It's like AA groups but for all hard life events.

LEAD INVESTOR

Rajiv Kapoor

We invested in MentalHappy because of their innovation around how therapy should be delivered. They say they are building the future of community health care and we believe that! Virtual mental wellness is a $200 billion market. We met Tamar in 2021 and from that moment she has shined as an example of exactly the type of founder we like to invest in - qualities like tenacity, self realization and just that ray of light that you feel will make a significant positive impact. We have already seen her and her team make significant progress since our initial investment in 2021. We are most impressed by their traction with 1,500 active group members and the support of other partners like Northwestern Mutual Future Ventures. Our team believes the access and value provided by their platform enabling professionals and with peer to peer elements will allow them to grow into an industry leader.

Our Team

Tamar Blue Founder & CEO

Second-time founder. 7+ years of experience in people operations and recruiting (helped 6x company revenue during the 2006 recession). MBA. TechCrunch contributor.

Peer support has been my life's work since I was in high school over 20 years ago. At my core, I am a healer. And now, I am also a talented tech entrepreneur and can leverage tech to expand my vision of bringing emotional support to those who lack access to quality resources to cope, heal and live a happier life.

Overview

"There isn't enough "human power" to meet the tsunami-level demand for mental health services." - According to American Psychological Association (source)

We've designed, built, and launched a HIPAA Compliant mobile app used by health and wellness practitioners across the U.S. to expand mental health services.

Our mission is to expand access to peer and group therapy services to over 1 billion people worldwide.

The Problem

Few Therapist and Crisis Level Demand for Mental Wellness

SEVERE SHORTAGE OF THERAPISTS

This many people in need!

This many licensed therapists to help

100 000

The U.S. is experiencing a severe shortage of therapists — according to the American Psychological Association (APA), there are only 31.3 licensed psychologists per 100,000 people (source). Many therapists and psychologists have long waitlists, making it harder for new patients to start treatment. And the pandemic has only widened the shortage gap and caused a mental health crisis in both adults and children.

Plus, 60 million people live in rural areas in the United States, where they just simply aren't within driving distance of any type of mental health facility or office (source).

The Market

Demand for virtual mental wellness services is growing

We've tapped into a $200 Billion global market with a solution that many business models have simply overlooked— and that is the efficacy of expert-led peer support groups.

COVID-19 generated unparalleled demand for virtual mental health care services. But it seems that telehealth may be here to stay. According to McKinsey, overall telehealth use has stabilized at levels 38X higher than before the pandemic.

We've tapped into a $200 billion global market with a solution that many business models have simply overlooked— and that is the efficacy of expert-led peer support groups (source).

THE SOLUTION

Expert-led peer support groups are a scalable solution that offer accessible, affordable, and culturally sensitive mental health resources.
