ABOUT THE BRAND

Girls Chronically Rock features inspired fashion celebrating Muscular Dystrophy and other chronic illnesses. A portion of all sales benefits the Muscular Dystrophy Association. The mission of GCR is to motivate and uplift anyone who wears the clothes.

ABOUT KEISHA GREAVES

Keisha Greaves is a motivational speaker, the founder of Girls Chronically Rock, and the Massachusetts State Ambassador for the Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA). Girls Chronically Rock (www.girlschronicallyrock.com) offers inspired fashion celebrating Muscular Dystrophy and other chronic illnesses. Over the past few years, Keisha has been featured in Improper Bostonian, Boston Voyager, Herself 360, Liz on Biz, among other outlets on and offline. She's lent her voice to audiences at the Spaulding Rehabilitation Center in Charlestown, Massachusetts General Hospital, the Boston Muscle Walk, local "Fill the Boot" events, Cambridge City Hall, and, most recently, Girl's Night Out for Muscular Dystrophy – a Boston-area fundraising event held by NextonScene.

Keisha spearheaded fruitful collaborations with other notable fashion influencers which resulted in thousands of dollars raised for MDA – the most successful collaborations being with renown designer Sara Campbell and Althea Blackford, the woman behind Caribbean Fashion Week. One of Keisha's proudest moments happened after working and meeting with Massachusetts Governor Charlie Baker: Keisha got September 30 officially proclaimed Limb Girdle Muscular Dystrophy Awareness Day. She also received the proclamation from Mayor Marc McGovern from the city of Cambridge.

AS SEEN ON:

“Chronically Dope” inspires you to be dope, creative, and have your own unique style of dressing. Be bold. Be fierce. Dresses up your tee to feel sexy, fun, and walk with confidence. Be a trendsetter, inspire others to embrace their style, and don’t let anyone tell you anything differently.

Whether you're dealing with a chronic illness or not, you're chronically dope, so be proud of it. Made in the USA.
