

Yieldstreet Named on CB Insights' List of Most Promising Fintech Companies

Ranking based on momentum, market, funds raised, and investor quality

NEW YORK, September 1, 2020 – Yieldstreet, the digital wealth management platform, was named by CB Insights as one of the most promising companies in the financial technology space in its annual Fintech 250 list.

Through an evidence-based approach, the CB Insights Intelligence Unit selected the Fintech 250 from a pool of 16,000 companies, including applicants and nominees, based on several factors. These factors include patent activity, investor quality, news sentiment analysis, proprietary Mosaic scores, market potential, partnerships, competitive landscape, team strength, and tech novelty. The Mosaic Score, based on CB Insights' algorithm, measures the overall health and growth potential of private companies to help predict a company's momentum.

Yieldstreet's inclusion in the Fintech 250 follows a year of major growth for the company. Since the beginning of 2019, Yieldstreet has completed two acquisitions: Athena Art Finance, which added art investing capabilities to the platform, and Wealthflex, which added self-directed IRA investing. In July 2020, the company added a private business credit unit to connect investors with American companies seeking growth capital. In February 2020, Yieldstreet launched the Yieldstreet Prism Fund to allow investors to invest in multiple asset classes with one allocation.

Yieldstreet was also listed in Financial Times' top-500 fastest-growing companies in 2020, coming in at number 12, as well as Inc.'s top-50 ranking of private companies by revenue growth for the second consecutive year.
