John Berry Architects, Inc. (JBA) was established in 2007 and is an award winning architectural firm with expertise in theater design, performing arts spaces, educational facilities, multi-family housing, and spaces for non-profit arts oriented organizations. Projects that are currently on the boards are an addition to Park Century School in Culver City, a Civic Block Parking Structure for The Children's Institute and Kaiser Permanente in Watts, Los Angeles, and a 120 unit, market-rate housing development in the Korea Town neighborhood of Los Angeles.

JBA's most noted built works to date are The Herb Alpert Educational Village, New Roads School, Ann and Jerry Moss Theater in Santa Monica, The King Saud Bin Abdulaziz University for Health Science, Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, and A Noise Within Shakespearian Theater in Pasadena, CA.

Prior to establishing JBA, John Berry held leadership positions in high profile design firms in Los Angeles; Clive Wilkinson Architects, Perkins & Will, and Koning Eisenberg Architecture.
