listen to what they have to say.

How is it possible to sell lunches at such an amazingly low price? the answer is, we don't cook or run kitchens, we outsource food from the best restaurant in town during their downtime using their free kitchen resources giving them bulk business before 10 am without disturbing their daily business routines. Lunchwale has the unique opportunity of mass-producing its Lunches bringing the cost per meal down to a minimum, unlike in ala carte menu where every meal is different and cooked specifically for a particular customer. All Lunchwale lunches are the same for everyone, it's either Veggie or Non-veggie meals. We are currently operating in 4 cities of the Dallas DFW area, Texas, we have plans to expand first to the rest of Dallas, then to the other cities in Texas, and eventually every city in the US before we go global. If we are able to raise the maximum target funding through the crowdfunding campaign, we should be able to hopefully increase our sales by at least 200% in 2020 and by 400% of 2019 in 2021, in the next 5 years we have the potential to scale up revenues to $500k-5M and hopefully $50m in the next 10 years. We have plans to list our stocks at the OTC stock exchange by 2022.

FAQ

Q: What does your competitive landscape look like? how will it impact Lunchwale business when big player enter the market?

A: Good question! It will be the perfect setting for Lunchwale! When big players jump into the fray that means our business model is great and the market is huge, there is enough room for everyone in the business. Obviously, Lunchwale has the FIRST-MOVER-ADVANTAGE. Last but not the least, we have filed a provisional patent application with the USPTO to protect our unique business process, the competition will have one more hurdle to cross before they meet Lunchwale in the market!
Presently, Doordash, Foodsbys, Uber Eats, etc., are in the competitive landscape in the food delivery service business though not directly competing with us in the preset meals segment.

Q: What if your vendor backs out or goes bankrupt?

A: Great question! Our vendor selection process is pretty clear and very simple. The vendor should have a longstanding track record in the food & beverage business with a good reputation. As regarding backing out, why will any vendor want to back out when they have an opportunity to make an additional million-plus dollars annually? If a vendor goes bankrupt, there are many more in the market waiting for a chance to sign up with Lunchwale.

Q: What are the future plans of Lunchwale?

- A: Once we achieve our minimum fundraise target, we will aim to increase our sales revenue by at-least 200%. If we achieve at least 50% of the maximum fundraise target, we will increase the footprint of our sales operation and aim to reach 400% of 2019 sales revenue in the financial year 2021. Lunchwale is already a profit-making company and quite likely will continue to be one during years to come. The chances of going into losses are very remote since our business model is built largely on variable cost only. We have plans to enter the OTC stock exchange as a profit-making company in 2022. ^
- Q: In the current COVID-19 situation with most employees are working from home, what are the business prospects of Lunchwale Corporate Lunch services in the near future?
- A: Good question!
Firstly, staying safe is the most important issue across the World. We are not in a hurry to resume Lunchwale services until it is completely safe, the safety of our customers is our first priority.
Secondly, we all are aware sooner or later economies will have to open up. Lastly, even if work from home culture continues, chances are it will not have an adverse impact on Lunchwale. During pre-COVID-19 we typically turn down Lunch requests from residences as our main focus was on corporate offices only, post COVID-19 we will start accepting Lunch orders from residences which means our numbers could spike up much more than before! ^
- Q: When will the company see revenues & turn profitable and how will you get there?
- A: The Company is already generating revenue since 2018 and has been making small profits for the last 2 years consecutively. ^
- Q: How different are your competitors?
- A: Our competitor very different from us though we both serve a similar target audience. We have our own branded preset meals, while our competitors pick food from various restaurants from ala carte menu and delivery it to the customers which is more expensive. ^
- Q: Why did you choose Dallas as your location?
- A: Dallas DFW is centrally located and has a great locational advantage, hundreds of companies are moving base to Dallas & thousands of corporate headquarters are based out of the Dallas DFW area, besides 20+ of the fortune500 companies are Head Quartered in Dallas DFW and surrounding. It is a perfect city to script a great startup success story. ^
