The 10% Bonus for StartEngine Shareholders

Toy Overlord Inc. will offer 10% additional bonus shares for all investments that are committed by StartEngine Crowdfunding Inc. shareholders who invested over $1,000 or made at least two investments in StartEngine's own offerings.

This means eligible StartEngine shareholders will receive a 10% bonus for any shares they purchase in this offering. For example, if you buy 1,000 shares of Common Stock at $0.63 / share, you will receive 100 bonus Common Stock, meaning you'll own 1,100 shares for $630. Fractional shares will not be distributed and share bonuses will be determined by rounding down to the nearest whole share.

This 10% Bonus is only valid for one year from the time StartEngine Crowdfunding Inc. investors receive their countersigned StartEngine Crowdfunding Inc. subscription agreement, unless their eligibility period has been extended through additional subsequent investments in StartEngine's own offerings.

Investors eligible for this bonus will also have priority if they are on a waitlist to invest and the company that surpasses its maximum funding goal. They will have the first opportunity to invest should room in the offering become available if prior investments are cancelled or fail.

Investors will only receive a single bonus, which will be the highest bonus rate they are eligible for.

The Company and its Business

Company Overview

Megalopolis is a quickly rising collectible toys brand with both an online and brick-and-mortar presence, as well as a mobile app for Android and iOS. In addition to our co-branded exclusives and proprietary product lines, Megalopolis sells licensed collectibles for huge fandoms like DC, Marvel, Transformers and WWE (to name only a few). These licensed items include largely import and rare collectibles not found at mass retail.

Our customers are largely 25-45 (Millennial and Gen X) & male, attend or follow Comic Con, are tech-savvy (80% of our traffic is mobile), and are collector "completists" who buy whole runs of action figures instead of just one or two. About 30% of our orders are international, with the highest concentration coming from Mexico, Canada, Spain, France, Australia, Brazil and Japan.

The market segment we occupy is lucrative--occupying roughly 10% ($1.9 bil.) of the global toys & games market¹ -- but under-served, as current the top three e-commerce collectibles companies combined net only about $160 million per year²⁻⁴.

We are galvanizing the disparate threads of the collector community that have no current home base. Megalopolis builds its own meta-fandom by nailing what its competitors miss -- truly memorable branding (including a mascot and cast of characters that have their own content and merchandise), a seamless buying experience across platforms, and genuine value.

The long-term vision (and long-term growth driver) for Megalopolis is to grow several key appendages to its core business. These include a subscription media streaming platform -- available as an upgrade to Megalopolis Mobile -- which will include content from current media partners like Pixel Dan & Shartimus Prime, as well as new original series and content. It also includes VR development for games and virtual conventions, and monetizing proprietary brands & characters through licensor deals.

Having eclipsed our revenue total for 2018 within 5 months this year (by May 2019), we believe Megalopolis is on a growth trajectory that only shows signs of acceleration on the horizon.

Competitors and Industry

Entertainment Earth - Entertainment Earth is the biggest company on this list in terms of total revenue, but its primary business is distribution (it is Hasbro's #1 distributor--Target is a client). It can only make product available directly to the consumer after its distribution orders have been filled, making its retail business less nimble and more of an afterthought.

Bigbadtoystore - Megalopolis' main head-to-head competitor. In business since 1999, but site and presentation remain dated. Extensive selection, but sometimes knocked for "collector-grade" shipping upcharge (mandatory $4 if you don't want your packaging smashed), cancelled pre-orders & slow shipping.

Toywiz - Less of a collectibles specialty entrant than the other two. Toywiz carries kids toys, gaming supplies and other market-adjacent goods. They are known to hike prices above MSRP in an effort to be "the last place" to have something when it sells out elsewhere. Their model relies on speculation and they lack a dedicated customer base.

Common points: Lacking in branding, user-friendliness (no mobile apps), and customer service

Current Stage and Roadmap

Megalopolis is in the seed stage of its development, having raised only pre-seed debt and entering its first equity round. We have ample cap space to raise the capital needed to continue fueling the growth of our business. The $1.07 Million we raise on Start Engine will catalyze growth through the end of 2020. In this span we will build a new custom engine for our web and mobile platforms capable of handling our future developments, as well as expand our proprietary and exclusive product offerings and push the Megalopolis brand far ahead.

We plan to launch a Series A in 2021 to fund the development and deployment of our VR platforms, subscription streaming platform & licensor program, and to continue growing the core business indefinitely.

Risk Factors

The SEC requires the company to identify risks that are specific to its business and its financial condition. The company is still subject to all the same risks that all companies in its business, and all companies in the economy, are exposed to. These include risks relating to economic downturns, political and economic events and technological developments (such as hacking and the ability to prevent hacking). Additionally, early-stage companies are inherently more risky than more developed companies. You should consider general risks as well as specific risks when deciding whether to invest.

These are the risks that relate to the Company:

Uncertain Risk

An investment in Toy Overlord Inc (also referred to as “we”, “us”, “our”, or “Company”) -- as with any other business -- involves a degree of risk, and should only be considered by those who could feasibly afford the loss of their investment.

Furthermore, the purchase of any of the common stock should only be undertaken by persons whose financial resources are sufficient to enable them to indefinitely retain an illiquid investment. Each investor in Toy Overlord Inc should consider all of the information provided to such potential investor regarding the Company as well as the following risk factors, in addition to the other information listed in the Company’s Form C. The following risk factors are not intended, and shall not be deemed to be, a complete description of the commercial and other risks inherent in the investment in the Company.

Our business projections are only projections

There can be no assurance that Megalopolis will meet its projections. Though these projections are rooted in historical data and demonstrable trends, they are still only predictions of future revenue patterns.

Any valuation at this stage is difficult to assess

The valuation for this offering was determined by past capitalization, as well as current revenue patterns. Our initial (debt) partner received a 15% warrant for $1.25M (a valuation of $8M+). However, our current revenue trend has us at $3M for 2019, for which we feel $5M is an attractive valuation. Unlike listed companies that are valued publicly through market-driven stock prices, the valuation of private companies, especially startups, is difficult to assess and imprecise.

The transferability of the Securities you are buying is limited

Any common stock purchased through this crowdfunding campaign is subject to SEC limitations of transfer. This means that the stock/note that you purchase cannot be resold for a period of one year. The exception to this rule is if you are transferring the stock back to the Company, to an “accredited investor,” as part of an offering registered with the Commission, to a member of your family, trust created for the benefit of your family, or in connection with your death or divorce.

Your investment could be illiquid for a long time

You should be prepared to hold this investment indefinitely. For the 12 months following your investment there will be restrictions on how you can resell the securities you receive. More importantly, there is no established market for these securities. As a result, if you decide to sell these securities in the near future, it may be challenging to find a buyer.

We may not have enough capital as needed and may be required to raise more capital.

We anticipate needing access to credit in order to support our working capital requirements as we grow. Although interest rates are low, it is still a difficult environment for obtaining credit on favorable terms. If we cannot obtain credit when we need it, we could be forced to raise additional equity capital. Issuing more equity may require bringing on additional investors. Securing these additional investors would lower your ownership percentage (though it may still increase the overall value of the shares).

Terms of subsequent financings may adversely impact your investment

We will likely need to engage in common equity, debt, or preferred stock financings in the future, which may reduce the value of your investment in the Common Stock. Preferred stock could be issued in series from time to time with such designation, rights, preferences, and limitations as needed to raise capital. The terms of preferred stock could be more advantageous to those investors than to the holders of Common Stock.

Management Discretion as to Use of Proceeds

Our success will be substantially dependent upon the discretion and judgment of our management team with respect to the application and allocation of the proceeds of this Offering. The use of proceeds described below is an estimate based on our current business plan. We, however, may find it necessary or advisable to re-allocate portions of the net proceeds reserved for one category to another, and we will have broad discretion in doing so.

Projections: Forward Looking Information

Any projections or forward looking statements regarding our anticipated financial or operational performance, though based on extensive data and research, are not guaranteed. These projections will be based on assumptions which management believes are reasonable based on patterns of events. Some assumptions invariably will not materialize due to unanticipated events and circumstances beyond management's control. Therefore, actual results of operations will vary from such projections, and such variances may be material. Any projected results cannot be guaranteed.

Minority Holder; Securities with Voting Rights

The Common Stock that an investor is buying has voting rights attached to them. However, you will be part of the minority shareholders of the Company and therefore will have a limited ability to influence management's decisions on how to run the business. You are trusting in management discretion in making good business decisions that will grow your investments. Furthermore, in the event of a liquidation of our company, you will only be paid out if there is any cash remaining after all of the creditors of our company have been paid out.

You are trusting that management will make the best decision for the company

You are trusting in management discretion. You are buying common stock as a minority holder, and therefore must trust the management of the Company to make good business decisions that grow your investment.

Our new product could fail to achieve the sales projections we expected

Our growth projections are based on an assumption that with an increased advertising and marketing budget our products will be able to gain traction in the marketplace at a faster rate than our current products have. It is possible that our new products will fail to gain market acceptance for any number of reasons. If the new products fail to achieve significant sales and acceptance in the marketplace, this could materially and adversely impact the value of your investment.

We are an early stage company and have not yet generated any profits

Toy Overlord inc was formed on September 27, 2017. Accordingly, the Company has a finite history upon which an evaluation of its performance and future prospects can be made. Our current and proposed operations are subject to all business risks associated with new enterprises. These include likely fluctuations in operating results as the Company manages its growth. We will only be able to pay dividends on any shares once our directors determine that we are financially able to do so. Toy Overlord Inc has incurred a net loss, but increasing revenues generated since inception.

The loss of one or more of our key personnel, or our failure to attract and retain other highly qualified personnel in the future, could harm our business

To be successful, the Company requires capable people to run its day to day operations. As the Company grows, it will need to attract and hire additional employees in sales, marketing, design, development, operations, finance, legal, human resources and other areas. Depending on the economic environment and the Company's performance, we may not be able to locate or attract qualified individuals for such positions when we need them. We may also make hiring mistakes, which can be costly in terms of resources spent in recruiting, hiring and investing in the incorrect individual and in the time delay in locating the right employee fit. If we are unable to attract, hire and retain the right talent or make too many hiring mistakes, it is likely our business will suffer from not having the right employees in the right positions at the right time. This would likely adversely impact the value of your investment.

We rely on third parties to provide services essential to the success of our business

We rely on third parties to provide a variety of essential business functions for us, including manufacturing, accounting, legal work, public relations, and distribution. It is possible that some of these third parties will fail to perform their services or will perform them in an unacceptable manner. It is possible that we will experience delays, defects, errors, or other problems with their work that will materially impact our operations. A disruption in these key or other suppliers' operations could materially and adversely affect our business. As a result, your investment could be adversely impacted by our reliance on third parties and their performance.

This offering involves “rolling closings,” which may mean that earlier investors may not have the benefit of information that later investors have.

Once we meet our target amount for this offering, we may request that StartEngine instruct the escrow agent to disburse offering funds to us. At that point, investors whose subscription agreements have been accepted will become our investors. All early-stage companies are subject to a number of risks and uncertainties, and it is not uncommon for material changes to be made to the offering terms, or to companies' businesses, plans or prospects, sometimes on short notice. When such changes happen during the course of an offering, we must file an amended to our Form C with the SEC, and investors whose subscriptions have not yet been accepted will have the right to withdraw their subscriptions and get their money back. Investors whose subscriptions have already been accepted, however, will already be our investors and will have no such right.

Deadline Feasibility Risk

The technological developments proposed herein may prove too costly to implement by 2022 as we've proposed. In promoting cash sustainability, we may choose to delay the deployment and scaling of technical instruments like VR. Other deadlines and benchmarks may too be forestalled if the company's fiduciary health so requires.

Product Competition Risk

Much of Megalopolis' product catalog can be purchased from other vendors. In these instances, Megalopolis profits from branding and perks more than exclusivity. Still, other retailers carrying the same goods creates risk of audience diversion.

Wholesale Prediction Risk

We do not always have the benefit of customer pre-order totals to help with our wholesale ordering. In these instances, we must place orders for upcoming product based on our industry knowledge and company sales patterns. This includes some guesswork and can produce ordering overages that may lead to losses.

Ownership and Capital Structure; Rights of the Securities

Ownership

The following table sets forth information regarding beneficial ownership of the company's holders of 20% or more of any class of voting securities as of the date of this Offering Statement filing.

Discount Rate: %

Valuation Cap: None

Conversion Trigger: Warrant execution price ($100)

Material Rights

In the event of liquidation, Black Oak would receive proceeds to cover the cost of the funds they loaned to Megalopolis.

Black Oak typically sells its warrant when a company is acquired but can retain it until they are paid.

What it means to be a minority holder

As a minority holder of common stock of the company, you will have limited rights in regards to the corporate actions of the company, including additional issuances of securities, company repurchases of securities, a sale of the company or its significant assets, or company transactions with related parties. Further, investors in this offering may have rights less than those of other investors, and will have limited influence on the corporate actions of the company.

Dilution

Investors should understand the potential for dilution. The investor's stake in a company could be diluted due to the company issuing additional shares. In other words, when the company issues more shares, the percentage of the company that you own will go down, even though the value of the company may go up. You will own a smaller piece of a larger company. This increase in number of shares outstanding could result from a stock offering (such as an initial public offering, another crowdfunding round, a venture capital round, angel investment), employees exercising stock options, or by conversion of certain instruments (e.g. convertible bonds, preferred shares or warrants) into stock. If the company decides to issue more shares, an investor could experience value dilution, with each share being worth less than before, and control dilution, with the total percentage an investor owns being less than before. There may also be earnings dilution, with a reduction in the amount earned per share (though this typically occurs only if the company offers dividends, and most early stage companies are unlikely to offer dividends, preferring to invest any earnings into the company).

Transferability of securities

For a year, the securities can only be resold:

- In an IPO;
- To the company;
- To an accredited investor; and
- To a member of the family of the purchaser or the equivalent, to a trust controlled by the purchaser, to a trust created for the benefit of a member of the family of the purchaser or the equivalent, or in connection with the death or divorce of the purchaser or other similar circumstance.

Financial Condition and Results of Operations

Financial Condition

You should read the following discussion and analysis of our financial condition and results of our operations together with our financial statements and related notes appearing at the end of this Offering Memorandum. This discussion contains forward-looking statements reflecting our current expectations that involve risks and uncertainties. Actual results and the timing of events may differ materially from those contained in these forward-looking statements due to a number of factors, including those discussed in the section entitled “Risk Factors” and elsewhere in this Offering Memorandum.

Results of Operations

Circumstances which led to the performance of financial statements:

2018 was (for all intents and purposes) our first operating year. Our loss position is a reflection of our having invested debt capital into growth and infrastructure. It is more of an investment than true operational loss.

We invested a great deal of our capital into customer acquisition in 2018, spending roughly $500,000 on advertising. This number encompasses PPC ads on Facebook and Google, as well as promotional product items (including Toy Overlord pack-ins), placements on industry blogs, and more. We've seen the fruits of these efforts come to bear in 2019, as our customer repeat rate has risen to over 40%.

Other sunk and front-loaded costs from our first year of operation include the build-out of our retail and warehouse location (roughly $120,000), customization for our web site ($20,000) and the purchase of furniture/fixtures ($30,000).

Still, we finished the year with over $100,000 in the bank and over $500,000 worth of inventory. And, thanks to our leasehold improvements, we now also enjoy the benefits of having a brand new retail showroom within our distribution center that costs little-to-no additional overhead to run but produces a surprising amount of revenue (nearly $287,000 since Aug. 2018).

In fact, all of our 2018 investments that read as sizeable year-one losses have produced huge gains in 2019. We have gone from $750,000 (roughly) total revenue in 2018 to $1,900,000 YTD in 2019.

Our progress could have been even more dramatic with better financial resources. Our senior lender (Black Oak) helped us tremendously out of the gate but had some hiccups with the tail-end installments of our deal, forcing us to take short-term deals to make up the difference (sales of receivables). We were still able to grow from this money and service the debt, but operations could be choppy at times.

Some of the bumpiness from 2018 has been evident in 2019 as well, due to similar factors. Undercapitalization has kept us from crossing the profitability threshold. We often have to let up on ordering, advertising, etc., just as a clear path to break-even sales presents itself. It also has led to impromptu sales on a number of occasions in order to accrue more working capital, which (obviously) cuts into margins and hurts the bottom line.

We are on pace to post a smaller loss in 2019 than 2018 (roughly $800k-$900k) by a large margin, despite growing sales exponentially. These losses are also inflated by expenses characteristic of early-stage companies, as with 2018's losses. Spending on advertising has dipped to $260k YTD, but web development has increased to $65k (mobile app), accounting & professional fees have more than doubled, and travel costs have increased due to an increase in networking opportunities.

Overall, our growth and fine-tuning over the course of the last two years have put us in a prime position to raise equity. We've made enormous strides in spite of numerous operational challenges, and have done it without having to sacrifice ownership in the company.

With proper operating capital, we can rapidly push over the profitability hump, instead of slowly decreasing losses. 2020 figures to be a profitable year on our current trajectory. With no margin slashing, no bottlenecks, and no interruptions, we have an excellent opportunity to surpass our benchmark of $5M, which would net to us over a million dollars of profit.

Historical results and cash flows:

Investors should expect cash to start to accrue, rather than burn. It will take about a quarter, but having additional resources will enable us to make the adjustments we need to become profitable for the long haul.

Liquidity and Capital Resources

What capital resources are currently available to the Company? (Cash on hand, existing lines of credit, shareholder loans, etc...)

Cash on hand - Varies with product cycles. Usually around 20k

Net-30 LOC with EE Distribution (200k) - Roughly 60% of our product

Net-30 LOC with Boss Fight Studio (Open) - Our exclusive partner

How do the funds of this campaign factor into your financial resources? (Are these funds critical to your company operations? Or do you have other funds or capital resources available?)

These funds are crucial to the continued growth of the company. Our capital resources are finite and we have mostly operated on revenue this year. But they are not critical to its operations.

Are the funds from this campaign necessary to the viability of the company? (Of the total funds that your company has, how much of that will be made up of funds raised from the crowdfunding campaign?)

They are not necessary to the viability of the company. The majority of our residual funds would be from this (75%) campaign, but only temporarily. We will use the raise to kickstart profits and additional fundraising efforts, building a plentiful cash reserve.

How long will you be able to operate the company if you raise your minimum? What expenses is this estimate based on?

Minimum: 3 Months - With our current sales trend and resources, we could apply the $10,000 to our schedule of operations and run for about three months.

This is based on the idea that $10,000 invested into the right operational vehicle (i.e. targeted FB ads) produces a multiple that can be reused.

How long will you be able to operate the company if you raise your maximum funding goal?

Maximum: 2 Years - The amount is about a year's worth of operating expenses (almost exactly). Even if we ran at a deficit every month, we would be covered for an entire year. Two years is an appropriate mark due to our profitability forecast and goal to raise Series A by 2021.

Are there any additional future sources of capital available to your company? (Required capital contributions, lines of credit, contemplated future capital raises, etc...)

We plan to raise another round on StartEngine or a private round. This will likely be 2020 or 2021.

Valuation

Pre-Money Valuation: $4,961,250.00

Valuation Details:

Methodology: The company has tremendous upside and has experienced over 2x revenue growth between '18-19. To-date, all issued shares have been priced at fair (e-commerce) market value - using twice-revenue to denote fair market value. For this offering, shares will be offered at slightly less than twice-revenue for 2019 (we project 2.7M-3.1M for 2019).

We priced the valuation for the offering at roughly $5M. Since it is our first equity raise, we want to provide additional value to our prospective shareholders, as they will be the first to buy shares in the company.

Pre-Money Valuation:

$4,961,250.00

Issued shares: 7,875,000

Price Per Share: 0.63

These figures were actually determined prior to effecting the repurchase of Brady Hansen's remaining shares. We now have 7,750,000 outstanding shares. However, this creates no substantive change in the valuation (the price dips by about $80k). The original valuation is still more than fair.

Notes to Financial Statements
For the Year Ended December 31, 2018 and the Period from
September 26, 2017 (inception) to December 31, 2017

Note 1 – ORGANIZATION AND SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Organization

Toy Overlord, Inc. dba Megalopolis Toys ("the Company") is a Delaware corporation formed on September 26, 2017 with operations consisting of sales of collectibles through online sales and its brick and mortar location. The Company maintains its principal office, retail location, and distribution center in South Salt Lake, Utah and sells to customers throughout the United States.

Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

Use of Estimates

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States ("U.S. GAAP") requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the reporting period. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

Cash and Cash Equivalents

For purposes of the statement of cash flows, the Company considers all highly liquid instruments purchased with a maturity of three months or less to be cash equivalents.

Inventories

Inventories are valued at the lower of cost, determined on a first-in, first-out method, or net realizable value. Net realizable value is the estimated selling price in the ordinary course of business, less reasonably predictable costs of completion, disposal, and transportation. We review inventories on hand at least monthly and record provisions for estimated excess, slow moving and obsolete inventory, as well as inventory with a carrying value in excess of net realizable value.

Property and Equipment

Property and equipment is stated at cost. Maintenance and repairs of property and equipment are charged to operations as incurred. Leasehold improvements are amortized over the lesser of the base term of the lease or estimated life of the leasehold improvements. Depreciation is computed using the straight-line method over estimated useful lives as follows:

Furniture and fixtures	5 years
Leasehold improvements	5 years

Depreciation expense for the year ending December 31, 2018 and 2017 were $11,869 and $-0-, respectively.

Website development costs

The Company capitalizes certain external and internal costs, incurred in connection with the development of its website. These costs are capitalized beginning when the Company has entered the application development stage and cease when the project is substantially complete and is ready for its intended use. The website development costs are amortized using the straight-line method over the estimated useful life of three years. These capitalized costs and related amortization are included in intangible assets.

Long-lived assets

We periodically review the carrying amount of our depreciable long-lived assets for impairment. An asset is considered impaired when estimated future cash flows are less than the carrying amount of the asset. In the event the carrying amount of such asset is not considered recoverable, the asset is adjusted to its fair value. Fair value is generally determined based on discounted future cash flow.

Note 1 – ORGANIZATION AND SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES - CONTINUED

Revenue Recognition

The Company adopted ASC 606 effective January 1, 2018 using the modified retrospective method which would require a cumulative effect adjustment for initially applying the new revenue standard as an adjustment to the opening balance of retained earnings and the comparative information would not require to be restated and continue to be reported under the accounting standards in effect for those periods.

Based on the Company's analysis, the Company did not identify a cumulative effect adjustment for initially applying the new revenue standard. The Company principally generates revenue through providing products.

We sell our products through a combination of a direct sales from the Company's physical location in South Salt Lake, independent sales representatives in international markets, and sales through our website and Amazon. Revenue is recognized when a customer obtains control of promised goods based on the consideration we expect to receive in exchange for these goods. This core principle is achieved through the following steps:

Identify the contract with the customer. A contract with a customer exists when (i) we enter into an enforceable contract with a customer that defines each party's rights regarding the goods to be transferred and identifies the payment terms related to these goods, (ii) the contract has commercial substance and, (iii) we determine that collection of substantially all consideration for services that are transferred is probable based on the customer's intent and ability to pay the promised consideration. We do not have significant costs to obtain contracts with customers.

Identify the performance obligations in the contract. Generally, our contracts with customers do not include multiple performance obligations to be completed over a period of time. Our performance obligations generally relate to delivering single-use products to a customer, subject to the shipping terms of the contract. We have a limited return policy, under which we typically accept returns and provide refunds. We do not have significant returns.

Determine the transaction price. Payment by the customer is due under customary fixed payment terms, and we evaluate if collectability is probable. None of our contracts as of December 31, 2018 contained a significant financing component. Revenue is recorded at the net sales price, which includes estimates of variable consideration such as product returns, rebates, discounts, and other adjustments. The estimates of variable consideration are based on historical payment experience, historical and projected sales data, and current contract terms. Variable consideration is included in revenue only to the extent that it is probable that a significant reversal of the revenue recognized will not occur when the uncertainty associated with the variable consideration is subsequently resolved. Taxes collected from customers relating to product sales and remitted to governmental authorities are excluded from revenues.

Allocate the transaction price to performance obligations in the contract. We typically do not have multiple performance obligations in our contracts with customers. As such, we generally recognize revenue upon transfer of the product to the customer's control at contractually stated pricing.

Recognize revenue when or as we satisfy a performance obligation. We generally satisfy performance obligations at a point in time upon shipment, in accordance with the terms of each contract with the customer. We do not have significant service revenue.

Reserves are recorded as a reduction in net sales and are not considered material to our statements of operations for the year ended December 31, 2018 and the period from September 26, 2017 (inception) to December 31, 2017.

Cost of goods sold

The Company includes product costs, shipping and handling expense, production-related depreciation expense and product license agreement expense in cost of goods sold.

Note 1 – ORGANIZATION AND SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES - CONTINUED

Research and Development

Research and development costs are expensed as incurred.

Stock based compensation

The Company recognizes compensation expense for stock-based awards issued to employees in recognition of their services and efforts for the Company. These awards were issued in the form of common stock at fair value.

Distinguishment of Liabilities from Equity

The Company relies on the guidance provided by ASC Topic 480, Distinguishing Liabilities from Equity, to classify certain redeemable and/or convertible instruments. The Company first determines whether a financial instrument should be classified as a liability. The Company will determine the liability classification if the financial instrument is mandatorily redeemable, or if the financial instrument, other than outstanding shares, embodies a conditional obligation that the Company must or may settle by issuing a variable number of its equity shares.

Once the Company determines that a financial instrument should not be classified as a liability, the Company determines whether the financial instrument should be presented between the liability section and the equity section of the balance sheet ("temporary equity"). The Company will determine temporary equity classification if the redemption of the financial instrument is outside the control of the Company (i.e. at the option of the holder). Otherwise, the Company accounts for the financial instrument as permanent equity.

Initial Measurement-The Company records its financial instruments classified as liability, temporary equity or permanent equity at issuance at fair value.

Subsequent Measurement - Financial instruments classified as liabilities-The Company records the fair value of its financial instruments classified as liabilities at each subsequent measurement date. The changes in fair value of its financial instruments classified as liabilities are recorded as other expense/income.

Income Taxes

The Company accounts for income taxes in accordance with Accounting Standards Codification Topic 740, Income Taxes ("Topic 740"), which requires the recognition of deferred tax liabilities and assets at currently enacted tax rates for the expected future tax consequences of events that have been included in the financial statements or tax returns. A valuation allowance is recognized to reduce the net deferred tax asset to an amount that is more likely than not to be realized. Topic 740 provides guidance on the accounting for uncertainty in income taxes recognized in a company's financial statements. Topic 740 requires a company to determine whether it is more likely than not that a tax position will be sustained upon examination based upon the technical merits of the position. If the more likely-than-not threshold is met, a company must measure the tax position to determine the amount to recognize in the financial statements.

The Company includes interest and penalties arising from the underpayment of income taxes in the statements of operations in the provision for income taxes. As of December 31, 2018, and 2017, the Company had no accrued interest or penalties related to uncertain tax positions. The Company files an income tax return in the U.S. federal jurisdiction and the state of California.

Advertising

Advertising costs are expensed as incurred and included in general and administrative expenses. Advertising expenses amounted to $501,943 and $-0- for the years ended December 31, 2018 and 2017 respectively.

Concentration of Credit Risk

The Company maintains their cash in bank deposit accounts at high credit quality financial institutions. The balances, at times, may exceed federally insured limits. The Company did not have cash in excess of federally insured limits of as of December 31, 2018 and 2017.

Notes to Financial Statements

For the Year Ended December 31, 2018 and the Period from
September 26, 2017 (inception) to December 31, 2017

Note 1 – ORGANIZATION AND SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES - CONTINUED

Fair Value of Financial Instruments

The Company has adopted ASC Statement 820, "Fair Value of Financial Instruments." For purposes of this disclosure, the fair value of a financial instrument is the amount at which the instrument could be exchanged in a current transaction between willing parties, other than in a forced sale or liquidation. A fair value hierarchy is used to prioritize the quality and reliability of the information used to determine fair values. Categorization within the fair value hierarchy is based on the lowest level of input that is significant to the fair value measurement. The fair value hierarchy is defined into the following three categories:

Level 1: Quoted market prices in active markets for identical assets or liabilities.

Level 2: Observable market-based inputs or inputs that are corroborated by market data.

Level 3: Unobservable inputs that are not corroborated by market data.

The carrying value of accounts receivable, deposits and prepaid expenses, accounts payable, and accrued liabilities approximate their fair value because of the short-term nature of these instruments. Management is of the opinion that the Company is not exposed to significant interest of credit risks arising from these financial instruments.

Earnings per share

The computation of basic earnings per share of common stock is based on the weighted average number of shares outstanding during the periods presented. The computation of fully diluted earnings per share includes common stock equivalents outstanding at the balance sheet date. The Company's common stock equivalents were not included in the loss per share computation because their inclusion would be anti-dilutive. The Company had common stock equivalents consisting of warrants of 1,892,308 and 0 at December 31, 2018 and 2017, respectively.

Contingencies

Certain conditions may exist as of the date financial statements are issued, which may result in a loss to the Company, but which will only be resolved when one or more future events occur or fail to occur. The company's management assesses such contingent liabilities, and such assessment inherently involves an exercise of judgment. If the assessment of a contingency indicates that it is probable that a material loss has been incurred and the amount of the liability can be estimated, then the estimated liability would be accrued in the Company's financial statements. If the assessment indicates that a potentially material loss contingency is not probable but is reasonably possible, or is probable but cannot be estimated, then the nature of the contingent liability, together with an estimate of the range of possible loss if determinable and material, would be disclosed.

Liquidity and Going Concern

Historically, the Company has incurred net losses and negative cash flows from operations. As of December 31, 2018, the Company had an accumulated deficit of $1,720,502 and total stockholders' deficit of $1,669,864. At December 31, 2018, the Company had current assets of $622,372 including cash of $116,772, and current liabilities of $1,218,831, resulting in negative working capital of $1,841,203. For 2018, the Company reported a net loss of $1,698,243 and net cash used by operating activities of $1,475,971. Management believes that based on its operating plan, the projected sales for 2019, combined with funds available from its working capital will be sufficient to fund operations for the next twelve months. However, there can be no assurance that operations and operating cash flows will continue at the current levels or improve in the near future. Whether, and when, the Company can attain profitability and positive cash flows from operations is uncertain. The Company is also uncertain whether it can raise additional capital. These uncertainties cast significant doubt upon the Company's ability to continue as a going concern. Our financial statements have been prepared on a going concern basis, which assumes the realization of assets and liquidation of liabilities in the normal course of operations. The financial statements do not include any adjustments relating to the recoverability or classification of recorded asset amounts or the amounts or classification of liabilities should we be unable to continue as a going concern.

Based on the available objective evidence, management believes it is more likely than not that the net deferred tax assets of the Company will not be fully realizable for the year ended December 31, 2018 and the period from September 26, 2017 (inception) to December 31, 2017. Accordingly, management had applied a full valuation allowance against net deferred tax assets as of December 31, 2018 and 2017.

The valuation allowance increased by approximately $356,734 and increased approximately $4,674 during the year ended December 31, 2018 and the period from September 26, 2017 (inception) to December 31, 2017.

On December 22, 2017, the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act of 2017 (the “Act”) was signed into law making significant changes to the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (the “Code”). The Act reduces the federal corporate income tax rate from 35% to 21% effective for tax years beginning after December 31, 2017. ASC 470 requires the Company to remeasure the existing net deferred tax asset in the period of enactment. The Act also provides for immediate expensing of 100% or the costs of qualified property that is incurred and placed in service during the period from September 27, 2017 to December 31, 2022. Beginning January 1, 2023, the immediate expensing provision is phased down by 20% per year until it is completely phased out as of January 1, 2027. Additionally, effective January 1, 2018, the Act imposes possible limitations on the deductibility of interest expense. As a result of the provisions of the Act, the Company’s deduction for interest expense could be limited in future years. The effects of other provisions of the Act are not expected to have a material impact on the Company’s financial statements.

Note 9 – COMMITMENTS AND CONTINGENCIES

Operating Leases

The lease includes escalating lease payments of approximately 4% per year which results in a difference between straight line rent and actual payments. Future minimum lease payments for the next five years under the lease above are summarized as follows:

WE'VE FORGED PARTNERSHIPS WITH INDUSTRY-BEST TALENT

Official Fulfillment Partner of Mythic Legions by Four Horsemen

At Megalopolis, we strive to partner only with groups and individuals who produce or promote quality action figures/collectibles that cut no corners. We've assembled an impressive network with some of the most renowned independent talent in the industry.

Four Horsemen Toy Design - H. Eric Mayse, Jim Preziosi, and Eric Treadway started as sculptors with McFarlane Toys during the heyday of "Spawn." They left to form Four Horsemen Studios and contract with Mattel, Hasbro, Super7, and many more. Megalopolis handles fulfillment of Four Horsemen's popular independently-released Mythic Legions toy line.

Boss Fight Studio - Former designers for Hasbro who left to form independent studio. We are an exclusive retailer and strategic partner of Boss Fight, and have a collaborative action-figure release coming later this fall.

WHAT WE DO

We've taken a virtual market place and turned it into a beloved brand

We are primarily an e-commerce company and purveyor of toy collectibles, selling specialty and import collectibles from exclusive manufacturers and distributors. We've married technical innovation with unparalleled customer value, as our loyalty program allows consumers to get free products among other rewards — strengthening our bonds with our customer base.

Our brand is becoming synonymous with quality & efficiency, as well as our offbeat original characters and exclusive products. Our mascot, THE TOY OVERLORD, has no face or fixed identity and can neatly blend into any marketing or product category. In essence, we are building our own fandom that engulfs other toy fandoms.

THE BUSINESS MODEL

Returning customers are the engine of our revenue strategy

The average Megalopolis customer purchases 2-3 times per year. We use our loyalty programs to incentivize these return customers and increase pre-order sales, which allow us to reduce risk and keep prices steady.

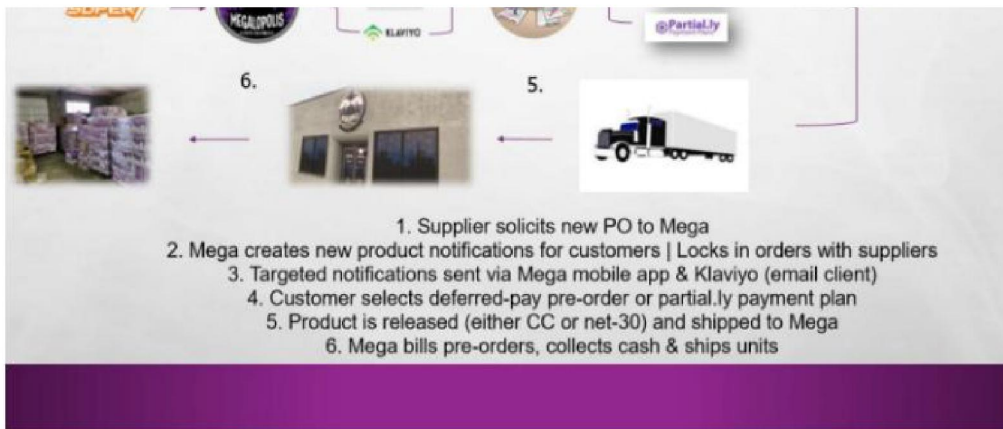

Our average product gross margin is 35%-40%, while co-branded exclusives can raise gross margins to as high as 40%-45%. Manufacturing our own goods promises even greater increases.

Offering payment-plans to our customers through providers partial.ly and Klarna allows collectors to plan frequent purchases or to afford an item that is in a higher price range.

Our key to sustainable revenue is our customer retention (which makes up 75 percent of revenue), and it is a large part of how we are able to market aggressively.

Mechanics of Megalopolis Business Model

HOW WE ARE DIFFERENT

Megalopolis is not just a destination for buying collectibles, it's a lifestyle

Our competitors offer little more than a place to purchase collectibles. They are interchangeable and forgettable. Megalopolis is a destination for collectors who have proven they will come back time and time again. We are a lifestyle brand, and much like the collectibles we sell, we have our own legion of dedicated fans.

Our mobile app provides extensive value and engagement beyond its shopping roots

FAQ

How does Megalopolis make money?

We sell action figures to consumers. Our gross product margin averages 35% and we expect this to increase over time.

How will I make money from investing in Toy Overlord Inc/Megalopolis?

You will be compensated for your shares when either the company goes public or the company is bought by another entity.

How can I be sure that my shares in Toy Overlord Inc will appreciate in value?

We can't make any performance guarantees. We can, however, make a confident prediction that our stock will continue to appreciate based on our performance to-date.

Isn't the toy business seasonal?

Yes, but we aren't (strictly speaking) in the "toy business". Our business maintains consistent sales year-round due to our dedicated and largely adult clientele. Our target audience is not holiday-shopping parents!

Toys R Us declared bankruptcy. What makes you such hot stuff?

We get some variant of this question frequently. To reiterate, Megalopolis is not a "toy store"; toy stores are essentially dead. Brands like Toys R Us and FAO Schwarz were once cultural institutions, but now only exist as IP.

Megalopolis is "post-toy store". It's a toy-collecting lifestyle brand whose spirit lies somewhere between a theme park and Comic Con. Collectibles are the souvenir at the end of the virtual ride. Your entertainment is the brand itself, represented through comics, videos, and more.

Rest in peace to Geoffrey Giraffe.

Why do you ship everything in-house and not through a 3PL company?

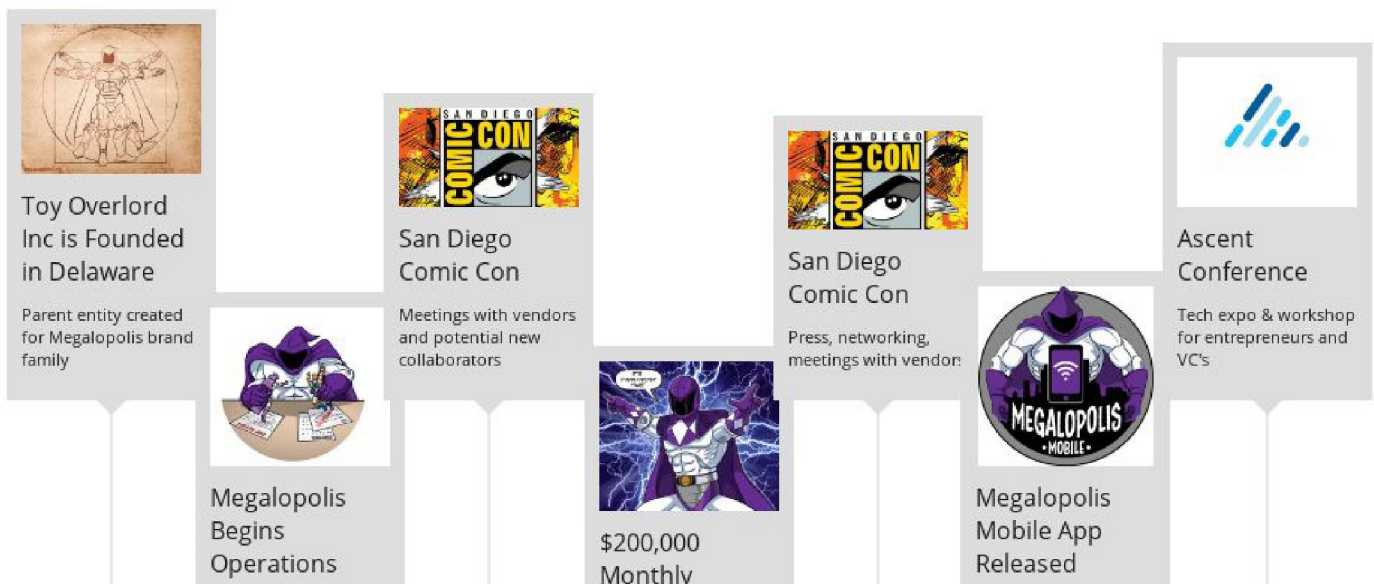

A third-party logistics company (3PL) is not equipped to deal with the intricacies of collectibles -- such as how two Darth Vader action figures with subtle lightsaber variations, but the same SKU number, could be entirely separate items from one another. We are collectors with a lifetime of dealing with these details.

Your core business is working and growing, why add other layers (i.e. Mega Stream, VR)?

Having more than one revenue stream is stabilizing and ensures continued growth. Technology is evolving at a moment's notice. Tech that seems luxurious today can be made commonplace tomorrow, and we want to be at the forefront.

Where do you see Megalopolis in ten years?

Megalopolis is destined to be a cultural institution. We see it going public within ten years and being recognized universally as THE pop-culture fandom brand. Theme parks, breakfast cereals, films, etc., are not out of the picture.

Speaker 1:Troll dolls, the pot belly, the usually nude, plastic dolls known for their signature up-combed, colorful hair, will go down as one of the most iconic and popular toys of all time. Just think back, I'm certain you've all had at least one Troll toy at some point in your lives. They first hit the US in the early 1960s and became a massive success immediately. They've gone in and out of popularity again and again throughout the years, seeing successful periods again in the 1970s and the 1980s, but hit another massive boom in popularity in the 1990s. It was during this boom that many different companies attempted to use the Troll doll concept and marketing it specifically to boys through various lines of action figures. Weird? You bet. But sometimes those weird concepts make for intriguing, wacky, and sometimes even fun toy lines. We're diving into the weird world of Troll themed action figures today on Toysplosion

Speaker 2:Battle Trolls, big-haired dudes with bad attitudes, born to battle.

Speaker 2:We're the Stone Protectors. Our stones of power glow.

Speaker 2:Troll Warriors, fighting for Troll power. Each sold separately with power tattoo.

Speaker 1:So before we get much further, here's a little bit of history on the popular Troll doll.

Speaker 1:The original dolls were created by Danish fishermen, Thomas Dam. the first Troll was made of wood and was a gift for his daughter, and the popularity of that doll amongst her friends ultimately led to him starting his own company, Dam Things, that way he could mass produce the dolls in plastic for retail sale. Soon enough, the dolls were being imported all over the world, including the United States. The dolls were instantly a smash hit. And while Dam had copyright protection for his creation in Denmark, the laws in the US at the time created some problems. Dam registered the design with the US copyright office in 1965, but since the dolls had already been sold in the US as early as 1962, the design was already deemed to be public domain, making the copyright invalid and the design of Trolls free to use. Thus a slew of Troll doll imitations immediately popped up.

Speaker 1:Fast forward to the big resurgence in the 1990s. Because the design in the US was still in the public domain, several toy companies were producing their own versions of the classic Troll doll. This also led to several attempts to market the toys to young boys by using the signature ugly faces and frizzled hair in the more action oriented muscled-up action figure market. It sounds so strange, but you have to understand that Trolls were massively popular at the time, so these toy companies were going to try and ride that wave any way that they could. Hasbro, Tyco, ACE Novelty and more all jumped on the bandwagon by creating their very own action figure versions of those sort of ugly, yet also endearing Troll dolls.

Speaker 1:Troll Force was released in 1992 by company Toys 'N Things. These five and a half inch action figures are a strange amalgamation of a Troll doll and the buffed out barbarian bodies typically associated with Mattel's Masters of the Universe toy line. In fact, the bodies and the weapons in this line of Troll action figures are reused from Sungold's Galaxy Warriors line, a commonplace Masters of the Universe knockoff. These wonderful weirdos are grouped into various categories, many of which are obvious parodies of pop culture icons. The Mighty Heroes give us Mighty Man and the Green Yuck. The Pro Wrestlers group gives us Big T and Mohawk. The Terminator esque future fighters gives us the awesome Metal Man and Android Man. And to round things out, we've got the more generic Jungle Fighter and Desert Patrol soldiers, the Roman and Viking warriors, and the ninjas because you've just always got to have ninjas. While these figures could be found at your local Toys R' Us or Hills department store, they were definitely what you would consider to be budget figures, generally only costing two to $3 and sometimes were even stocked at the local $1 store.

Speaker 1:As mentioned, every single figure has the exact same Galaxy Warriors' body, complete with the sculpted furry shorts and a pair of boots. To make the figures look different, they were all painted with various bright colors and equipped with various accessories. Some work really well, like the ninjas with the real cloth masks covering their oversized Troll heads, but then you have the Incredible Hulk knockoff, known as the Green Yuck, whose purple painted legs can't hide those furry undies and he's clearly wearing boots that just happen to be the exact same color as his skin.

Speaker 1:Your typical Troll dolls details are there, you've got the gem-like sparkly eyes and that fluffy signature hair, but that hair does have some variation depending on the character, buzz cuts and Mohawks help to break up the norm. There are even some variants in the line with some Trolls having the same name but having different colored eyes and hair. It's a weird line of action figures, but we are only getting started.

Speaker 1:1992 also brought us the Troll Warriors. Released by Tyco Applause, Troll Warriors tells the story of the heroic Sven and his Freedom Fighters battling against King Nolf and the evil Troll warriors. While the Troll force figures had much more of a 1980s vibe, despite being released in the '90s, the Troll Warriors felt much more of the times. Each figure stands around five inches tall, features five points of articulation and are brightly colored. This was an era where the toy aisles were dominated by the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles, so many action figures attempted to fit right in. The designs are actually pretty fun and full of personality. For example, Eirich, the marksman, has three eyes. VR the champion is much gruffer with a stronger physique. And I really like Oddvar, the wizard. He's got this great crystal sorcery staff that has a removable battle sword just in case. Each figure also comes with the mark of the Troll, which is just a temporary tattoo featuring an image of the Troll warrior. The packaging touts that this is how you can get powerized with Troll power. Temporary tattoos, you can't get much more 1990s than that.

Speaker 1:Interestingly, Tyco had two Troll lines running at the same time. Troll Warriors was their to attempt attract boys, while Magic Trolls was their more traditional Troll doll line for girls. They even released an animated special on VHS titled Magic Trolls and the Troll Warriors as a way to promote both lines simultaneously.

Speaker 1:And then there's Hasbro and their line of Battle Trolls. They went all in on the attitude with these guys. The advertising made sure to reinforce that these aren't your sister's Trolls. The packaging even contained warnings, giving you important instructions for keeping your battle Troll happy, which includes never being nice to them, never feeding them, and keeping them hidden in a dark, smelly place.

Speaker 1:The figures are much bigger and chunkier than the other Troll action figures we've taken a look at so far. The proportions are much closer to actual Troll dolls. With the only point of articulation being a swivel at the waist, though each figure does come with various weapons. Many of these weapons include a missile that can be fired with the flick of a finger. Although since you can't really pose the figure's arms, the weapons are sometimes always stuck facing the ground, causing the missiles to simply fall out.

Speaker 1: Oh, and here's a fun fact. See, this blaster that comes with Trollbot, it's reused from Bruiser, the Berzerker Baboons of Hasbro's, Bucky O'Hare toy line. Each character was themed in some silly way, a Cyclops, a Ninja, a robot, others were spoofs of pop culture such as Batman here, or wait, his name is Count Trollula. Okay, so I guess he's Dracula and Batman. A Dracula-Batman hybrid. There are even special beasts and vehicle packs that come with bonus re-painted figures. The capture net has a spring-loaded missile that allows you to wrap your foes in a net. And then there's Trollasaurus, a dinosaur with matching Troll hair and an adorable face. Seriously, just, just look at them. Aw.

Speaker 1: Hasbro had plans to keep Battle Trolls going in 1993. New figure prototypes were even shown off in that year's toy fair catalog, showing that they would keep the pop culture spoofs going with battled Trolls that resembled characters like Swamp Thing, the Joker and a Xeno morph from Aliens. But low sales brought an early end to the line, meaning that these proposed figures would never actually go into production.

Speaker 1: And here we are, the Stone Protectors. This is probably the most successful of the Troll-themed action figures, getting a short-lived animated series and even a video game on the super Nintendo. But when I say most successful, that doesn't really mean it was a breakout hit. The Stone Protectors really gave it a solid go, but it still only lasted two waves of figures.

Speaker 1: We spoke a little bit about the dominance of TMNT during this time and how many toy lines tried to cash in on that popularity. Stone Protectors really went for that Ninja Turtles aesthetic. Each figure stands around the five-inch mark and features, bright colors, wacky accessories and squat poses that were all typical for the Ninja Turtles toy line.

Speaker 1: The story goes like this. A terrible rock band from New York city named the Rock detectors came in contact with five magical stones that granted them special skills while also giving them Troll like features for some reason. Each character has their own gimmick, something that has been quite prevalent in all of these Troll lines we've looked at. Cornelius, the leader, is the samurai, Chester is the pro wrestler, Clifford is a rock climber, Angus is a soldier, and Maxwell is our '90s extreme sports rollerblader. Together, these weirdos must protect the magical stones from the evil Zok and Zink.

Speaker 1: The stones embedded in the chests of each figure have their own action features. By rotating the right arm of the figure, the stone flashes generated by a flint module inside the torso, creating a spark. We even got a few wacky vehicles in the line, with my personal favorite being the antiaircraft barbecue, which is a modified grill that your Stone Protectors can sit at and launch steaks at their enemies. Delicious.

Speaker 1: The second wave of action figures were sports themed, giving us variants of the main good guys and also giving us two new bad guys to add to the collection. However, this would mark the end of the Stone Protector series. It's honestly a really well done toy line, but it just could not escape the label of being a cheap knockoff of the much more successful, Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles. Seriously, there was just no toppling that giant during the early '90s. I mean, they even did their own version of the Troll action figure, Game Over Man.

Speaker 1:None of the Troll-turned action figures we took a look at today found much success. Most of these lines only lasted on store shelves for about a year before being canceled. Then in 1994, Congress amended the US copyright laws, which resulted in the copyrights for many foreign works that had been declared public domain now being restored. This included Dam's company, now known as the Troll Company, getting the rights back to the Troll doll by 1996, the design that Charles Dam had originally created and was still marketing to much success outside of the United States. This led to many lawsuits in the coming years, shutting down all of the non Troll company Trolls from being produced by the many different toy companies. They would continue to be sole producers of the Troll dolls in the United States until they finally sold the IP to Dreamworks Animation in 2013.

Speaker 1:So one of the US's all-time most popular toys is shrouded in controversy due to copyright laws. It's a fascinating story and no doubt led to one of the strangest action figure fads in recent memory.

Speaker 1:Hey guys, thank you so much for watching this video. It's a weird topic, but it's one that's always been very interesting to me. And doing the research, it was really cool learning about the history of the Troll dolls itself and all of the crazy copyright stuff going on with it, so I hope you guys enjoyed this episode. I know it's a bit of a weird one, but that's kind of exactly what I wanted this show to be. I wanted it to cover all kinds of stuff from the popular to the totally absurd, like Troll action figures. So I really appreciate you guys being here.

Speaker 1:I have to give a very special thanks once again to my supporters on Patreon. All the names you see scrolling on the screen right now go above and beyond just to help me keep this thing going, so thank you guys so very much. It really, really means a lot to me.

Speaker 1:I know that I have not been doing as many of these as I'd like to and I apologize for that, but my plan is to hopefully start rolling with a lot more of this type of content on my channel. So if this is something that you guys like, if this is what you're coming to my channel for, let me hear it. Let me know about it in the comments below because this is a lot more work, but I love it so much more and this is really what I want to dedicate my time to doing. So more of these are coming, I promise.

Speaker 1:As always, hit the subscribe button, all that good stuff. And a special shout out to the sponsor of this video, Megalopolis Toys. Thank you guys so much once again for helping me produce this show. Until next time, my friends.

Video #3:

Pixel Dan:Hey guys, this is Pixel Dan coming to you from the 2017 San Diego Comic Con, and I'm here with Eric Treadaway at the Four Horsemen design booth. How's it going buddy?

Eric Treadaway:It's going great.

Pixel Dan:Going great?

Eric Treadaway:Yeah.

Pixel Dan:Well, you've got some new stuff on display. You got Mythic Legions; you got Power Lord's coming back. So why don't we start there? Why don't we talk about the Power Lords a little bit?

Eric Treadaway:Let's do it.

Pixel Dan:All right. Cool. So it's coming back. You guys had started this before, and now you've got some new stuff on display here. So why don't you go and start by kind of telling us how you guys are approaching this.

Eric Treadaway:Okay. Well, we had a strong start with Power Lords back when we first released it. It had about a year's worth of releases on the figures. Basically we got to the point where we hit a wall with production costs, and it really just wasn't feasible to move forward at that point.

Eric Treadaway:But as time has gone on, and we've made other factory connections, and started working on Mythic Legions, we're in a better spot finally where we think that we can come back with the line, and continue what we started because we love the line, we love the character designs, and you know, we want to finish what we started and can give people a complete collection of these figures.

Pixel Dan:Totally. So are you planning to kind of continue with like the four inch scale like you did before?

Eric Treadaway:Absolutely. It's something we went back and forth with, because we have had several requests for six inch and obviously, you know, the bulk of our business is at six inch scale. But ultimately we decided that, you know, a lot of people had put a lot of money and passion into the line, and we didn't want to betray all of, you know, what had come before. So, you know, six inch is something we could maybe look at down the future if this is successful.

Pixel Dan:Okay.

Eric Treadaway:But, you know, we started something and we really wanted to finish it, and we get a full set of characters in the same scale rather than starting over from scratch again.

Pixel Dan:Got you. That makes sense. Totally. So are you guys are going to maintain the Glyose interchangeable parts with them like they had before?

Eric Treadaway:Most likely not. We're not 100% sure. I still talk to Matt constantly, and he's, it's available if we want to use it. But I think that just through our experience with this line, I don't know that it's necessarily what the driving factor for fans of the line was. I think they loved the character designs, and kind of the cool 80s weird nostalgia of it.

Pixel Dan:Yeah, totally.

Eric Treadaway:It's aligned with the, the character designs are so diverse in size and scale and the sizes of shoulder joints and hip joints and all that. It's not the greatest line for interchangeability. So more than likely not, but we may... The one's that we might look into having some compatibility are on the Power Soldier figures.

Pixel Dan:Okay.

Eric Treadaway:Just so that there may be some interchangeability with existing figures, but that's something that we still have a little bit of looking into to do.

Pixel Dan:Okay, great. What's your plans for rolling these out for sale? Are you going to do like a pre-order system, kind of like with Mythic Legions?

Eric Treadaway:Yes, yes. That's one of the things that we want to do differently, very differently than we did the first time. Because the first time we were doing two figures at a time and trickling it out and trickling it out. Ultimately I think that was frustrating for a lot of people because it was, the pace of the line was moving very slowly.

Pixel Dan:Got you.

Eric Treadaway:So what we want to do here is more of the Mythic Legions approach. We're not going to go through Kickstarter, but it is going to be somewhat of a Kickstarter type sale in that we will have a number that we need to hit with this line.

Pixel Dan:Okay.

Eric Treadaway:So we will set the pre-order. If we don't hit it, we're not going to move forward. It's a very, I think it's a very attainable number, especially based on the number of figures that we're going to roll out in the initial assortment.

Pixel Dan:Okay.

Eric Treadaway:I think the initial assortment's going to be, I believe it's 17 potential figures, but the idea is with this by getting Disguyzor, Sydot, and Raygoth in this first... Well, that's actually the second assortment. But this first new assortment could, that combined with the first two figures, you're halfway through the initial line. Then we can finish that initial lineup in one more pre-order. Maybe two if we do two smaller pre-orders.

Eric Treadaway:But the idea is that, you know, after such a long hiatus, we want people to know that we're serious about this. We want to complete it. So we can do it in two or three pre-orders and make sure that everybody gets a complete lineup. That's why we went ahead and brought out the Arkus as a preview for series three because, just, you know, we're already, you know, moving into the next thing on this.

Pixel Dan:Okay, great. Awesome. Well, it's really exciting stuff seeing Power Lords coming back. So we're very much looking forward to that. But of course you guys are already really, like, cranking through the Mythic Legions line. It seems like you guys have had a lot of success with that. You have a new pre-order that just started right now during the show, right?

Eric Treadaway:Yes. Mythic Legions Coliseum. Yeah, we've been teasing figures for the past couple of weeks, and the pre-order went up last night to coincide with preview night, and that's going to be up for about a month.

Pixel Dan:Okay.

Eric Treadaway: So far we're off to a good start. People seem excited about it. We've got an assortment of the six inch scale figures, and then we've got a new troll scale figure, which is our Cyclops. So we're excited about it.

Pixel Dan: Very cool. Yeah.

Eric Treadaway: We're excited about it. I've just, because it's a cool wave, but also kind of in the same, going back to what we, you know, the issues that we had with Power Lords in the past. The Kickstarter wave which ended in March, because that involves new tooling, and it's so many figures. That's at least a year from when the Kickstarter ended. I don't remember what the date that we had in the Kickstarter was, but it was March or April of next year.

Pixel Dan: Right.

Eric Treadaway: So the idea with this is also so that we can keep some product coming out and keep, you know, make sure that people are getting their Mythic Legions fix.

Pixel Dan: Totally. Yeah. Man, I got to tell you that Cyclops is incredible. Like seeing it in person here. I mean, I love the color choices and everything, but he is just, he is an amazing figure.

Eric Treadaway: We're pretty fond of him ourselves.

Pixel Dan: Yeah.

Eric Treadaway: I mean, it's a giant Cyclops. It's just-

Pixel Dan: I mean, how could you not love it, right?

Eric Treadaway: I mean, it's, I think everybody that's into this type of stuff probably saw a cyclops they loved as a kid. So there's a giant cyclops for you.

Pixel Dan: That's awesome. So talking about the giant figures, you guys are introducing a new scale that's sort of in between the big troll size and the normal, like six inch guys.

Eric Treadaway: Yes. That's at least that for right now, we're calling it our ogre scale.

Pixel Dan: Nice.

Eric Treadaway: Mainly because at least my agenda is to get an ogre into the line. So ogre scale is at least what it is for now. But yeah, it's going to be... They're going to be nine inch tall figures.

Pixel Dan: Nice.

Eric Treadaway: So they are very much right kind of living in that space in between the regular figures and the trolls. Yeah, I mean we're very excited about them. There's a lot of detail on them.

Pixel Dan: Yeah.

Eric Treadaway: We're much like the, any of the figures that we're doing, they'll be multiple heads, multiple releases as time goes on. So there's a lot of characters that we want to do at this larger scale. So this opens up a lot of opportunities for us, and it's... We've always been about as far as the type of lines that we like to do is we like a lot of diversity in the characters, and you know that involves different races of characters, different cultures of, you know, whether they're elvish or they're, you know, more savage barbarians or what have you.

Eric Treadaway:One of the big things that we've always been interested in is, having, you know, little figures, wide figures, tall figures, and it's just another step closer to getting that full range of diverse looking characters in the lineup.

Pixel Dan:Absolutely. So do you guys know you're going to be offering those yet for sale?

Eric Treadaway:It should be a pre-order similar to when we released the trolls.

Pixel Dan:Okay.

Eric Treadaway:We still got some pricing to do and things like that. But we're hoping to maybe release two at a time, maybe three max. One of the things in general that we're trying to do with the line is the, especially after the advent of decay, the Kickstarter wave was as massive as it was. We're trying to keep things a little more steadily paced as we go along, just to give people's wallets a break and just so people can get the figures and enjoy them for a while before the next group comes in or you know, it's not too just overwhelming when you get all these figures at once.

Pixel Dan:Totally. Yeah, I totally understand that. Awesome. Man, you guys got so many cool things over here on display. Was there anything else that we missed or did we cover all the new stuff in there?

Eric Treadaway:I think that's it.

Pixel Dan:I think that is it. Well, you guys are doing a wonderful job. I'm loving the line. It looks like everybody else is really loving it. So congratulations on the success of this line too. I think that's wonderful.

Eric Treadaway:Thank you very much. We appreciate it. I mean we're having a blast with it. It's a dream line for us. So the fact that people are responding well, we couldn't be happier.

Pixel Dan:Excellent. Awesome. Well, Eric, thank you so much for taking the time to walk us through the display here, and there you guys go. A look at what Four Horsemen design has going on right here at the 2017 San Diego Comic Con.

Video #4:

Andrew Franks:Why did we peak so early? We're never going to top this.

Erik Arana:How does it feel having a brick and mortar store?

Andrew Franks:I'm excited about it. It's something we've wanted for a long time, for any number of reasons. It's just cool to have all our stuff out and it's important to see how it all weighs in the store, like in retail.

Erik Arana:Yeah.

Andrew Franks:It gives us a place if people visit retailers and stuff like that, that we can walk them through here and say these are the options you have to put it in a shop and in a store. But then on top of that, I like interacting with people. I like cons, I like talking to people, and selling stuff and everything, so being able to work in the store a couple days a week and stuff, it's kind of a nice break from all that. Kind of taking me back to my roots growing up where I worked retail for decades, put myself through college and everything. So that's all kind of very cool to me to kind of have that back for a few hours a week.

Erik Arana:It's great to see all the product kind of out, isn't it?

Andrew Franks:Yeah, it's so exciting to see that. At a con, you know the space you're getting.

Erik Arana:Yeah.

Andrew Franks:The space you have is the space you have and you've got to work with it. But here we get to kind of give it the space we want to give it.

Speaker 3:So now that you're sort of clearing off that one, what do you think you're going to put on there?

Andrew Franks:Product, just double up some product and stuff on it.

Speaker 3:Cool.

Andrew Franks:I want people to see product walking by.

Speaker 3:Yeah, totally.

Andrew Franks:And right here is going to be perfect for that.

Justin Bell:They can have a smaller [inaudible].

Andrew Franks:I don't know. It's probably worth something.

Video #5:

Speaker 1:...

Speaker 2:... Show dinosaurs. I think it was the boss that was the styracosaurus.

Speaker 3:Hey, what's up you guys? Shartimus Prime here, doing another Marvel action figure review on the ZD Toys Avengers End Game movie's Thanos. Now I don't know if ZD Toys is an official Marvel product seller. I did buy this off of eBay, but if you're trying to get your official Marvel figures you can do so at Megalopolis, City of Collectibles, where you can pick up your Marvel Legends and all kinds of other action figures. They have their daily deals and an awesome rewards points program, so check them out. Link in the description below.

Speaker 3:I'm just a little confused on where the front of the packaging is over here. I did pay a little extra to get packaging with this figure, so I thought this was the front. But anyway, this looks like it's more like the back right over here. I don't understand what any of this says, it looks like some warning stuff, and then on this side get a nice image. I do like that quite a bit. And then on the top it says Avengers End Game, you could hear some stuff rattling around, and then there's nothing at the bottom. So let's get to it and crack this thing open.

Speaker 3:Here's the ZD Toys Thanos figure out of the packaging, and there are definitely some very fun things about this figure. However it does feel cheap, man. I just got to get that out of the way, and it was missing accessories as well. So I knew what I was getting into with this guy, but hey, at the same time I have been having a lot of fun with it. But anyway, let's get a closer look at the accessories that it did come with, and then we'll take a closer look at Thanos.

Speaker 3:So here's looking at the accessories that came with the figure, and some of them I like and some of them I don't like. The one I like the most right here is the double bladed sword. This is really cool. This is the most accurate version, or film-accurate version that I've seen ever. I mean it looks incredible with the gold paint right there in the middle, and I do like the multiple colors of silver that we're seeing, and it's a little pointy but not too pointy or anything.

Speaker 3:So I think that is great. This looks awesome. Comparing it to the Marvel Legends version that came with the Build-a-Figure Thanos, you could see the drastic difference right over here. So this right here is way cooler. I really, really wish that this came with those purple flames that were shown in the product images. Yeah, that's just another disappointing thing.

Speaker 3:You get these two regular relaxed hands, which I actually have the figure posed with the most. You get a right hand for holding the sword, and it just doesn't work out. The plastic is super stiff over here, and separating these fingers to try to pry this handle in here is just super difficult to do, very, very stiff, tough plastic. And the other thing is that this just does not fit onto the ball peg that goes onto the wrist right there.

Speaker 3:So that's also very frustrating, it's just not a shape that'll go in. You really have to Dremel that out to get that to fit, it's not going to fit without some work done to it. So I just move this aside, don't use it at all. You get a regular relaxed hand for this side right here, but you can go ahead and remove this sleeve, which is a little tricky to do, but you could remove that, and then you have the Infinity Gauntlet that you could place right on there.

Speaker 3:And to take a quick look at it, it doesn't look too bad, it's just that the gold is just very faded looking. It's just not as, I don't know, it's just like the quality is just weak on it, you can just tell. You have all the stones right there, sculpted and painted on there, and it doesn't look awful or anything. But there is this thinness to the gold paint on it that's just not very appealing. But again, it doesn't look awful.

Speaker 3:And to put this on you want to make this piece match the pin right over here for that double jointed elbow, and it's just very tricky to get that on there, but you can get it on there and that works out okay. No articulation on the wrist of that at all. I usually just keep this aside, because the main reason why I got this guy is so that I could have an End Game Thanos with a regular left arm without the Infinity Gauntlet. So I'm just going to go ahead and put this together like so.

Speaker 3: And then looking at the helmet, it looks great. I love that we have a Thanos where we could remove the helmet. It's a little askew on this side right here, but for the most part I think it looks really good. So I do like having the helmet. It doesn't come with any interchangeable heads or anything like that. And then I know it's good to have your fiber and everything, but we got floor. Yeah, it's just not even really necessary to have this. This piece is coming off right here and it's not even level, you know what I mean? It has this weird arch going on. So not very excited about this at all, I'm probably just going to put this back in the box. But hey, it has some paint detail to it, no peg sticking out of it or anything like that.

Speaker 1: ...

Speaker 3: So here's looking at the head sculpt, which doesn't look too bad, even though it's very dark purple, much darker purple than we've seen in the movies. So there is that. I mean, just to give you a comparison to the 80 year... Or is it the 10 year anniversary version? You can see how much lighter this one is. And if you want to do a head swap, you can pull that off, but you're not going to really get a whole lot done as far as articulation goes.

Speaker 3: The peg right here just does not match. So you could rest it on there and it just looks a little bit weird, but you can try to mess with that if you'd like. But putting this right back on here, I am bummed out about the helmet rubbing some gold paint onto the head. That's just awful. So that's just really, really disappointing. So I'm bummed out about that. Yeah, that gold paint's just smeared throughout the dome. There's also a crack in the back of his head right over there. So yeah, the quality here is just not high end at all. It just makes you appreciate official releases of figures, because these are just the standards that they look out for.

Speaker 3: And you can see with the helmet on here it does look a whole lot better, and it fits on there nicely. So I do like how the figure looks with the helmet on more so with the helmet off, and looking at the rest of it, it doesn't look too bad, man. I got to say aesthetics-wise I'm liking the gold for the most part throughout on this guy. The skin tone, again, is just too dark, but I get some nice lines sculpted right there in the arms, so that's pretty cool.

Speaker 3: And you get this dark navy blue right there, looking really good. Looking on the back, doesn't look too bad right here. So I'm liking what I'm seeing for the most part, it doesn't look bad, it's just it has some things going on with it. You get these panels right here that can just shift out and move up a little bit, so that's cool, helps with articulation a little bit. This right here is very annoying. Nothing really rubbed against it or anything like that, it's just like that with the gold paint coming apart right there, so that's a bit irksome.

Speaker 3: And one thing to note is, while we're talking about this, that when you move the joints around it looks super gappy. I mean, that's pretty annoying. So you'll see that right here in the knees too. So these super gappy joints, yeah, a little irksome. But that's what I'm getting right here to have this more film- accurate Thanos. No peg holes at the bottom of the feet over there, and then looking at the back one more time, you get your Thanos butt flap and then your Thanos back.

Speaker 3: Now there's some things with the articulation that I like more so than the Hasbro version. But anyway, there's other things that I don't like. Okay, so first off you can't really get the head to move up. It will move down a little bit when you turn the head side to side, it's got that weird swinging side to side so he can't look directly left or right. So that's a little irritating. The shoulders move outward that far, and down just that much. You could rotate forward that much and back pretty far.

Speaker 3: You get a double jointed elbow, and the wrist is on that ball joint so it could turn around and hinge up and down or side to side just a little bit. The diaphragm joint is very weak, it just shifts side to side a little bit. That's actually a lot more movement than we got on the Hasbro version, so at least you have a little bit of that, but I was hoping for more articulation than that. It doesn't really crunch forward, or it just shifts back a little bit, but it just goes right back into place.

Speaker 3: So yeah, and then you get these panels that can shift around and everything. You get a drop down feature with the hips, so that's really cool, I like that. And because these panels move out of the way you can move the leg outward that far, and this panel can move a little bit. It's going to run into it some, but you can move the leg up that much and it'll move back. You get a flap that moves around a little bit for you right over there for the butt.

Speaker 3: There's a little bit of swivel going on right over here, but not an actual thigh cut. You get double jointed knees and you can see that gap right over there is just enormous. And then you can move the ankle down just a little bit. It doesn't really shift up, it's just level, and you can turn it side to side some and it barely has any ankle pivot, but there is just a tiny bit of ankle pivot there.

Speaker 3: Now to measure out this ZD Toys Thanos figure, you can see that he's standing just a little under the eight and a half inch mark. And then for a size comparison, we have our ZD Toys armored Thanos next to the Marvel Legends Build-a-Figure armored Thanos, and these both look actually pretty good when you look at them side by side like this. They're more or less about the same height, this one's standing just a little bit taller, but I am still furiously irked about us being stuck with an Infinity Gauntlet on the left side right over here.

Speaker 3: And I did want to pick up the SH Figuarts version, but the fact that that still has that Infinity Gauntlet on the left side of that figure, it makes me not want to get it. Also, same thing with the Hot Toys armored Thanos. It's like I have an armored Thanos that doesn't have the Infinity Gauntlet there, but yeah, so I'm just really not excited about picking up any more Thanos figures that are not film-accurate.

Speaker 3: It's probably worth noting that I don't think Thanos had so much navy blue going on, so I'm not sure that that's really film-accurate. I think he had a lot more of the gold color throughout.

Speaker 3: And then here's our ZD Toys armored Thanos next to the Marvel Legends Worthy Cap figure from End Game. And I had a lot of fun posing these two around together, I think the height difference between these two looks really good. And then here's Thanos next to your average 6:1 scale figure. We have the Marvel Legends big time bad-ass Spider-Man. You don't need Mjölnir to beat Thanos. I don't have to be worthy, I can just move over here, or move over here, and move over here. There he goes, really wasn't that hard.

Speaker 3: So saying I have mixed feelings about this figure is quite an understatement, because I am seriously torn. I just find it very difficult to get this guy into very fun poses. However I do like the way it looks. Just the fact that it looks more screen accurate just makes it a lot more fun for me to pose around with my other Avengers End Game figures.

Speaker 3: So it makes me happy to have it, I don't want to just sell this thing off now or anything. It's like I still like it, I want to have it on my display, kind of. I don't know. This may be my Thanos that I use to pose around for fun, even though it's not that posable. But the official Hasbro version is not that much better, and then I'm timid about getting the SH Figuarts version because I know that's going to be shorter. So I don't know, man.

Speaker 3: I got to say I'm happy with what I got over here. I knew what I was getting into. It didn't come with the accessories that I wanted. Purchase at your own risk, and at the price point of around $50 I'm giving this a SUD rating of-

Speaker 4: It's not so bad.

Speaker 3: And I'd like to know what you guys think. Are you desperate enough to have a film-accurate Thanos from End Game to pick this up? Because man, it's a risky purchase. I'm curious to know. Video #7:

Speaker 1:I got this one.

Batman:I'm Batman.

Chucky:Hi. I'm Chucky.

Matt Westover:Megalopolis is the comic-con experience online is what we call it. The big tent experience for collectors of all interests, all brands, all licenses.

Speaker 1:Dammit. I'm cutting in. Leave some for me.

Matt Westover:What makes us different is having our finger on the pulse of the collector culture. Being collectors ourselves, knowing what we like, what collectors in general like, wanting to deliver a shared culture for people to rally around and behind.

Hunter Grow: So we have this thing called visual confirm. That's where we take a picture of each one of our products before we ship them out and put them into the box. It's pretty much just another level of quality control assurance for the customer.

Josh Broderick: It's the collector experience. We talk about it all the time here, where we want to provide what we would look for. If something that is very important to you, like making sure your stuff doesn't become damaged, or comes on time, or that you have the information available to you at hand, those are things that are important to us as well, and so we're going to provide that to our customers.

Matt Westover: If I could say one thing about Megalopolis is that it's not limited to just collectibles. It's going to continue to grow into a pop culture phenomenon.

STARTENGINE SUBSCRIPTION PROCESS (Exhibit E)

Platform Compensation

- As compensation for the services provided by StartEngine Capital, the issuer is required to pay to StartEngine Capital a fee consisting of a 6-8% (six to eight percent) commission based on the dollar amount of securities sold in the Offering and paid upon disbursement of funds from escrow at the time of a closing. The commission is paid in cash and in securities of the Issuer identical to those offered to the public in the Offering at the sole discretion of StartEngine Capital. Additionally, the issuer must reimburse certain expenses related to the Offering. The securities issued to StartEngine Capital, if any, will be of the same class and have the same terms, conditions and rights as the securities being offered and sold by the issuer on StartEngine Capital's website.

Information Regarding Length of Time of Offering

- Investment Cancellations: Investors will have up to 48 hours prior to the end of the offering period to change their minds and cancel their investment commitments for any reason. Once within 48 hours of ending, investors will not be able to cancel for any reason, even if they make a commitment during this period.
- Material Changes: Material changes to an offering include but are not limited to: A change in minimum offering amount, change in security price, change in management, material change to financial information, etc. If an issuer makes a material change to the offering terms or other information disclosed, including a change to the offering deadline, investors will be given five business days to reconfirm their investment commitment. If investors do not reconfirm, their investment will be cancelled and the funds will be returned.

Hitting The Target Goal Early & Oversubscriptions

- StartEngine Capital will notify investors by email when the target offering amount has hit 25%, 50% and 100% of the funding goal. If the issuer hits its goal early, and the minimum offering period of 21 days has been met, the issuer can create a new target deadline at least 5 business days out. Investors will be notified of the new target deadline via email and will then have the opportunity to cancel up to 48 hours before new deadline.
- Oversubscriptions: We require all issuers to accept oversubscriptions. This may not be possible if: 1) it vaults an issuer into a different category for financial statement requirements (and they do not have the requisite financial statements); or 2) they reach $1.07M in investments. In the event of an oversubscription, shares will be allocated at the discretion of the issuer.
- If the sum of the investment commitments does not equal or exceed the target offering amount at the offering deadline, no securities will be sold in the offering, investment commitments will be cancelled and committed funds will be returned.
- If a StartEngine issuer reaches its target offering amount prior to the deadline, it may conduct an initial closing of the offering early if they provide notice of the new offering deadline at least five business days prior to the new offering deadline (absent a material change that would require an extension of the offering and reconfirmation of the investment commitment). StartEngine will notify investors when the issuer meets its target offering amount. Thereafter, the issuer may conduct additional closings until the offering deadline.

Minimum and Maximum Investment Amounts

- In order to invest, to commit to an investment or to communicate on our platform, users must open an account on StartEngine Capital and provide certain personal and non-personal information including information related to income, net worth, and other investments.
- Investor Limitations: Investors are limited in how much they can invest on all crowdfunding offerings during any 12-month period. The limitation on how much they can invest depends on their net worth (excluding the value of their primary residence) and annual income. If either their annual income or net worth is less than $107,000, then during any 12-month period, they can invest up to the greater of either $2,200 or 5% of the lesser of their annual income or net worth. If both their annual income and net worth are equal to or more than $107,000, then during any 12-month period, they can invest up to 10% of annual income or net worth, whichever is less, but their investments cannot exceed $107,000.
