Questions and Answers about the Merger and the Unity Special Meeting, page 1

1. Please add a question and answer addressing the intent of the company to conduct a PIPE investment following the close of the merger. Your disclosure should clearly highlight the intended purpose of the PIPE, the strategic rationale for structuring it using convertible debt, the drawbacks of the PIPE, the conflicts of interest, and any related risks to shareholders of the combined company. Provide cross references to a more detailed discussion.

Risk Factors, page 41

2. Please add a risk factor addressing the PIPE investment. Your risk factor should highlight that the PIPE will substantially increase the combined company's balance sheet indebtedness. Additionally, your disclosure should clarify that while Unity's board views the use of the PIPE to conduct stock buybacks as an accretive measure, there is no guarantee of accretion and significant risk of dilution to shareholders if the conversion feature is exercised.

Background of the Merger, page 78

3. Please supplement your disclosure with a description of the significant events related to AppLovin's unsolicited proposal. Discuss how Unity Board concluded that such proposal was not in the best interests of shareholders, describe the financial and strategic evaluation undertaken, and disclose any other material considerations of the Board. Additionally, with a view toward disclosure, please tell us whether any representatives of Unity had engaged in formal or informal discussions with AppLovin in advance of the unsolicited proposal, or whether such conversations have taken place since receipt of the proposal.

The Merger, page 78

4. We note that subject to board approval you intend to conduct a PIPE investment consisting of convertible notes to initiate a stock buyback program following the closing of the merger. Please disclose the anticipated amount of shares that you will be authorized to repurchase, the intended duration of the program, the mechanics of the program, and any related risks. Your disclosure should describe the objective for the stock buyback program and the criteria that you intend to use to determine the timing and amount of shares you will repurchase.

Certain Unaudited Prospective Financial Information, page 115

5. Revise to disclose all material assumptions underlying each set of financial projections.
