Julien Barnes Lead Investor

4th Ave Market presents the dynamic opportunity to tap into a growing industry while addressing the needs of a traditionally underserved class. In addition to my personal experiences with the company being nothing short of impressive, I am highly interested in aligning myself with its vision and in support of its initiatives. From my view, 4th Ave Market represents all of the qualities a prudent investor should prioritize: excellence, innovation, creativity, accessibility and community. I am proud to call myself an investor and enthusiastically invite others to strongly consider investing. The possibilities are exciting. I look forward to making ongoing contributions toward the enormous potential 4th Ave Market has to offer.

Our Team

Salim Holder Co-Founder / Chief Executive Officer

Global Marketing leader with 10+ years of experience turning around declining sales; re-engaging consumers in stale product categories; and, delivering double-digit growth in revenue and unprecedented gains in profit for five top Fortune 500 brands.

Textured Hair Care is more than a $2Bn market and the fastest growing segment of the hair care industry. Blacks are 85% of sales, yet 7% of store owners. Traditional retailers consistently fail to meet the needs of this community, despite the oversized spending power. Frustrated by the lack of alternatives, we decided to create our own platform.

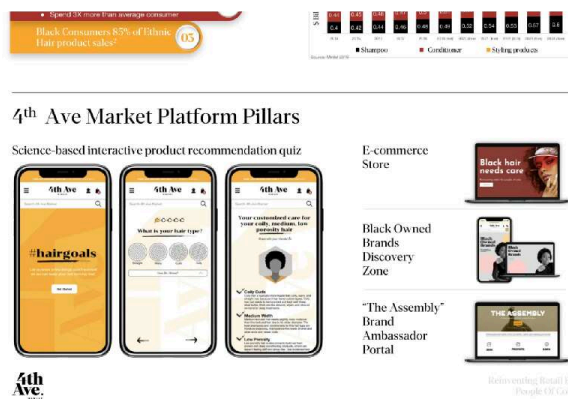

Timothy Wells Co-Founder / Chief Technology Officer

Software Engineer with 15 years experience managing inventory systems, Quality and Performance testing with top companies including Urban Outfitters, Burlington Coat Factory, Livingsocial.com and GitHub.

What is 4th Ave Market?

Largest Black Owned online retail platform for communities of color to discover, buy, sell and profit from the Beauty, Health and Wellness products specifically made for them. While our platform is relevant to many product categories, we are starting with a focus on Textured Hair Care due to the category size, growth rate and high consumer dissatisfaction.

How did we get started?

After over a decade turning around declining brands and driving millions of dollars in growth and profit for Fortune 500 brands like Kotex, Cottonelle, and Jameson Irish Whiskey, I left the corporate world to pursue a path I could be more passionate about. I uncovered an opportunity to buy an existing e-commerce platform and partnered with one of my best friends and 15 Year Software Engineering expert to optimize the platform and develop a new approach that could benefit our community. We purchased the site together and literally overnight became the largest black owned online hair and beauty retail platform in the US. At that point, we committed to creating a platform that will shift the economic balance in industries where so much dissatisfaction and tension exists among consumers of color.

What is the problem we are solving?

4th Ave Market platform increases access, awareness and distribution of products created for communities of color.

In an industry where Black consumers spend upwards of $2Bn per year on hair and personal care products, dissatisfaction and frustration have overflowed as traditional and current retailers continue to minimize and underdeliver on the needs of this highly engaged and valuable community. With more research, we realized that its not just black consumers who struggle to find the right products for their needs, but ~50% of ALL AMERICANS have textured hair and are forced to shop under the same sub-optimal conditions.

What have we been able to achieve so far?

We launched in 2019 and experienced tremendous growth in 2020. We are growing revenue, lowering the cost to acquire new customers and strengthening our relationship with our customers.

The wide range of products, low prices, and strong focus on customer service has earned us high praise from customers.

Nice company. Will be ordering again.
The shipping was very fast especially for the pandemic. They have a nice selection of products. I even found new products I'd never heard of. I used a similar site and was baffled by their customer service, but luckily that led me to 4th Ave Market. -Jalisa

Melanie AuntieMel Nowlin-Warren I've order 5-6 items and my total cost was LESS than $40.00 and shipping is free. I've seen items not seen in my local health and beauty stores and the prices are quite reasonable. Opening this package is gonna be like Christmas to my skin and hair. Blessings to you 4thAve Market

Carole Dorsey Betsy Morris I recently placed my first order. Because of the coronavirus and other matters, there was a slight delay in shipping. When I inquired about my order, not only did they tell me that the order was shipped, but THEY caught an error. They adjusted the error, AND sent me a coupon to be used on my next order. You can't get more customer-centric than that...and I LOVE the products! Will definitely be ordering again!

What makes us unique and different?

Our platform is being integrated with the cultural ecosystem or natural flow of information, recommendations, and referrals for products and services that already exists in communities of color. In the Black community, this ecosystem can reach up to 90% of population! These "Points of Trust" include (but are not limited to): Black Church/Mosque; Barber Shop/Salon; Community organizations (ex. Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity, Inc., Jack & Jill, NAACP); and HBCUs.

Ecosystem reaches nearly ~90%¹ of the Black community and serves as a gatekeeper for a wide-range of topics.

Our business model and strong value proposition of providing value to the community has enabled us to form a growing list of strategic partnerships with major corporations, community organizations, HBCUs and people of influence who align with our mission. These partnerships are helping us to:

- Lower our cost of business
- Increase access to our customers
- Provide hands-on training through internships with college credit
- More effectively reinvest value back to the community we serve

How do we make money and how is it recirculated through the community?

4th Ave Market business model re-circulates the dollar through communities of color. Our approach focuses on revenue-share as an incentive for those "Points of Trust" who already serve as vital connectors to information and recommendations for products and services targeting the community. The chart below illustrates how our business model generates revenue and reinvests back into the community.

What's the significance behind our company name?

The Historic 4th Avenue District in Birmingham, Alabama presented the blueprint for creating an economic ecosystem wrapped in the values of the community it serves. We are building the 21st Century 4th Ave District.

Don't just participate, become an owner!

We have proven the concept works and now seek to engage you, the community, in this journey to create a community centric business model that returns value back to, well... you! So, join us! TOGETHER we can guarantee that OUR DOLLAR MATTERS!
