000.

Separately, the company has set a minimum investment amount.

How can I (or the company) cancel my investment?

For offerings made under Regulation Crowdfunding, you may cancel your investment at any time up to 48 hours before a closing occurs or an earlier date set by the company. You will be sent a reminder notification approximately five days before the closing or set date giving you an opportunity to cancel your investment if you had not already done so. Once a closing occurs, and if you have not cancelled your investment, you will receive an email notifying you that your securities have been issued. If you have already funded your investment, let SeedInvest know by emailing cancellations@seedinvest.com. Please include your name, the company’s name, the amount, the investment number, and the date you made your investment.

After my investment

What is my ongoing relationship with the company?

You are an investor in the company, you do own securities after all! But more importantly, companies that have raised money via Regulation Crowdfunding must file information with the SEC and post it on their website on an annual basis. Receiving regular company updates is important to keep investors educated and informed about the progress of the company and their investments. This annual report includes information similar to the company’s initial Form C filing and key information that a company will want to share with its investors to foster a dynamic and healthy relationship.

In certain circumstances a company may terminate its ongoing reporting requirements if:

1. The company becomes a fully-reporting registrant with the SEC
2. The company has filed at least one annual report, but has no more than 300 shareholders of record
3. The company has filed at least three annual reports, and has no more than $10 million in assets
4. The company or another party repurchases or purchases all the securities sold in reliance on Section 4(a)(6) of the Securities Act
5. The company ceases to do business

However, regardless of whether a company has terminated its ongoing reporting requirements per SEC rules, SeedInvest works with all companies on its platform to ensure that investors are provided quarterly updates. These quarterly reports will include information such as: (i) quarterly net sales, (ii) quarterly change in cash and cash on hand, (iii) material updates on the business, (iv) fundraising updates (any plans for next round, current round status, etc.), and (v) any notable press and news.

How do I keep track of this investment?

You can return to SeedInvest at any time to view your portfolio of investment and obtain a summary statement. In addition to monthly account statements, you may also receive periodic updates from the company about its business.

Can I get rid of my securities after buying them?

Securities purchased through a Regulation Crowdfunding offering are not freely transferable for one year after the date of purchase, except in the case where they are transferred:

1. To the company that sold the securities
2. To an accredited investor
3. As part of an offering registered with the SEC (think IPO)
4. To a member of the family of the purchaser or the equivalent, to a trust controlled by the purchaser, to a trust created for the benefit of a member of the family of the purchaser, or in connection with the death or divorce of the purchaser

Regardless, after the one year holding period has expired, you should not plan on being able to readily transfer and/or sell your security. Currently, there is no market or liquidity for these securities and the company does not have any plans to list these securities on an exchange or other secondary market. At some point the company may choose to do so, but until then you should plan to hold your investment for a significant period of time before a “liquidation event” occurs. A “liquidation event” is when the company either lists its securities on an exchange, is acquired, or goes bankrupt.
