RISK FACTORS

Risks Related to the Company's Business and Industry

We have a limited operating history upon which you can evaluate our performance, and accordingly, our prospects must be considered in light of the risks that any new company encounters.

We have a limited history upon which an evaluation of our prospects and future performance can be made. Our proposed operations are subject to all business risks associated with a new enterprise. The likelihood of our creation of a viable business must be considered in light of the problems, expenses, difficulties, complications, and delays frequently encountered in connection with the inception of a business, operation in a competitive industry, and the continued development of advertising, promotions, and a corresponding client base. We anticipate that our operating expenses will increase for the near future. There can be no assurances that we will ever operate profitably. You should consider the Company's business, operations and prospects in light of the risks, expenses and challenges faced as an early-stage company.

The development and commercialization of our products is highly competitive.

We face competition with respect to any products that we may seek to develop or commercialize in the future. Our competitors include major companies worldwide. Many of our competitors have significantly greater financial, technical and human resources than we have and superior expertise in research and development and marketing approved products and thus may be better equipped than us to develop and commercialize products. These competitors also compete with us in recruiting and retaining qualified personnel and acquiring technologies. Smaller or early stage companies may also prove to be significant competitors, particularly through collaborative arrangements with large and established companies. Accordingly, our competitors may commercialize products more rapidly or effectively than we are able to, which would adversely affect our competitive position, the likelihood that our products will achieve initial market acceptance and our ability to generate meaningful additional revenues from our products.

The Company's success depends on the experience and skill of the board of directors, its executive officers and key employees.

In particular, the Company is dependent on Sean O'Neill who is Founder and President of the Company. The Company has or intends to enter into employment agreements with Sean O'Neill although there can be no assurance that it will do so or that he will continue to be employed by the Company for a particular period of time. The loss of Sean O'Neill or any member of the board of directors or executive officer could harm the Company's business, financial condition, cash flow and results of operations.

As a distributor of functional supplements, our business depends on developing and maintaining close and productive relationships with our vendors.

We depend on our vendors to sell us quality products at favorable prices. Many factors outside our control, including, without limitation, raw material shortages, inadequate manufacturing capacity, labor disputes, transportation disruptions or weather conditions, could adversely affect our vendors' ability to deliver to us quality merchandise at favorable prices in a timely manner. Furthermore, financial or operational difficulties with a particular vendor could cause that vendor to increase the cost of the products or decrease the quality of the products we purchase from it. Vendor consolidation could also limit the number of suppliers from which we may purchase products and could materially affect the prices we pay for these products. We would suffer an adverse impact if our vendors limit or cancel the return privileges that currently protect us from inventory obsolescence.

We rely on other companies to provide raw materials, packaging components, and basic ingredients for our products.

We depend on these suppliers and subcontractors to meet our contractual obligations to our customers and conduct our operations. Our ability to meet our obligations to our customers may be adversely affected if suppliers or subcontractors do not provide the agreed-upon supplies or perform the agreed-upon services in compliance with customer requirements and in a timely and cost-effective manner. Likewise, the quality of our products may be adversely impacted if companies to whom we delegate manufacture of major components or subsystems for our products, or from whom we acquire such items, do not provide raw materials, packaging components, and basic ingredients which meet required specifications and perform to our and our customers' expectations. Our suppliers may be less likely than us to be able to quickly recover from natural disasters and other events beyond their control and may be subject to additional risks such as financial problems that limit their ability to conduct their operations. The risk of these adverse effects may be greater in circumstances where we rely on only one or two subcontractors or suppliers for particular raw materials, packaging components, or basic ingredients.

We depend on third-party service providers and outsource providers for a variety of services and we outsource a number of our non-core functions and operations.

In certain instances, we rely on single or limited service providers and outsourcing vendors around the world because the relationship is advantageous due to quality, price, or lack of alternative sources. If production or service was interrupted and we were not able to find alternate third-party providers, we could experience disruptions in manufacturing and operations including product shortages, higher freight costs and re-engineering costs. If outsourcing services are interrupted or not performed or the performance is poor, this could impact our ability to process, record and report transactions with our customers and other constituents. Such interruptions in the provision of supplies and/or services could result in our inability to meet customer demand, damage our reputation and customer relationships and adversely affect our business.

Manufacturing or design defects, unanticipated use of our products, or inadequate disclosure of risks relating to the use of the products can lead to injury or other adverse events.

These events could lead to recalls or safety alerts relating to our products (either voluntary or required by governmental authorities) and could result, in certain cases, in the removal of a product from the market. Any recall could result in significant costs as well as negative publicity that could reduce demand for our products. Personal injuries relating to the use of our products can also result in product liability claims being brought against us. In some circumstances, such adverse events could also cause delays in new product approvals. Similarly, negligence in performing our services can lead to injury or other adverse events.

Quality management plays an essential role in determining and meeting customer requirements, preventing defects, improving the Company's products and services and maintaining the integrity of the data that supports the safety and efficacy of our products.

Our future success depends on our ability to maintain and continuously improve our quality management program. An inability to address a quality or safety issue in an effective and timely manner may also cause negative publicity, a loss of customer confidence in us or our current or future products, which may result in the loss of sales and difficulty in successfully launching new products. In addition, a successful claim brought against us in excess of available insurance or not covered by indemnification agreements, or any claim that results in significant adverse publicity against us, could have an adverse effect on our business and our reputation.

One of the potential risks we face in the distribution of our products is liability resulting from counterfeit or tainted products infiltrating the supply chain.

Because we source ingredients from various sources, we rely on various suppliers and their quality control measures. While we have procedures to maintain the highest quality levels in our products, we may be subject to faulty, spoiled, or tainted ingredients or components in our products, which would negatively affect our products and our customers' experience with them and could decrease customer demand for our products. In addition, if there are serious illness or injury due to our products, there can be no assurance that the insurance coverage we maintain is sufficient or will be available in adequate amounts or at a reasonable cost, or that indemnification agreements will provide us with adequate protection.

We plan to implement new lines of business or offer new products and services within existing lines of business.

There are substantial risks and uncertainties associated with these efforts, particularly in instances where the markets are not fully developed. In developing and marketing new lines of business and/or new products and services, we may invest significant time and resources. Initial timetables for the introduction and development of new lines of business and/or new products or services may not be achieved and price and profitability targets may not prove feasible. We may not be successful in introducing new products and services in response to industry trends or developments in technology, or those new products may not achieve market acceptance. As a result, we could lose business, be forced to price products and services on less advantageous terms to retain or attract clients, or be subject to cost increases. As a result, our business, financial condition or results of operations may be adversely affected.

Maintaining, extending, and expanding our reputation and brand image are essential to our business success.

We seek to maintain, extend, and expand our brand image through marketing investments, including advertising and consumer promotions, and product innovation. Increasing attention on marketing could adversely affect our brand image. It could also lead to stricter regulations and greater scrutiny of marketing practices. Existing or increased legal or regulatory restrictions on our advertising, consumer promotions and marketing, or our response to those restrictions, could limit our efforts to maintain, extend and expand our brands. Moreover, adverse publicity about regulatory or legal action against us could damage our reputation and brand image, undermine our customers' confidence and reduce long-term demand for our products, even if the regulatory or legal action is unfounded or not material to our operations.

In addition, our success in maintaining, extending, and expanding our brand image depends on our ability to adapt to a rapidly changing media environment. We increasingly rely on social media and online dissemination of advertising campaigns. The growing use of social and digital media increases the speed and extent that information or misinformation and opinions can be shared. Negative posts or comments about us, our brands or our products on social or digital media, whether or not valid, could seriously damage our brands and reputation. If we do not establish, maintain, extend and expand our brand image, then our product sales, financial condition and results of operations could be adversely affected.

Product safety and quality concerns, including concerns related to perceived quality of ingredients, could negatively affect the Company's business.

The Company's success depends in large part on its ability to maintain consumer confidence in the safety and quality of all its products. The Company has rigorous product safety and quality standards. However, if products taken to market are or become contaminated or adulterated, the Company may be required to conduct costly product recalls and may become subject to product liability claims and negative publicity, which would cause its business to suffer. In addition, regulatory actions, activities by nongovernmental organizations and public debate and concerns about perceived negative safety and quality consequences of certain ingredients in our products may erode consumers' confidence in the safety and quality issues, whether or not justified, and could result in additional governmental regulations concerning the marketing and labeling of the Company's products, negative publicity, or actual or threatened legal actions, all of which could damage the reputation of the Company's products and may reduce demand for the Company's products.

In general, demand for our products and services is highly correlated with general economic conditions.

A substantial portion of our revenue is derived from discretionary spending by individuals, which typically falls during times of economic instability. Declines in economic conditions in the U.S. or in other countries in which we operate may adversely impact our consolidated financial results. Because such declines in demand are difficult to predict, we or the industry may have increased excess capacity as a result. An increase in excess capacity may result in declines in prices for our products and services.

We depend on third party providers, suppliers, and licensors to supply some of the hardware, software and operational support necessary to provide some of our services.

We obtain these materials from a limited number of vendors, some of which do not have a long operating history, or which may not be able to continue to supply the equipment and services we desire. Some of our hardware, software and operational support vendors represent our sole source of supply or have, either through contract or as a result of intellectual property rights, a position of some exclusivity. If demand exceeds these vendors' capacity or if these vendors experience operating or financial difficulties or are otherwise unable to provide the equipment or services we need in a timely manner, at our specifications and at reasonable prices, our ability to provide some services might be materially adversely affected, or the need to procure or develop alternative sources of the affected materials or services might delay our ability to serve our customers. These events could materially and adversely affect our ability to retain and attract customers, and have a material negative impact on our operations, business, financial results and financial condition.

We rely on various intellectual property rights, including trademarks in order to operate our business.

Such intellectual property rights, however, may not be sufficiently broad or otherwise may not provide us a significant competitive advantage. In addition, the steps that we have taken to maintain and protect our intellectual property may not prevent it from being challenged, invalidated, circumvented or designed-around, particularly in countries where intellectual property rights are not highly developed or protected. In some circumstances, enforcement may not be available to us because an infringer has a dominant intellectual property position or for other business reasons, or countries may require compulsory licensing of our intellectual property. Our failure to obtain or maintain intellectual property rights that convey competitive advantage, adequately protect our intellectual property or detect or prevent circumvention or unauthorized use of such property, could adversely impact our competitive position and results of operations. We also rely on nondisclosure and noncompetition agreements with employees, consultants and other parties to protect, in part, trade secrets and other proprietary rights. There can be no assurance that these agreements will adequately protect our trade secrets and other proprietary rights and will not be breached, that we will have adequate remedies for any breach, that others will not independently develop substantially equivalent proprietary information or that third parties will not otherwise gain access to our trade secrets or other proprietary rights.

As we expand our business, protecting our intellectual property will become increasingly important. The protective steps we have taken may be inadequate to deter our competitors from using our proprietary information. In order to protect or enforce our patent rights, we may be required to initiate litigation against third parties, such as infringement lawsuits. Also, these third parties may assert claims against us with or without provocation. These lawsuits could be expensive, take significant time and could divert management's attention from other business concerns. The law relating to the scope and validity of claims in the technology field in which we operate is still evolving and, consequently, intellectual property positions in our industry are generally uncertain. We cannot assure you that we will prevail in any of these potential suits or that the damages or other remedies awarded, if any, would be commercially valuable.

From time to time, third parties may claim that one or more of our products or services infringe their intellectual property rights.

Any dispute or litigation regarding patents or other intellectual property could be costly and time-consuming due to the complexity of our technology and the uncertainty of intellectual property litigation and could divert our management and key personnel from our business operations. A claim of intellectual property infringement could force us to enter into a costly or restrictive license agreement, which might not be available under acceptable terms or at all, could require us to redesign our products, which would be costly and time-consuming, and/or could subject us to an injunction against development and sale of certain of our products or services. We may have to pay substantial damages, including damages for past infringement if it is ultimately determined that our products infringe on a third party's proprietary rights. Even if these claims are without merit, defending a lawsuit takes significant time, may be expensive and may divert management's attention from other business concerns. Any public announcements related to litigation or interference proceedings initiated or threatened against us could cause our business to be harmed. Our intellectual property portfolio may not be useful in asserting a counterclaim, or negotiating a license, in response to a claim of intellectual property infringement. In certain of our businesses we rely on third party intellectual property licenses and we cannot ensure that these licenses will be available to us in the future on favorable terms or at all.

Although dependent on certain key personnel, the Company does not have any key man life insurance policies on any such people.

The Company is dependent on Sean O'Neill in order to conduct its operations and execute its business plan, however, the Company has not purchased any insurance policies with respect to those individuals in the event of their death or disability. Therefore, if any of Sean O'Neill die or become disabled, the Company will not receive any compensation to assist with such person's absence. The loss of such person could negatively affect the Company and its operations.

We are subject and/or may become subject to income taxes as well as non-income based taxes, such as payroll, sales, use, value-added, net worth, property and goods and services taxes, in both the U.S. and various foreign jurisdictions.

Significant judgment is required in determining our provision for income taxes and other tax liabilities. In the ordinary course of our business, there are many transactions and calculations where the ultimate tax determination is uncertain. Although we believe that our tax estimates are reasonable: (i) there is no assurance that the final determination of tax audits or tax disputes will not be different from what is reflected in our income tax provisions, expense amounts for non-income based taxes and accruals and (ii) any material differences could have an adverse effect on our financial position and results of operations in the period or periods for which determination is made.

We have not prepared any audited financial statements.

Therefore, you have no audited financial information regarding the Company's capitalization or assets or liabilities on which to make your investment decision. If you feel the information provided is insufficient, you should not invest in the Company.

We are not subject to Sarbanes-Oxley regulations and lack the financial controls and safeguards required of public companies.

We do not have the internal infrastructure necessary, and are not required, to complete an attestation about our financial controls that would be required under Section 404 of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002. There can be no assurance that there are no significant deficiencies or material weaknesses in the quality of our financial controls. We expect to incur additional expenses and diversion of management's time if and when it becomes necessary to perform the system and process evaluation, testing and remediation required in order to comply with the management certification and auditor attestation requirements.

The Company has indicated that it has engaged in certain transactions with related persons.

Please see the section of this Memorandum entitled "Transactions with Related Persons and Conflicts of Interest" for further details.

The Company's business operations may be materially adversely affected by a pandemic such as the Coronavirus (COVID-19) outbreak.

In December 2019, a novel strain of coronavirus was reported to have surfaced in Wuhan, China, which spread throughout other parts of the world, including the United States. On January 30, 2020, the World Health Organization declared the outbreak of the coronavirus disease (COVID-19) a "Public Health Emergency of International Concern." On January 31, 2020, U.S. Health and Human Services Secretary Alex M. Azar II declared a public health emergency for the United States to aid the U.S. healthcare community in responding to COVID-19, and on March 11, 2020, the World Health Organization characterized the outbreak as a "pandemic." COVID-19 resulted in a widespread health crisis that adversely affected the economies and financial markets worldwide. The Company's business could be materially and adversely affected. The extent to which COVID-19 impacts the Company's business will depend on future developments, which are highly uncertain and cannot be predicted, including new information which may emerge concerning the severity of COVID-19 and the actions to contain COVID-19 or treat its impact, among others. If the disruptions posed by COVID-19 or other matters of global concern continue for an extended period of time, the Company's operations may be materially adversely affected.

We face risks related to health epidemics and other outbreaks, which could significantly disrupt the Company's operations and could have a material adverse impact on us.

The outbreak of pandemics and epidemics could materially and adversely affect the Company's business, financial condition, and results of operations. If a pandemic occurs in areas in which we have material operations or sales, the Company's business activities originating from affected areas, including sales, materials, and supply chain related activities, could be adversely affected. Disruptive activities could include the temporary closure of facilities used in the Company's supply chain processes, restrictions on the export or shipment of products necessary to run the Company's business, business closures in impacted areas, and restrictions on the Company's employees' or consultants' ability to travel and to meet with customers, vendors or other business relationships. The extent to which a pandemic or other health outbreak impacts the Company's results will depend on future developments, which are highly uncertain and cannot be predicted, including new information which may emerge concerning the severity of a virus and the actions to contain it or treat its impact, among others. Pandemics can also result in social, economic, and labor instability which may adversely impact the Company's business.

If the Company's employees or employees of any of the Company's vendors, suppliers or customers become ill or are quarantined and in either or both events are therefore unable to work, the Company's operations could be subject to disruption. The extent to which a pandemic affects the Company's results will depend on future developments that are highly uncertain and cannot be predicted.

We face risks relating to public health conditions such as the COVID-19 pandemic, which could adversely affect the Company's customers, business, and results of operations.

Our business and prospects could be materially adversely affected by the COVID-19 pandemic or recurrences of that or any other such disease in the future. Material adverse effects from COVID-19 and similar occurrences could result in numerous known and currently unknown ways including from quarantines and lockdowns which impair the Company's business including marketing and sales efforts, supply chain, etc. If the Company purchases materials from suppliers in affected areas, the Company may not be able to procure such products in a timely manner. The effects of a pandemic can place travel restrictions on key personnel which could have a material impact on the business. In addition, a significant outbreak of contagious diseases in the human population could result in a widespread health crisis that could adversely affect the economies and financial markets of many countries, resulting in an economic downturn that could reduce the demand for the Company's products and impair the Company's business prospects including as a result of being unable to raise additional capital on acceptable terms to us, if at all.

We must correctly predict, identify, and interpret changes in consumer preferences and demand, offer new products to meet those changes, and respond to competitive innovation.

Consumer preferences our products change continually. Our success depends on our ability to predict, identify, and interpret the tastes and habits of consumers and to offer products that appeal to consumer preferences. If we do not offer products that appeal to consumers, our sales and market share will decrease. We must distinguish between short-term fads, mid-term trends, and long-term changes in consumer preferences. If we do not accurately predict which shifts in consumer preferences will be long-term, or if we fail to introduce new and improved products to satisfy those preferences, our sales could decline. In addition, because of our varied customer base, we must offer an array of products that satisfy the broad spectrum of consumer preferences. If we fail to expand our product offerings successfully across product categories, or if we do not rapidly develop products in faster growing and more profitable categories, demand for our products could decrease, which could materially and adversely affect our product sales, financial condition, and results of operations.

In addition, achieving growth depends on our successful development, introduction, and marketing of innovative new products and line extensions. Successful innovation depends on our ability to correctly anticipate customer and consumer acceptance, to obtain, protect and maintain necessary intellectual property rights, and to avoid infringing the intellectual property rights of others and failure to do so could compromise our competitive position and adversely impact our business.

Substantial disruption to production at our manufacturing and distribution facilities could occur.

A disruption in production at our third-party manufacturing facilities could have an adverse effect on our business. In addition, a disruption could occur at the facilities of our suppliers or distributors. The disruption could occur for many reasons, including fire, natural disasters, weather, water scarcity, manufacturing problems, disease, strikes, transportation or supply interruption, government regulation, cybersecurity attacks or terrorism. Alternative facilities with sufficient capacity or capabilities may not be available, may cost substantially more or may take a significant time to start production, each of which could negatively affect our business and results of operations.

Future product recalls or safety concerns could adversely impact our results of operations.

We may be required to recall certain of our products should they be mislabeled, contaminated, spoiled, tampered with or damaged. We also may become involved in lawsuits and legal proceedings if it is alleged that the consumption or use of any of our products causes injury, illness or death. A product recall or an adverse result in any such litigation could have an adverse effect on our business, depending on the costs of the recall, the destruction of product inventory, competitive reaction and consumer attitudes. Even if a product liability or consumer fraud claim is unsuccessful or without merit, the negative publicity surrounding such assertions regarding our products could adversely affect our reputation and brand image. We also could be adversely affected if consumers in our principal markets lose confidence in the safety and quality of our products.

The consolidation of retail customers could adversely affect us.

Retail customers, such as supermarkets, warehouse clubs, and food distributors in our major markets, may consolidate, resulting in fewer customers for our business. Consolidation also produces larger retail customers that may seek to leverage their position to improve their profitability by demanding improved efficiency, lower pricing, increased promotional programs, or specifically tailored products. In addition, larger retailers have the scale to develop supply chains that permit them to operate with reduced inventories or to develop and market their own white-label brands. Retail consolidation and increasing retailer power could adversely affect our product sales and results of operations. Retail consolidation also increases the risk that adverse changes in our customers' business operations or financial performance will have a corresponding material and adverse effect on us. For example, if our customers cannot access sufficient funds or financing, then they may delay, decrease, or cancel purchases of our products, or delay or fail to pay us for previous purchases, which could materially and adversely affect our product sales, financial condition, and operating results.

Evolving tax, environmental, food quality and safety or other regulations or failure to comply with existing licensing, labeling, trade, food quality and safety and other regulations and laws could have a material adverse effect on our consolidated financial condition.

Our activities or products, both in and outside of the United States, are subject to regulation by various federal, state, provincial and local laws, regulations and government agencies, including the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, U.S. Federal Trade Commission, the U.S. Departments of Agriculture, Commerce and Labor, as well as similar and other authorities outside of the United States, International Accords and Treaties and others, including voluntary regulation by other bodies. In addition, legal and regulatory systems in emerging and developing markets may be less developed, and less certain. These laws and regulations and interpretations thereof may change, sometimes dramatically, as a result of a variety of factors, including political, economic or social events. The manufacturing, marketing and distribution of food products are subject to governmental regulation that control such matters as food quality and safety, ingredients, advertising, product or production requirements, labeling, import or export of our products or ingredients, relations with distributors and retailers, health and safety, the environment, and restrictions on the use of government programs to purchase certain of our products. We are also regulated with respect to matters such as licensing requirements, trade and pricing practices, tax, anticorruption standards, advertising and claims, and environmental matters. The need to comply with new, evolving or revised tax, environmental, food quality and safety, labeling or other laws or regulations, or new, or changed interpretations or enforcement of existing laws or regulations, may have an adverse effect on our business and results of operations. Further, if we are found to be out of compliance with applicable laws and regulations in these areas, we could be subject to civil remedies, including fines, injunctions, termination of necessary licenses or permits, or recalls, as well as potential criminal sanctions, any of which could have an adverse effect on our business. Even if regulatory review does not result in these types of determinations, it could potentially create negative publicity or perceptions which could harm our business or reputation.

We are dependent on third-party suppliers for key raw materials, packaging materials and production inputs, and our use of natural ingredients exposes us to weather and crop reliability.

We purchase the raw materials used in the brewing of our beers, including barley, hops, malt, and other ingredients, and the distilling of our spirits from a number of domestic and foreign third-party suppliers. The demand for hops grown in the United States has increased due to the success and growth of craft brewers and the popularity of beer styles that include hops grown in the United States. Certain U.S. hops are in limited supply and prices have risen for both spot purchases and forward contract pricing, accordingly. The beer industry has faced hops shortages in the past, during which times other beer companies with greater financial resources than us purchased large quantities of hops, and our industry could face shortages again in the future. In addition, hops and malt are agricultural products and therefore many outside factors, including weather conditions, farmers rotating out of hops or barley to other crops, pests, government regulations and legislation affecting agriculture, could affect quality, price and supply. We are exposed to the quality of the barley crop each year, and significant failure of a crop would adversely affect our costs.

Growth rates higher than planned or the introduction of new products requiring special ingredients could create higher demand for ingredients greater than we can source.

Although we believe that there are alternative sources available for our key ingredients, there can be no assurance that we would be able to acquire such ingredients from substitute sources on a timely or cost effective basis in the event that current suppliers could not adequately fulfill orders, which would adversely affect our business and results of operations.

We source certain packaging materials from a number of third-party suppliers and, in some cases, single-source suppliers.

Although we believe that alternative suppliers are available, the loss of any of our packaging material suppliers could adversely affect our results of operations and financial condition. Our inability to preserve the current economics of these agreements could expose us to significant cost increases in future years.

The loss of our third-party distributors could impair our operations and substantially reduce our financial results.

We continually seek to expand distribution of our products by entering into distribution arrangements with regional bottlers or other direct store delivery distributors having established sales, marketing and distribution organizations. Many distributors are affiliated with and manufacture and/or distribute other beverage products. In many cases, such products compete directly with our products. The marketing efforts of our distributors are important for our success. If our brands prove to be less attractive to our existing distributors and/or if we fail to attract additional distributors and/or our distributors do not market and promote our products above the products of our competitors, our business, financial condition and results of operations could be adversely affected.

Inability to secure co-packers for our products could impair our operations and substantially reduce our financial results.

We rely on third parties, called co-packers in our industry, to produce our products. Our dependence on co-packers puts us at substantial risk in our operations. If we lose this relationship and/or require new co-packing relationships for other products, we may be unable to establish such relationships on favorable terms, if at all.

Our business is substantially dependent upon awareness and market acceptance of our products and brands.

Our business depends on acceptance by both our end consumers as well as our independent distributors of our brands as beverage brands that have the potential to provide incremental sales growth rather than reduce distributors' existing beverage sales. We believe that the success of our product name brands will also be substantially dependent upon acceptance of our product name brands. Accordingly, any failure of our brands to maintain or increase acceptance or market penetration would likely have a material adverse affect on our revenues and financial results.

Sales of a limited number of products and flavors contributed all of our historical profitability and cash flow.

A reduction in the sale of our products would have a material adverse effect on our ability to remain profitable and achieve future growth. All of our secondary products such as Before You Sleep and Immune Support represent a relatively small portion of our sales. We cannot be certain that we will be able to continue to commercialize or expand distribution of our existing products or that any of our future food products will be accepted in their markets. Any inability on our part to stay current with food and consumer trends through new products could have a material adverse effect on our business performance.

Reductions in sales of our products will have an adverse effect on our profitability and ability to generate cash to fund our business plan.

The following factors, among others, could affect continued market acceptance and profitability of our products:

- the introduction of competitive products;
- changes in consumer preferences among gummy food products;
- changes in consumer eating and snacking habits, including trends away from certain categories, including major allergen-free, gluten-free and non-GMO products;
- changes in awareness of the social effects of farming and food production;
- changes in consumer perception about trendy snack products;

- changes in consumer perception regarding the healthfulness of our products;
- the level and effectiveness of our sales and marketing efforts;
- any unfavorable publicity regarding gummy products or similar products;
- any unfavorable publicity regarding our brand;
- litigation or threats of litigation with respect to our products;
- the price of our products relative to other competing products;
- price increases resulting from rising commodity costs;
- any changes in government policies and practices related to our products, labeling and markets;
- regulatory developments affecting the manufacturing, labeling, marketing or use of our products;
- new science or research that disputes the healthfulness of our products; and
- adverse decisions or rulings limiting our ability to promote the benefits of supplement products.

Adverse developments with respect to the sale of our products would significantly reduce our net sales and profitability and have a material adverse effect on our ability to maintain profitability and achieve our business plan.

We currently depend exclusively on one third-party co-manufacturer with one location to manufacture our Before You Drink gummies.

The loss of this co-manufacturer or the inability of this co-manufacturer to fulfill our orders would adversely affect our ability to make timely deliveries of our product and would have a material adverse effect on our business.

We rely, in part, on our third-party co-manufacturer to maintain the quality of our products.

The failure or inability of this co-manufacturer to comply with the specifications and requirements of our products could result in product recall and could adversely affect our reputation. Our third-party co-manufacturer is required to maintain the quality of our products and to comply with our product specifications and requirements for certain certifications. Our third-party co-manufacturer is also required to comply with all federal, state and local laws with respect to food safety. Additionally, certain retail customers may require our third-party co-manufacturer to maintain minimum independent certifications, such as SQF Level 2 Certification or Hazard Analysis and Critical Control Points, or HACCP, certification. However, our third-party co-manufacturer may not continue to produce products that are consistent with our standards or that are in compliance with applicable laws, and we cannot guarantee that we will be able to identify instances in which our third-party co-manufacturer fails to comply with our standards or applicable laws. Any such failure, particularly if it is not identified by us, could harm our brand and reputation as well as our customer relationships. We would have these same issues with any new co-manufacturer, and they may be exacerbated due to the newness of the relationship. The failure of any manufacturer to produce products that conform to our standards could materially and adversely affect our reputation in the marketplace and result in product recalls, product liability claims and severe economic loss.

As a supplements company, all of our products must be compliant with applicable Food and Drug Administration (FDA) regulations as well as the laws and regulations of markets outside the United States into which we may sell our products.

We must comply with various FDA rules and regulations, including those regarding product manufacturing, food safety, required testing and appropriate labeling of our products. It is possible that regulations by the FDA and its interpretation thereof may change over time. As such, there is a risk that our products could become non-compliant with the FDA's regulations and any such non-compliance could harm our business.

We plan to expand into Amazon Australia in 2021. The Therapeutic Goods Act of 1989 regulates products containing "such ingredients as herbs, vitamins, minerals, nutritional supplements, homoeopathic and certain aromatherapy preparations" as complementary medicines. We must comply with the applicable rules and regulations of non-U.S. markets in which we offer our products, including those regarding product manufacturing, food safety, required testing and appropriate labeling. It is possible that such regulations may change over time. As such, there is a risk that our products could become non-compliant, and any such non-compliance could harm our business.

Significant additional labeling or warning requirements may inhibit sales of affected products.

Various jurisdictions may seek to adopt significant additional product labeling or warning requirements relating to the content or perceived adverse health consequences of our product(s). If these types of requirements become applicable to our product(s) under current or future environmental or health laws or regulations, they may inhibit sales of such products.

Certain of our raw material contracts have minimum purchase commitments that could require us to continue to purchase raw materials even if our sales have declined.

We are contractually obligated to purchase a certain amount of raw materials from our suppliers even if we do not have the customer demand to sustain such purchases. The purchase of raw materials, which we are not able to convert into finished products and sell to our customers would have a negative effect on our business and results of operations.

Our future business, results of operations and financial condition may be adversely affected by reduced availability of our core ingredients.

Our ability to ensure a continuing supply of our core ingredients at competitive prices depends on many factors beyond our control, such as the number and size of farms that grow crops, poor harvests, changes in national and world economic conditions and our ability to forecast our ingredient requirements. The active ingredients used in our products are vulnerable to adverse weather conditions and natural disasters, such as floods, droughts, frosts, earthquakes, hurricanes and pestilences. Adverse weather conditions and natural disasters can lower crop yields and reduce crop size and quality, which in turn could reduce the available supply of our core ingredients. If supplies of our core ingredients are reduced or there is greater demand for such ingredients, from us and others, we may not be able to obtain sufficient supply on favorable terms, or at all, which could impact our ability to supply products to distributors and retailers.

Failure by our transportation providers to deliver our products on time or at all could result in lost sales.

We currently rely upon third-party transportation providers for a significant portion of our product shipments. Our utilization of delivery services for shipments is subject to risks, including increases in fuel prices, which would increase our shipping costs, and employee strikes and inclement weather, which may impact the ability of providers to provide delivery services that adequately meet our shipping needs. We may, from time to time, change third-party transportation providers, and we could therefore face logistical difficulties that could adversely affect deliveries. We may not be able to obtain terms as favorable as those we receive from the third-party transportation providers that we currently use or may incur additional costs, which in turn would increase our costs and thereby adversely affect our operating results.

If our brand or reputation is damaged, the attractive characteristics that we offer retailers may diminish, which could diminish the value of our business.

We are currently an attractive brand for our customers because our products are high quality and generate a high level of retail sales at a premium margin relative to their shelf space. This is due to both our premium price point and our sales velocity. If our brand or reputation is damaged for any reason, consumers may no longer be willing to pay a premium price for our products and we may no longer be able to generate a high sales velocity at our then-current prices. If we no longer offer these characteristics, retailers may decrease their orders of our products and downgrade the in-store placement of our products, which could have an adverse effect on our business and results of operations.

If our products do not have the effects intended or cause undesirable side effects, our business may suffer.

Although many of the ingredients in our current products are substances for which there is a long history of human consumption, they may also contain innovative ingredients or combinations of ingredients. While we believe that our products and the combinations of ingredients in them are safe when taken as directed, the products could have certain undesirable side effects if not taken as directed or if taken by a consumer who has certain medical conditions such as allergies to product ingredients. Furthermore, there can be no assurance that any of our products, even when used as directed, will have the effects intended or will not have unforeseen harmful side effects. If any of our products or products we develop or commercialize in the future are shown to be harmful or generate negative publicity from perceived harmful effects, our business, financial condition, results of operations, and prospects could be harmed significantly.

We may be subject to product liability claims.

As a dietary supplement company, we are subject to product liability claims if the use of our products is alleged to have resulted in injury or to include inadequate instructions for use or inadequate warnings concerning possible side effects and interactions with other substances. A successful claim brought against us related to our branded products or products that we manufacture for third parties could result in increased costs and could adversely affect our reputation with customers, which could in turn materially adversely affect our business, financial condition and results of operations.

We plan to offer new products in the near future.

There are substantial risks and uncertainties associated with launching a new product line. In developing and marketing new lines of business and/or new products, we may invest significant time and resources. Initial timetables for the introduction and development of new lines of business and/or new products or services may not be achieved and price and profitability targets may not prove feasible. We may not be successful in introducing new products and services in response to industry trends or developments in technology, or those new products may not achieve market acceptance. As a result, we could lose business, be forced to price products and services on less advantageous terms, or be subject to cost increases. As a result, our business, financial condition or results of operations may be adversely affected.

The amount of capital the Company is attempting to raise in this Offering is not enough to sustain the Company's current business plan.

In order to achieve the Company's near and long-term goals, the Company may need to procure funds in addition to the amount raised in the Offering. There is no guarantee the Company will be able to raise such funds on acceptable terms or at all. If we are not able to raise sufficient capital in the future, we will not be able to execute our business plan, our continued operations will be in jeopardy and we may be forced to cease operations and sell or otherwise transfer all or substantially all of our remaining assets, which could cause an Investor to lose all or a portion of his or her investment.

Risks Related to the Securities

The Crowd Notes will not be freely tradable until one year from the initial purchase date. Although the Crowd Notes may be tradable under federal securities law, state securities regulations may apply and each Purchaser should consult with his or her attorney.

You should be aware of the long-term nature of this investment. There is not now and likely will not be a public market for the Crowd Notes. Because the Crowd Notes have not been registered under the Securities Act or under the securities laws of any state or non-United States jurisdiction, the Crowd Notes have transfer restrictions and cannot be resold in the United States except pursuant to Rule 501 of Regulation CF. It is not currently contemplated that registration under the Securities Act or other securities laws will be effected. Transfer of the Crowd Notes is also subject to the prior written approval of the Company, which may be given or withheld in the Company's sole discretion. Limitations on the transfer of the Crowd Notes may also adversely affect the price that you might be able to obtain for the Crowd Notes in a private sale. Purchasers should be aware of the long-term nature of their investment in the Company. Each Purchaser in this Offering will be required to represent that it is purchasing the Securities for its own account, for investment purposes and not with a view to resale or distribution thereof.

Neither the Offering nor the Securities have been registered under federal or state securities laws, leading to an absence of certain regulation applicable to the Company.

No governmental agency has reviewed or passed upon this Offering, the Company or any Securities of the Company. The Company also has relied on exemptions from securities registration requirements under applicable state securities laws. Investors in the Company, therefore, will not receive any of the benefits that such registration would otherwise provide. Prospective investors must therefore assess the adequacy of disclosure and the fairness of the terms of this Offering on their own or in conjunction with their personal advisors.

No Guarantee of Return on Investment

There is no assurance that a Purchaser will realize a return on its investment or that it will not lose its entire investment. For this reason, each Purchaser should read the Form C/A and all Exhibits carefully and should consult with its own attorney and business advisor prior to making any investment decision.

A majority of the Company is owned by a small number of owners.

Prior to the Offering the Company's current owners of 20% or more beneficially own up to 100% of the Company. Subject to any fiduciary duties owed to our other owners or investors under Delaware law, these owners may be able to exercise significant influence over matters requiring owner approval, including the election of directors or managers and approval of significant Company transactions, and will have significant control over the Company's management and policies. Some of these persons may have interests that are different from yours. For example, these owners may support proposals and actions with which you may disagree. The concentration of ownership could delay or prevent a change in control of the Company or otherwise discourage a potential acquirer from attempting to obtain control of the Company, which in turn could reduce the price potential investors are willing to pay for the Company. In addition, these owners could use their voting influence to maintain the Company's existing management, delay or prevent changes in control of the Company, or support or reject other management and board proposals that are subject to owner approval.

There is no present market for the Securities, and we have arbitrarily set the price.

We have arbitrarily set the price of the Securities with reference to the general status of the securities market and other relevant factors. The Offering price for the Securities should not be considered an indication of the actual value of the Securities and is not based on our net worth or prior earnings. We cannot assure you that the Securities could be resold by you at the Offering price or at any other price.

Upon conversion of the Crowd Notes, Purchasers who are not "Major Investors" will grant a proxy to vote their underlying securities to the Intermediary or its affiliate, and, thus, will not have the right to vote on any matters coming before the shareholders of the Company for a vote. By granting this proxy you are giving up your right to vote on important matters, including significant corporate actions like mergers, amendments to our certificate of incorporation, a liquidation of our company and the election of our directors.

Upon conversion of the Crowd Notes and by virtue of a provision contained in the Crowd Notes, if you are not a Major Investor, that is, an investor who has purchased at least $25,000 in principal amount of the Crowd Notes, you will grant a proxy to the intermediary or its affiliate to vote the underlying securities that you will acquire upon conversion on all matters coming before the shareholders for a vote. The intermediary does not have any fiduciary duty to you to vote shares in a manner that is in your best interests. Accordingly, the intermediary may vote its proxy in a manner that may not be in the best interests of you as a security holder. For example, the intermediary may vote the proxy in favor of an amendment to our charter that adversely affects the rights of the holders of your class of securities in order to allow for a new investment to occur where the new investor requires senior rights.

Purchasers will be unable to declare the Security in "default" and demand repayment.

Unlike convertible notes and some other securities, the Securities do not have any "default" provisions upon which the Purchasers will be able to demand repayment of their investment. With respect to Purchasers who invest less than $25,000 in the Securities, the Company has ultimate discretion as to whether or not to convert the Securities upon a future equity financing and such Purchasers have no right to demand such conversion. Only in limited circumstances, such as a liquidity event, may such Purchasers demand payment and even then, such payments will be limited to the amount of cash available to the Company.

You will not have a vote or influence on the management of the Company.

All decisions with respect to the management of the Company will be made exclusively by the officers, directors, managers or employees of the Company. You, as a Purchaser of Crowd Notes, will have no ability to vote on issues of Company management and will not have the right or power to take part in the management of the company and will not be represented on the board of directors or managers of the Company. Accordingly, no person should purchase a Security unless he or she is willing to entrust all aspects of management to the Company.

The Company may never elect to convert the Securities or undergo a liquidity event.

The Company may never receive a future equity financing or, with respect to those Purchasers who invest less than $25,000, elect to convert the Securities upon such future financing. In addition, the Company may never undergo a liquidity event such as a sale of the Company or an IPO. If neither the conversion of the Securities nor a liquidity event occurs, the Purchasers could be left holding the Securities in perpetuity. The Securities have numerous transfer restrictions and will likely be highly illiquid, with no secondary market on which to sell them. The Securities are not equity interests, have no ownership rights, have no rights to the Company's assets or profits and have no voting rights or ability to direct the Company or its actions.

Affiliates of the Company, including officers, directors and existing shareholders of the Company, may invest in this Offering and their funds will be counted toward the Company achieving the Minimum Amount.

There is no restriction on affiliates of the Company, including its officers, directors and existing shareholders, investing in the Offering. As a result, it is possible that if the Company has raised some funds, but not reached the Minimum Amount, affiliates can contribute the balance so that there will be a closing. The Minimum Amount is typically intended to be a protection for investors and gives investors confidence that other investors, along with them, are sufficiently interested in the Offering and the Company and its prospects to make an investment of at least the Minimum Amount. By permitting affiliates to invest in the offering and make up any shortfall between what non-affiliate investors have invested and the Minimum Amount, this protection is largely eliminated. Investors should be aware that no funds other than their own and those of affiliates investing along with them may be invested in this Offering.

The Company has the right to conduct multiple closings during the Offering.

If the Company meets certain terms and conditions an intermediate close of the Offering can occur, which will allow the Company to draw down on a portion of the proceeds of the offering committed and captured during the relevant period. The Company may choose to continue the Offering thereafter. Purchasers should be mindful that this means they can make multiple investment commitments in the offering, which may be subject to different cancellation rights. For example, if an intermediate close occurs and later a material change occurs as the Offering continues, Purchasers previously closed upon will not have the right to re-confirm their investment as it will be deemed completed.

The Company has the right to extend the Offering deadline. The Company has the right to end the Offering early.

The Company may extend the Offering deadline beyond what is currently stated herein. This means that your investment may continue to be held in escrow while the Company attempts to raise the Target Amount even after the Offering deadline stated herein is reached. While you have the right to cancel your investment in the event the Company extends the Offering, if you choose to reconfirm your investment, your investment will simply be held until such time as the new Offering deadline is reached without the Company receiving the Target Amount, at which time it will be returned to you without interest or deduction, or the Company receives the Target Amount, at which time it will be released to the Company to be used as set forth herein. Upon or shortly after release of such funds to the Company, the Securities will be issued and distributed to you. The Company may also end the Offering early; if the Offering reaches its target Offering amount after 30-calendar days but before the deadline, the Company can end the Offering with five business days' notice. This means your failure to participate in the Offering in a timely manner, may prevent you from being able to participate – it also means the Company may limit the amount of capital it can raise during the Offering by ending it early.

In addition to the risks listed above, businesses are often subject to risks not foreseen or fully appreciated by the management. It is not possible to foresee all risks that may affect us. Moreover, the Company cannot predict whether the Company will successfully effectuate the Company's current business plan. Each prospective Purchaser is encouraged to carefully analyze the risks and merits of an investment in the Securities and should take into consideration when making such analysis, among other, the Risk Factors discussed above.

THE SECURITIES OFFERED INVOLVE A HIGH DEGREE OF RISK AND MAY RESULT IN THE LOSS OF YOUR ENTIRE INVESTMENT. ANY PERSON CONSIDERING THE PURCHASE OF THESE SECURITIES SHOULD BE AWARE OF THESE AND OTHER FACTORS SET FORTH IN THIS FORM C/A AND SHOULD CONSULT WITH HIS OR HER LEGAL, TAX AND FINANCIAL ADVISORS PRIOR TO MAKING AN INVESTMENT IN THE SECURITIES. THE SECURITIES SHOULD ONLY BE PURCHASED BY PERSONS WHO CAN AFFORD TO LOSE ALL OF THEIR INVESTMENT.

BUSINESS

Description of the Business

Toast! develops dietary supplements, led by its flagship product, the Before You Drink gummy, designed to be consumed before a night of drinking. Toast!'s initial product, the Before You Drink gummy, was developed through a partnership with Dr. Joris Verster, founder of the Alcohol Hangover Research Group. The Before You Drink gummy is designed to restore key nutrients and support your liver. Toast! has expanded its product line to include an immune support and melatonin-based gummy. We sell both direct-to-consumer (DTC) via online marketplaces and our branded domain, and we're working to expand our wholesale business-to-business (B2B).

Business Plan

Our flagship product, the Before You Drink (BYD) gummy, is a gummy bear supplement designed to help your body process alcohol, support liver health, and restore key nutrients. The BYD gummy is powered by our proprietary functional formula which we developed in cooperation with clinical researcher Dr. Joris Verster, founder of the Alcohol Hangover Research Group. Unlike existing pills, powders, and beverages, we believe our gummies offer an appealing and tasty format that is also shareable and portable, and we have partnered with an American candymaker to produce a candy quality gummy. Our packaging is designed for point of sale impulse purchases at convenience stores, gas stations, liquor stores, and other retailers, and we have partnered with AATAC to begin our expansion into those channels. Currently sold exclusively in the US, we plan to offer worldwide DTC shipping starting this June. Finally, we plan to conduct a publishable study of our BYD gummies to prove their efficacy versus a placebo, which we aim to complete by the end of this year. Beyond our BYD gummies, we continue to research and develop new proprietary products designed to help with widespread functional health issues such as sleep, energy, and stress. We utilize clinically researched natural ingredients, innovative and appealing formats and packaging, and aim to distribute our products into channels untapped by existing competitors including hotels, resorts, bars, clubs, casinos, and more.

We also have plans to introduce worldwide shipping on our branded domain with the launch of our updated BYD gummies, as well as expand to Amazon Australia in 2021. We are also developing a new sleep product in both powder and tea formats, with proceeds of the Offering used to pilot this new fully proprietary product by the end of this year. We are constantly evaluating new potential private label offerings, and proceeds from the Offering may be used to pilot a new private label line(s).

As an omnichannel brand, we offer our products online in a variety of marketplaces as well as wholesale. We sell our products D2C through our branded domain (alwaystoast.com) as well as marketplaces including Amazon, Walmart, and Google. We sell our products online through wholesale marketplaces including Faire, Bulletin, MeetMable, and others. Competition

The Company’s primary competitors are MoreLabs, Flyby, Blowfish, and LiquidIV.

We compete most directly with other supplements marketed to alcohol consumers, and we also compete indirectly with hydration drinks and powders. The marketplace among direct competitors is highly fragmented among a number of pill, powder, and beverage products.

Indirect competitors include products owned by multinational corporations with significant financial resources and brand equity. As the only gummy product currently in our space, we compete on the consumer appeal of our format, as well as efficacy and packaging; in the broader supplements category we compete on the basis of these same factors, consumer appeal of our unique formats and packaging as well as functional efficacy.

Customer Base

Our customers include alcohol consumers aged 21 to 65+ across the United States, as well as generally health-conscious consumers.

Operations

The Company completed its seed round of financing in January 2019, and additional seed financing was conducted in 2020. Following the Offering, we do not intend to raise capital again until we are ready to seek Series A financing. We are currently focusing on driving DTC growth on our branded domain as well as retail adoption and distribution; while we intend to drive growth as profitability as possible, we plan to test a variety of channels and tactics and anticipate that some or all will not prove profitable.

The Company intends to focus on driving DTC growth on our branded domain, top line revenue growth, as well as driving retail adoption and distribution. During that time, the Company will continue to drive towards increased margins through supply cost reductions as well as through increased scale and will test various marketing channels to determine its most profitable channels for increased reinvestment.

Liquidity and Capital Resources

The Offering proceeds are essential to our operations and plans. We plan to use the proceeds as set forth above under "use of proceeds", which is an indispensable element of our business strategy. The Offering proceeds will have a beneficial effect on our liquidity, as the majority of our current cash on hand is earmarked towards inventory of our updated BYD gummies, with our next batch anticipated to produce approximately $250,000 in retail value inventory which we will market with a portion of Offering proceeds.

The Company continues to evaluate potential additional raises from prospective angels and other investors.

Capital Expenditures and Other Obligations

The Company does not intend to make any material capital expenditures in the future.

Trends and Uncertainties

After reviewing the above discussion of the steps the Company intends to take, potential Purchasers should consider whether achievement of each step within the estimated time frame is realistic in their judgment. Potential Purchasers should also assess the consequences to the Company of any delays in taking these steps and whether the Company will need additional financing to accomplish them.

The financial statements are an important part of this Form C/A and should be reviewed in their entirety. The financial statements of the Company are attached hereto as Exhibit A.

THE OFFERING AND THE SECURITIES

The Offering

The Company is offering up to $250,000.00 in principal amount of Crowd Notes. The Company is attempting to raise a minimum amount of $25,000.00 in this Offering (the "Minimum Amount"). The Company must receive commitments from investors in an amount totaling the Minimum Amount by November 22, 2021 (the "Offering Deadline") in order to receive any funds. If the sum of the investment commitments does not equal or exceed the Minimum Amount by the Offering Deadline, no Securities will be sold in the Offering, investment commitments will be cancelled and committed funds will be returned to potential investors without interest or deductions. If the Company has received the Minimum Amount by the Offering Deadline, the Company has the right to extend the Offering Deadline at its discretion. The Company will accept investments in excess of the Minimum Amount up to $250,000.00 (the "Maximum Amount"), and the additional Securities will be allocated at the Company's discretion.

The price of the Securities does not necessarily bear any relationship to the Company's asset value, net worth, revenues or other established criteria of value, and should not be considered indicative of the actual value of the Securities.

In order to purchase the Securities, you must make a commitment to purchase by completing the Subscription Agreement. Purchaser funds will be held in escrow with Evolve Bank & Trust until the Minimum Amount of investments is reached. Purchasers may cancel an investment commitment until 48 hours prior to the Offering Deadline or the Closing, whichever comes first using the cancellation mechanism provided by the Intermediary. The Company will notify Purchasers when the Minimum Amount has been reached. If the Company reaches the Minimum Amount prior to the Offering Deadline, it may close the Offering at least five (5) days after reaching the Minimum Amount and providing notice to the Purchasers. If any material change (other than reaching the Minimum Amount) occurs related to the Offering prior to the Offering Deadline, the Company will provide notice to Purchasers and receive reconfirmations from Purchasers who have already made commitments. If a Purchaser does not reconfirm his or her investment commitment after a material change is made to the terms of the Offering, the Purchaser's investment commitment will be cancelled, and the committed funds will be returned without interest or deductions.

If a Purchaser does not cancel an investment commitment before the Offering Deadline, the funds will be released to the Company upon closing of the Offering, and the Purchaser will receive the Securities in exchange for his or her investment. Any Purchaser funds received after the initial closing will be released to the Company upon a subsequent closing and the Purchaser will receive Securities in exchange for his or her investment as soon as practicable thereafter.

In the event that at least $75,000 in investments is committed and received by the escrow agent and more than thirty (30) days remain before the Offering Deadline, the Company may, at the discretion of the Intermediary, conduct the first of multiple closings of the Offering (an "Intermediate Close") and withdraw funds from escrow, provided that all investors receive notice that an Intermediate Close will occur and funds will be released to the Company, at least five (5) business days prior to the Intermediate Close (absent a material change that would require an extension of the offering and reconfirmation of the investment commitment). Investors who committed on or before such notice will have until 48 hours before the Intermediate Close to cancel their investment commitment.

Thereafter, the Company may, at the discretion of the Intermediary, only conduct another Intermediate Close before the Offering Deadline if (i) the amount of investment commitments made and received in escrow exceeds $125,000 since the time of the last Intermediate Close, and (ii) more than thirty (30) days remain before the Offering Deadline.

If a Purchaser does not cancel an investment commitment before an Intermediate Close or before the Offering Deadline, the funds will be released to the Company upon closing of the Offering and the Purchaser will receive the Securities in exchange for his or her investment. Any Purchaser funds received after the initial closing will be released to the Company upon a subsequent closing, and the Purchaser will receive Securities in exchange for his or her investment as soon as practicable thereafter.

The Company has agreed to return all funds to investors in the event a Form C-W is ultimately filed in relation to this Offering, regardless of any subsequent closes.

Subscription Agreements are not binding on the Company until accepted by the Company, which reserves the right to reject, in whole or in part, in its sole and absolute discretion, any subscription. If the Company rejects all or a portion of any subscription, the applicable prospective Purchaser's funds will be returned without interest or deduction.

The price of the Securities was determined arbitrarily. The minimum amount that a Purchaser may invest in the Offering is $100.00.

The Offering is being made through MicroVenture Marketplace, Inc., the Intermediary. The following two fields set forth the compensation being paid in connection with the Offering.

Commission/Fees

The Company shall pay to the Intermediary at the conclusion of the Offering a fee consisting of five percent (5.0%) commission based on the amount of investments raised in the offering and paid upon disbursement of funds from escrow at the time of closing.

Stock, Warrants and Other Compensation

The intermediary will receive a number of Crowd Notes of the issuer that is equal to two percent (2.0%) of the total number of Crowd Notes sold by the issuer in the Offering.

Transfer Agent and Registrar

The Company will act as transfer agent and registrar for the Securities.

The Securities

We request that you please review our offering materials and the Crowd Note(s) in conjunction with the following summary information.

Authorized Capitalization

See “CAPITALIZATION AND OWNERSHIP” above.

General

A Crowd Note is similar to a SAFE (Simple Agreement for Future Equity) security where an investor makes a cash investment in our company, but receives company stock at a later date in connection with a specific event. Although the security is called a Crowd Note, the Crowd Note is not a debt instrument. It is intended to be an alternative to a convertible note that is beneficial for both our company and you as an investor.

Events Triggering Conversion of Crowd Notes

If you are a Major Investor, which is defined as an investor who invests at least $25,000 in this offering, then the specified event upon which the Crowd Notes would convert into capital stock of our company is (i) a Qualified Equity Financing, which we define below, or (ii) a Corporate Transaction, which we define below, if instead of receiving two times (2X) the outstanding principal of your Crowd Note, your Crowd Note converts immediately prior to the closing of the Corporate Transaction.

If you are not a Major Investor, then the Crowd Notes will only convert into capital stock of our company upon the earlier of (i) our company’s election to convert your Crowd Note, including upon a Qualified Equity Financing if our company elects to convert your Crowd Note then, or (ii) a Corporate Transaction, if instead of receiving two times (2x) the outstanding principal of your Crowd Note, your Crowd Note converts immediately prior to the closing of the Corporate Transaction.

Qualified Equity Financing

The Crowd Note defines “Qualified Equity Financing” as the first sale (or series of related sales) by us of our preferred stock following the closing of this offering from which we receive gross proceeds of not less than $1,000,000.00 (excluding the aggregate amount of securities converted into preferred stock in connection with such sale (or series of related sales)).

If the Crowd Note converts into equity in connection with a Qualified Equity Financing, then we will convert the Crowd Note into shares of our preferred stock that are issued in connection with the Qualified Equity Financing, which we refer to as Conversion Shares, equal to the quotient obtained by dividing the outstanding principal amount of the Crowd Note by the Conversion Price, which is defined below. The issuance of Conversion Shares will be on the same terms and conditions applicable to the stock sold in the Qualified Equity Financing; provided, however, that if you are not a Major Investor, you will receive shares of a shadow series, as we describe below, with certain limited rights. The Conversion Price applicable to a Qualified Equity Financing is the lower of:

(i) the product of (a) one minus any applicable Discount, and (b) the price paid per share for preferred stock by the investors in the Qualified Equity Financing, or

(ii) the quotient resulting from dividing (a) the Valuation Cap by (b) the total number of our shares of capital stock that are outstanding on a fully diluted basis (assuming for this purpose the exercise, exchange or conversion of all securities exercisable or exchangeable for, or convertible into, our capital stock), immediately prior to the closing of the Qualified Equity Financing.

Any investor who is not a Major Investor will receive a shadow series of preferred stock upon conversion of such investor's Crowd Note. A shadow series is a series of our preferred stock that is identical in all respects to the shares of preferred stock issued in the Qualified Equity Financing (e.g., if the Company sells Series A Preferred Stock in the Qualified Equity Financing, the shadow series would be Series A-1 Preferred Stock), except that the liquidation preference per share of the shadow series shall equal the Conversion Price and the following additional differences will apply:

(i) shadow series shareholders will grant their vote on any matter that is submitted to a vote or for the consent of the stockholders of our company (except for on matters required by law) by irrevocable proxy; and

(ii) shadow series shareholders will receive quarterly business updates from the company through the Platform but will have no additional information or inspection rights (except with respect to such rights which are required by law).

Corporate Transaction and Corporate Transaction Payment

The Crowd Note defines "Corporate Transaction" as

(i) the closing of the sale, transfer or other disposition of all or substantially all of our assets,

(ii) the consummation of the merger or consolidation of our company with or into another entity (except a merger or consolidation in which the holders of capital stock of our company immediately prior to such merger or consolidation continue to hold at least 50% of the voting power of the capital stock of our company or the surviving or acquiring entity),

(iii) the closing of the transfer (whether by merger, consolidation or otherwise), in one transaction or a series of related transactions, to a person or group of affiliated persons (other than an underwriter of our securities), of securities of our company if, after such closing, such person or group of affiliated persons would hold 50% or more of the outstanding voting stock of our company (or the surviving or acquiring entity), or

(iv) the initial public offering, liquidation, dissolution or winding up of our company; provided, however, that a transaction shall not constitute a Corporate Transaction if its sole purpose is to change the state of our incorporation or to create a holding company that will be owned in substantially the same proportions by the persons who held our securities immediately prior to such transaction.

In the event of a Corporate Transaction (defined above), you will receive the higher value of (i) an amount equal to two times (2x) the price you paid for your Crowd Note (i.e., 2x your principal amount) or (ii) the number of shares of preferred stock of the Company calculated by (a) multiplying the price you paid for your Crowd Note by the total number of our shares of capital stock that are outstanding on a fully diluted basis (assuming for this purpose the exercise, exchange or conversion of all securities exercisable or exchangeable for, or convertible into, our capital stock), immediately prior to the closing of the Qualified Equity Financing, and (b) dividing the product of that calculation by the Valuation Cap.

If there are not enough funds to pay you and other Crowd Note investors in full, then proceeds from the respective transaction will be distributed with equal priority and pro rata among the Crowd Note investors in proportion to their Purchase Price.

Termination of Crowd Note

The Crowd Notes will terminate upon the earlier of (i) a conversion of the entire purchase price under the Crowd Notes into Conversion Shares; or (ii) the payment of amounts due to the investor pursuant to a Corporate Transaction.

No Voting Rights, No Shareholders Agreement and No Anti-Dilution Rights

The Crowd Notes do not have any voting rights. Further, upon conversion of the Crowd Notes into Conversion Shares, shadow series shareholders shall grant their vote on any matter that is submitted to a vote or for the consent of the members of the Company (except for on matters required by law) by irrevocable proxy.

The Company does not have any shareholder/equity holder agreements in place.

The Securities do not have anti-dilution rights.

Restrictions on Transfer

Any Securities sold pursuant to Regulation CF being offered may not be transferred by any Purchaser of such Securities during the one-year holding period beginning when the Securities were issued, unless such Securities are transferred: i) to the Company, ii) to an accredited investor, as defined by Rule 501(d) of Regulation D promulgated under the Securities Act, iii) as part of an IPO or iv) to a member of the family of the Investor or the equivalent, to a trust controlled by the Purchaser, to a trust created for the benefit of a member of the family of the Investor or the equivalent, or in connection with the death or divorce of the Investor or other similar circumstances. Toast Supplements Inc.

Notes to Financial Statements

For Fiscal Years ended December 31, 2019 and 2020 (Unaudited)

NOTE 1 – Nature of Operations

Toast Supplements Inc. was a MA corporation founded in 2018 that was subsequently acquired by a DE Corporation of the same name. The company's principal purpose is to manufacture and sell dietary supplements and related products. Since inception, the Company has relied on funding from its founder, an early stage VC (Mucker Labs), and independent angels. Historically the Company has produced negative cash flow from operations and may incur additional losses prior to generating positive working capital. These matters raise substantial concern about the Company's ability to continue as a going concern (see Note 3). During the next six months, the Company intends to fund its operations with funding from a crowdfunding campaign (see Note 7), the receipt of funds from revenue producing activities, if and when such can be realized, as well as working capital contributions from its founder and from revenue based financing lenders. If the Company cannot secure additional capital, it may cease operations. These financial statements and related notes thereto do not include any adjustments that might result from these uncertainties.

NOTE 2 – Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

Basis of Presentation

The financial statements have been prepared in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America (GAAP). The unaudited financials do not necessarily contain all of the information and notes required by GAAP for complete financial statements. In the opinion of management, all adjustments considered necessary for a fair presentation have been included. The company's fiscal year is based on the regular calendar year.

Use of Estimates

The preparation of financial statements in accordance with GAAP requires management to make estimates and assumptions in determining the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and the reported amounts of income and expense during the reporting period. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

Risks and Uncertainties

The Company's business and operations are sensitive to general economic conditions in the United States. Factors beyond the Company's control could cause fluctuations in these conditions. Adverse conditions may include recession, increased competition, or changes in consumer preferences. These adverse conditions could affect the Company's financial condition and the results of its operations. The company's industry is highly competitive, and the company cannot guarantee that it can compete effectively against the other businesses in its industry.

Concentration of Credit Risk

The Company maintains its cash with a major financial institution located in the United States of America, which it believes to be credit worthy. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation insures balances up to $250,000. In the future the Company may maintain balances in excess of the federally insured limits.

Cash and Cash Equivalents

The Company considers all highly liquid investments purchased with a maturity of three months or less to be cash equivalents. Cash consists of funds in the Company's checking account. At times, bank deposits may exceed federally insured limits. The Company has not experienced any losses on its cash and cash equivalents. At December 31, 2020 and 2019, the Company had cash and cash equivalents of $51,909 and $25,001 respectively.

Revenue Recognition

The Company earns revenue by selling its products to consumers either via Direct To Consumer (DTC) online sales or wholesale to retailers and records revenue when the product has shipped to the final customer and payment has been received in the Company's checking account.

Fixed Assets

Fixed Assets over a certain dollar value are capitalized and depreciation is provided using the straight-line method, based on useful lives of the assets which range from three to fifteen years. Amortization is provided over the useful life of an asset. Expenditures for maintenance and repairs are charged to expense. When assets are retired or sold, the cost and related accumulated depreciation or amortization are eliminated from the accounts and the resultant gain or loss is reflected in income.

Inventory

When applicable, the Company records inventory at the lower of the cost of producing the product or at the ascertainable market price. Adjustments are made periodically for obsolescence, shrinkage and loss. The company uses the first in, first out (FIFO) method of counting inventory.

Prepaid Expenses

Prepaid expenses represent expenditures that have not yet been recorded by a company as an expense, but have been paid for in advance. As of December 31, 2019 and December 31, 2020, these include prepaid affiliate fees, prepaid expenses for warehousing and prepaid rent that will be fully amortized by early 2021.

Loans Payable

Periodically, the majority shareholder will incur expenses personally for the business and these items are recorded as a Loan Payable to the Shareholder.

Long Term Debt

As of December 31, 2020, the company had issued $220,000 in Convertible Notes. Interest is accrued pursuant to the terms of the Convertible Notes.

Equity

As of December 31, 2020, the company had issued $46,100 in Common Stock.

Cost of Goods Sold

For the years ending December 31, 2019 and 2020, cost of goods sold were recorded in the same accounting period as product sales revenue was recorded.

Advertising

The Company expenses any advertising costs as they are incurred.

NOTE 3 – GOING CONCERN

These financial statements are prepared on a going concern basis. The Company began operation in 2018. The Company's ability to continue may be dependent upon management's plan to raise additional funds and achieve profitable operations. The financial statements do not include any adjustments that might be necessary if the Company is not able to continue as a going concern.

NOTE 4 – INCOME TAX PROVISION

The Company has filed its corporate income tax return for the period December 2019 and December 2020. The income tax returns will remain subject to examination by the Internal Revenue Service under the statute of limitations for a period of three years from the date it is filed.

NOTE 5 – COMMITMENTS AND CONTINGENCIES

The Company is not currently involved with and does not know of any pending or threatening litigation.

NOTE 6 - RELATED PARTY TRANSACTIONS

The Company has issued $16,139.04 of subordinated debt to the sole owner, Sean O'Neill. The indebtedness does not have a maturity date, interest rate, or repayment schedule and will be repaid at the Company's discretion.

The Company has issued $55,000 of convertible notes to Sean O'Neill's immediate family members. Please see the Form C for additional information regarding convertible note terms.

NOTE 7 – SUBSEQUENT EVENTS

Anticipated Crowdfunded Offering

The Company intends to offer up to $250,000 of securities (the “Offering”). The Company must receive commitments from investors totaling the minimum amount by the offering deadline listed in the Form C, and as amended, in order to receive any funds. The Offering is being made through MicroVenture Marketplace, Inc. which shall be compensated as detailed in the Form C for serving as intermediary for the Offering.

Management’s Evaluation

COMPANY SUMMARY

Opportunity

Approximately three-quarters of Americans incorporate dietary supplements in their daily routine. As overall wellbeing is the primary focus for these individuals, supplement usage has risen since the COVID-19 pandemic, with 91% of supplement users reporting increasing their supplement usage in some form.^{iv} Globally, this trend towards seeking better health has given rise to a $140 billion industry. North America is currently dominating the market, and the U.S. is a leading country in this region. Grandview Research anticipates North America to take a backseat to Europe and Asia Pacific by 2028, pointing towards a growth opportunity for supplement manufacturers who look abroad.^v

Toast! has developed three supplement products to help restore nutrients and support the liver, support sleep quality, and immune support. Primarily sold direct-to-consumer, Toast! had a record quarter in Q4 2020 after selling over $64,000 of dietary supplements. Currently sold in the U.S., Toast! aims to become a staple brand within convenience store locations through its partnership with AATAC, a national association of retailers and regional operators of over 80,000 convenient store locations throughout the U.S. and Puerto Rico, including stores like 7-Eleven, Sunoco, and Circle K.^{vi}

To date, Toast! has raised a total of $220,000 via convertible notes and has grown organically, largely from referrals. The company is seeking additional capital to ramp up its marketing efforts, develop new products, and improve existing products. The company aims to keep scaling in the U.S. and eventually move into international territory to take advantage of a global opportunity.

Products

MICROVENTURES

Toast!'s flagship product is the Before You Drink (BYD) gummy, which is made from the following ingredients that may ease hangover symptoms according to various studies:

- Prickly Pear: Helps reduce the inflammatory response of the body caused by hangovers^{vii}
- Milk Thistle: May detoxify harmful byproducts from metabolized alcohol^{viii}
- Matcha Green Tea: Contains antioxidants in which may help the liver detoxify the toxins left behind from metabolized alcohol^{ix}
- L-Cysteine: An amino acid that helps the liver process excess alcohol and may help reduce anxiety and stress^x
- Zinc: In a recent study, drinking alcohol and dietary intake of zinc and nicotinic acid were associated with less severe hangovers compared to no dietary intake of zinc and nicotinic acid^{xi}
- Thiamin: As a B1 vitamin, Thiamin is depleted following alcohol assumption. While there isn't conclusive evidence to suggest thiamin is a cure for hangovers, it may help heal your brain after a night out.^{xii}
- Niacin: As a B3 vitamin, Niacin (nicotinic acid) alone may not relieve hangover symptoms.^{xiii} Although according to a study conducted by Dr. Joris Verster, "social drinkers who have a higher dietary intake of niacin and zinc reported significantly less severe hangovers"^{xiv}

USER TRACTION

Toast! joined Mucker Capital's Accelerator program in January 2019 and received $160,000 of capital to jumpstart the development of the BYD gummy. Some of Mucker's popular exits include TaskRabbit, Honey, Modus, and Wallaby.^{xxiii}

Toast! operated semi-stealth from its product launch in January 2019 until the improved BYD gummy launched in September 2020. Following the launch in September 2020, Toast! recorded sales of over $64,000 in Q4 2020 with virtually no advertising expenses.

In 2021, Toast! partnered with AATAC, a national association of retailers and regional operators of over 80,000 convenient store locations throughout the U.S. and Puerto Rico, including stores like 7-Eleven, Sunoco, and Circle K.^{xxiv}

In addition to its formal partnerships, Toast! has a supplier relationship with Tenzo, which provides the company with matcha green tea, a key ingredient for its BYD gummy. Tenzo has also done co-marketing campaigns with Toast! in the past to promote healthy lifestyles and the possible benefits of adding supplements into your daily life.

HISTORICAL FINANCIALS

Revenue

Toast!'s quarterly revenue in the last two years has been hovering between $3,000 and $7,000, except for the spike in Q4 2019, which contributed over $15,000 to the top line. Q4 2020 was Toast!'s best quarter by far, resulting in total revenue (fewer discounts and returns) of $64,035 from about $66,000 of product sales. Q1 2021 was its second-highest quarter in terms of revenue, as Toast! Sold $19,679 of product.

MICROVENTURES

Quarterly Revenue (Q1 '19 - Q1 '21)

Gross Profit Margins

Toast! has effectively managed its product costs as it scales for growth, exemplified by an increasing gross profit margin. After negative gross margins in Q1 2019, Toast! achieved gross margins of 40-50% in each quarter in 2019. In 2020, quarterly gross margins remained above 60%. Toast! ended its fiscal year with gross margins of 71% in Q4 and performed similarly in Q1 2021.

Quarterly Gross Profit Margin (Q1 '19 - Q1 '21)

Operating Expenses

The company's operating expenses were highest right after the brand's inception due to consulting expenses to develop and launch Toast! Following Q2 2019, the company's expenses remained relatively stable for a few quarters as it began promoting and shipping orders. In Q4 2020, operating expenses spiked to over $30,000 due to an increase in outbound shipping expenses of about $15,000 to account for a record increase in purchase orders for the quarter. In Q1 2021, operating expenses decreased by about $10,000 due to a decrease in shipping costs.

Net Loss and Cash Position

Toast! has recorded a net loss for each quarter, which have been largely caused by inventory write-offs in the most recent quarters. In Q3 and Q4 of 2020, the company recorded inventory write-offs relating to its beta-tested gummy of $13,210 and $36,344, respectively—the current formulation has not been written off. Q1 2021 was the best quarter since inception in terms of net income. While negative, the company's $10,000 decrease in shipping costs benefited the company's bottom line.

Quarterly Net Income (Q1 '19 - Q1 '21)

In 2020, Toast! had an average monthly cash burn rate of $3,200, which increased to $5,380 within the first quarter of 2021. The company had approximately $35,000 of cash on hand at the end of Q1 2021.

MICROVENTURES

In 2019, dietary supplement use in the U.S. reached an all-time high as supplements have become more mainstream than ever before. According to a survey conducted by CRN, more than a third (77%) of Americans reported consuming dietary supplements. The survey also found that usage is not heavily skewed towards a certain age group, geographic region, demographic, or gender. While females use slightly more supplements than men and adults tend to consume more than their younger counterparts, dietary supplements are increasingly becoming a staple in everyday life.^{xxv}

In its 2020 survey, CRN reported total supplement usage dipped slightly to 76% of surveyed participants. Despite the negligible decline in usage statistics, supplement users are consuming more than in the previous year. 91% of total supplement users mentioned increasing their daily supplement intake in some form, which may be attributed to the COVID-19 pandemic.^{xxvi}

The popularity of dietary supplements extends beyond the U.S. borders. The global dietary supplement market was valued at $140.3 billion in 2020 and is expected to increase at a compounded annual growth rate (CAGR) of 8.6% from 2021 to 2028. Probably the most obvious reason driving its growth is an increasing awareness towards personal health and wellbeing. Adult usage is primarily driven by the need to fulfill essential nutrients amidst busy working lives. Regionally, North America is leading this market at about 35.7% market share in 2020. Europe also accounted for a significant portion of the market in 2020. The Asia Pacific region is expected to experience rapid growth in the next few years and become the leading region by 2028.^{xxvii}

The hangover rehydration market is a small but growing segment of the global dietary supplement market. In 2019, this market was valued at $1.9 billion and is expected to outpace the dietary supplements market in terms of growth, growing at a 14.1% CAGR until 2027. By then, the market is expected to reach $4.6 billion. Contributing to its rise is the increasing consumption of alcohol and growing awareness of anti-hangover products.^{xxviii}

The hangover rehydration market competes with the electrolyte drinks market, which is estimated to reach $1.42 billion in 2021 and grow at a 3.2% CAGR until 2026. Drinks within this market replenish sodium, potassium, calcium, magnesium, and phosphate levels, which are important for muscle and nerve stimulation. While driven by the rise of physical activity among Gen Z and Millennials,^{xxix} replenishing electrolytes after a night of drinking may serve as a temporary hangover reliever.^{xxx} This relatively mature market is led by leading brands including Gatorade and Powerade.^{xxxi}

Venture Financing

Toast! competes in the broader food products category. Highlights from venture capital financing in food products companies from 2010 to 2020 include:^{xxxii}

- Capital invested reached a 10-year high in 2020 with $8.46 billion invested during the year, a 47% increase from 2019
- Deal count peaked in 2019, with 1,372 total deals
- From 2010-2020, there just over $33 billion invested in food products companies across 9,463 total deals

He developed Toast!'s business plan and developed the beta-concept of the BYD gummy while studying for his MBA at Babson College, and in early-2019, he officially launched the Before You Drink gummy. O'Neill holds a B.A. in Economics and graduated Summa Cum Laude, Phi Beta Kappa, with Departmental Honors from Tulane University. 8. Obligations Irrevocable. Following the Closing, the obligations of the undersigned shall be irrevocable.

9. Legend. The certificates, book entry or other form of notation representing the Securities sold pursuant to this Subscription Agreement will be notated with a legend or designation, which communicates in some manner that the Securities were issued pursuant to Section 4(a)(6) of the Securities Act and may only be resold pursuant to Rule 501 of Regulation CF.

10. Waiver, Amendment. Neither this Subscription Agreement nor any provisions hereof shall be modified, changed, discharged or terminated except by an instrument in writing, signed by the party against whom any waiver, change, discharge or termination is sought.

11. Assignability. Neither this Subscription Agreement nor any right, remedy, obligation or liability arising hereunder or by reason hereof shall be assignable by either the Company or the undersigned without the prior written consent of the other party.

12. Waiver of Jury Trial. THE UNDERSIGNED IRREVOCABLY WAIVES ANY AND ALL RIGHT TO TRIAL BY JURY WITH RESPECT TO ANY LEGAL PROCEEDING ARISING OUT OF THE TRANSACTIONS CONTEMPLATED BY THIS SUBSCRIPTION AGREEMENT.

13. Dispute Resolution.

a) General Rule.

Any dispute under this Subscription Agreement will be resolved through arbitration, not through the court system. All arbitration will be conducted in the state where the executive office of the Company is located at such time, unless both parties agree otherwise in writing in a specific case. All arbitration will be conducted before a single arbitrator in following the rules of the American Arbitration Association. Except as required by law, neither a party nor the arbitrator may disclose the existence, content or results of any arbitration without the prior written consent of the other parties.

b) Appeal of Award.

Within thirty days of a final award by the single arbitrator, either party may appeal the award for reconsideration by a three-arbitrator panel. If there is an appeal, the other party may cross-appeal within thirty days after notice of the appeal. The panel will reconsider all aspects of the initial award that are appealed, including related findings of fact.

c) Effect of Award.

Any award by the individual arbitrator that is not subject to appeal, and any panel award on appeal, shall be final and binding, except for any appeal right under the Federal Arbitration Act, and may be entered as a judgment in any court of competent jurisdiction.

d) No Class Action Claims.

NO ARBITRATION SHALL PROCEED ON A CLASS, REPRESENTATIVE, OR COLLECTIVE BASIS. No party may join, consolidate, or otherwise bring claims for or on behalf of two or more individuals or unrelated corporate entities in the same arbitration unless those persons are parties to a single transaction. An award in arbitration shall determine the rights and obligations of the named parties only, and only with respect to the claims in arbitration, and shall not (i) determine the rights, obligations, or interests of anyone other than a named party, or resolve any claim of anyone other than a named party, or (ii) make an award for the benefit of, or against, anyone other than a named party. No administrator or arbitrator shall have the power or authority to waive, modify, or fail to enforce this paragraph, and any attempt to do so, whether by rule, policy, and arbitration decision or otherwise, shall be invalid and unenforceable. Any challenge to the validity of this paragraph shall be determined exclusively by a court and not by the administrator or any arbitrator. If this paragraph shall be deemed unenforceable, then any proceeding in the nature of a class action shall be handled in court, not in arbitration.

14. Governing Law. This Subscription Agreement shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of the State of Delaware, without regard to conflict of law principles thereof.

15. Section and Other Headings. The section and other headings contained in this Subscription Agreement are for reference purposes only and shall not affect the meaning or interpretation of this Subscription Agreement.

16. Counterparts. This Subscription Agreement may be executed in any number of counterparts, each of which when so executed and delivered shall be deemed to be an original and all of which together shall be deemed to be one and the same agreement.

17. Notices. All notices and other communications provided for herein shall be in writing and shall be deemed to have been duly given if delivered personally or sent by registered or certified mail, return receipt requested, postage prepaid or email to the following addresses (or such other address as either party shall have specified by notice in writing to the other):

18. Binding Effect. The provisions of this Subscription Agreement shall be binding upon and accrue to the benefit of the parties hereto and their respective heirs, legal representatives, successors and assigns.

19. Survival. All representations, warranties and covenants contained in this Subscription Agreement shall survive (i) the acceptance of the subscription by the Company, (ii) changes in the transactions, documents and instruments described in the Form C/A which are not material or which are to the benefit of the undersigned and (iii) the death or disability of the undersigned.

20. Notification of Changes. The undersigned hereby covenants and agrees to notify the Company upon the occurrence of any event prior to the closing of the purchase of the Securities pursuant to this Subscription Agreement, which would cause any representation, warranty, or covenant of the undersigned contained in this Subscription Agreement to be false or incorrect.

According to the CDC's alcohol and public health data, the United States lost over $200 billion dollars in 2010 due to excess drinking, with losses in workplace productivity accounting for over 70% of that total.ⁱ While the data attributes most of these costs to binge drinking, a January 2020 study found that 80% of respondents reported moderate hangover symptoms after only 3 drinks the night before.ⁱⁱ

Based on the latest clinical science and powered by natural ingredients like milk thistle and matcha green tea, the Before You Drink gummy is a unique product, a gummy supplement created to help restore key nutrients and support your liver so you can celebrate and still feel great. And unlike existing products, such as pills or drinks, our gummies are portable and shareable, as well as tasty and appealing for consumers. And with their point-of-sale format and high margins, we believe they are appealing to retailers as well.

There is huge market potential. According to the CDC, two-thirds of all Americans over the age of 18 drank alcohol in 2019ⁱⁱⁱ and our existing customers range from their early 20s to early 70s. That said, we primarily target working professionals from their mid 20s to mid 50s, with multiple known demos within that group. We also target major events like weddings, bachelor parties, and family trips.

We launched our updated Before You Drink gummies last September and stocked out within 3 months with barely a penny spent on marketing. We've received rave reviews on their taste and efficacy, including a 9 of 10 from Chris Null of Drinkhacker who called them "quite delightful, almost like candy"^{iv}. But it hasn't just been consumers. We were also approached by AATAC, the Asian American Trade Associations Council, the largest convenience store association in the United States whose members control over 80,000 locations across the country under banners including 7/11, Circle K, and more, with AATAC looking to bring our products to their members.^v

Toast! has largely built itself on organic sales to date, but now we are poised to drive growth both online as well as through wholesale. We have further updated our Before You Drink gummies with our latest version expected to launch in August with an even further improved flavor and an updated packaging design, we have a new proprietary sleep line, and we're even launching into our first international market, Australia, this summer.

I'm Sean O'Neill, I'm the founder of Toast! and a Babson MBA and an experienced entrepreneur. I developed our initial product over the course of two years and have since partnered with Dr. Joris Verster, who's a longtime clinical researcher and the founder of the Alcohol Hangover Research Group. Dr. Verster not only studies alcohol and hangovers, but he is also a longtime clinical researcher on sleep,^{vi} and he has helped with developing our active formulations. Toast! is a member of Mucker Labs and Amazon Launchpad,^{vii} with access to a deep and varied network.

We are confident that we have a unique product that is poised to address a huge market,^{viii} and we're really poised to drive a lot of growth this year, so I hope that you'll join us by investing in our MicroVentures campaign. And remember, Always Toast! Before You Drink.

Webinar Transcript

Brett Andrews: Hey, everybody. This is Brett Andrews with MicroVentures. Thank you all for tuning in today for the webinar. Today, we're going to be hearing from Toast!, a company that develops functional dietary supplements that aim to restore nutrients and support the liver, support sleep quality, and immune support. We are joined today by their Founder and President, Sean O'Neill. Sean is an experienced entrepreneur and creator of Toast! Before You Drink gummy. While running his previous startup, Couchster, Sean was erroneously diagnosed with cirrhosis of the liver, which led to him to research alcohol effects on the body and potential mitigating factors to its post drinking symptoms. He developed Toast!'s business plan and developed the beta concept of the BYD gummy while studying for his MBA at Babson College. And in early 2019, he officially launched the Before You Drink gummy. Sean holds a BA in economics, and graduated summa cum laude, Phi Beta Kappa, with departmental honors from Tulane University. He also earned a full tuition scholarship for his MBA program with a focus on entrepreneurial studies from Babson College where he graduated cum laude. How are you doing today, Sean?

Sean O'Neill: I'm doing great, Brett. How are you doing today?

Brett Andrews: I'm doing fantastic. I really appreciate you taking some time here. We are excited to learn a little bit more about the company. So, just for people tuning in to understand the format, Sean's going to spend about 10 or 15 minutes going through his pitch deck presentation. You should be able to see the intro slide on your screen where it says Toast! Supplements in that beautiful orange font. So, he's going to take some time and introduce us further to the business and share the story here. And then when he's done, he's going to kick it back to me. And I've got some questions for him, so we'll do a conversational Q&A to get you a little more familiar with the opportunity. And be sure to stick around as I point you near the end towards some places that you can find some more information if we don't get to everything, but we're going to do our best. So, Sean, thanks again for the time. And yeah, I'll kick it over to you and let you introduce everyone to Toast!.

Sean O'Neill: Great. Well, thanks for the introduction, Brett. I appreciate it. As Brett mentioned, my name is Sean O'Neill, and I'm the founder of Toast! Supplements, where we want to help you make the most of every moment. As Brett mentioned, when I was 20 years old, I was living in New Orleans, where I had... I was running a startup I'd founded, which was an Uber Eats-style platform for ordering local food for delivery. After a routine physical, I received the most shocking phone call of my life when a nurse from my doctor's office called to tell me that I had cirrhosis of the liver, and that it was likely due to alcohol. Now, that ultimately proved inaccurate. My liver was actually totally fine. My spleen, however, not so much.

Sean O'Neill: But in the months it took to discover that, I did a lot of research into alcohol and the liver. And I came across a wealth of clinical research that had been done in the last decade on natural ingredients and common supplements like milk thistle and prickly pear that should have beneficial effects. And when I asked my doctors about that research, they had no idea what I was talking about. As one liver specialist would later tell me, doctors are taught what they're taught in medical school, but unless they're actively involved in research, they don't really necessarily keep up on the latest in clinical science.

Sean O'Neill: Now, at the same time, the use of these kinds of supplements had boomed in the United States. Over seven out of 10 Americans use supplements. And as that market's grown, consumers have grown more discerning. Sick of medicinal formats of pills, consumers are opting for alternative formats, including beverages and gummies. And while taste is a critical factor in a supplement's success, so too is functionality. Consumers prioritize products they can feel work. If you take a 5-Hour Energy, for instance, you feel energized. If you take a fish oil capsule, you're just hoping it does something, and you're probably wishing it were a fish oil gummy instead.

Sean O'Neill: So, at Toast!, we've taken those lessons to heart. We aim to create products with a tangible benefit that you can feel work, all while tasting as good as candy. We currently just make gummies, but we're interested in expanding to chocolate and hard candies as well in the future. And we use the latest in clinically researched natural ingredients to provide those functional benefits. Our flagship product is the Before You Drink Gummy, a candy quality berry gummy bear that's designed to help restore key nutrients and support your liver so you can celebrate and still feel great. Now, I began development on the Before You Drink Gummy in 2016. We launched in semi-stealth in 2019 with a beta version of our gummies, which we then iterated on and improved. And we publicly launched in September of 2020. We saw terrific growth after that public launch. We sold nearly $80,000 in gummies in quarter four of 2020, and we did it with virtually no marketing and not a penny spent on advertising. It was purely organic demand and word of mouth.

Sean O'Neill: The only thing that limited our sales was inventory, as we consistently stocked out on Amazon, and then stocked out entirely of gummies about a week prior to Christmas. We have decided to reformulate late in quarter four, substituting one ingredient called N-acetylcysteine or NAC for a close analog called L-cysteine. We made this change because the FDA had started to crack down on NAC, which they ruled was a medicine, and because our manufacturing partner had had issues working with it as well. But reformulating takes some time to get the flavor right, a process we ultimately finished in late March. Faced with limited inventory, we did not use pay per click to increase our sales or rankings, which had slipped due to the time we were stocked out of gummies until we finished reformulating. So, we really tried to manage our inventory, knowing that it would be limited for quarters one and two. We then had our best month of the year in May, anticipating our next production would be ready in June, and had started to drive pay per click and other marketing. Throughout that time, our Amazon listing converted at an exceptional rate, including a nearly 40% conversion rate in quarter one.

Sean O'Neill: As that kind of organic demand suggests, this is a huge potential market. It's already a multi-billion dollar industry, and we're only scratching the surface. While hangover products have existed for many years, it's only been over the last 10 plus years that serious clinical research has been conducted in this area. And the first generation of products that are based on that science like Toast! are still only a few years old. With two billion alcohol consumers worldwide, the market opportunity for an effective product in this space is enormous. And the Before You Drink Gummy is optimally positioned to take advantage of that market opportunity. Our format gives us a huge advantage and consumer appeal. Gummies are fun. They taste good. They're portable and easily shared.

Sean O'Neill: Let me put it this way. If a very close friend of yours came up to you with a strange pill and said, "Hey, eat this," you're going to have some questions for them. If that same friend came up to you with a gummy bear and said, "Eat this," you'd just eat it without hesitation. Gummies also have serious business advantages. They can command a premium price point, they're compact, lightweight with a lengthy shelf life. And just as they're more appealing to consumers, we believe they're more appealing to retailers as well. Our gummies are designed for point of sale, and our individual packs can fit almost any channel. Finally, the gummy format also provides a bit of a competitive moat for Toast!. Our formulation was designed for a gummy from very early on, and it still took the better part of three years of R&D for us to develop a gummy that actually tasted good. We worked with a lot of gummy specialists in doing this, and most of them failed. It's really hard. But having achieved it, we believe our gummies are fit for a wide range of channels, which we split between direct to consumer, or DTC, and business to business, or B2B.

Sean O'Neill: DTC, we list our gummies in a variety of marketplaces to ensure that they are available everywhere that people shop. But we focus our resources on our most important channels, which are currently Amazon, and our branded domain, alwaystoast.com. Since piloting in 2019, we've identified a number of demographics and use cases which we currently target organically, but we've also tested a few marketing channels, with Instagram and Amazon pay per click being our main priorities. On the business to business side, we've already found strong interest, and it's all been inbound, coming to us. We were approached by AATAC, the Asian American Trade Associations Council, which is the largest C-store association in America, for which we are now a preferred vendor. AATAC recently put us in touch with 10 distributors nationwide, who have sent samples for evaluation. We've also already launched our gummies in a Miami hotel, which is piloting them in its mini bars, and that is a channel we believe has huge potential for us.

Sean O'Neill: Now, while convenience and hospitality are our current priorities, we continue to take other opportunities that come our way, like Urban Outfitters, which recently approved us as a supplier. In the long run, our goal is to get our gummies sold everywhere possible, with a focus on outlets where alcohol is either sold, consumed, or both. Now, while the Before You Drink Gummy is our focus and our priority, it is far from the extent of the opportunity that we see. It is a proof of concept of what we want to do moving forward. Our product strategy revolves around credibility, functionality, and convenience. Our products are credible, because they're powered by clinically researched and scientifically validated natural ingredients. We even want to run a clinical study of our gummies to prove in a controlled environment exactly what they can do. And what they do is functional. We want our products to be something that consumers can feel work. So, when their friends ask, "Does this do anything?" They can unequivocally say, "Yes."

Sean O'Neill: And on the note of friends, that's something we also want to keep in mind. How people use products matters. For instance, our gummies aren't just gummies. They're gummies that come in a pocket size pouch that goes where you go. And they don't just have one serving, they have two, so you can share with a friend if you want, or you can give them a pack of their own, and they can save it for later. We want our products to fit how our customers want to use it, as well as how we want them to use it. And we've already gotten started on the second line of Before You Sleep Gummy. We've piloted a melatonin version in a simple bottle, and we have since developed our own proprietary formula, as well as a customized packaging solution, again, keeping with our customer centric focus, which we hope to introduce next year.

Sean O'Neill: Well, let's finish this year before we get to next. We had anticipated that our latest Before You Drink gummies would launch at the start of quarter three. Unfortunately, our active blend, the secret sauce that makes our gummies work came back out of specification. And that combined with lab delays to push our launch date back to the start of quarter four. That said, we were able to use that time to make changes that should dramatically reduce our production times moving forward. We found our own active blend supplier that we are in the process of onboarding. By sourcing and testing the blend in advance ourselves, we will eliminate a six plus week lead time prior to gummy production. Moreover, we have found two additional lab vendors who are able to conduct the type of safety tests such as testing for biological or heavy metal contaminants that we conduct of our gummies, which will give us options in the case of future lab delays. We don't have any further reformulations planned, so we should be able to produce gummies whenever needed, and the production we just completed should yield over a quarter million dollars in retail value in inventory on hand for quarter four.

Sean O'Neill: With those gummies now ready, we're ready to get to work on driving growth. Direct to consumer, we've arranged a launch marketing package, an Amazon Launchpad benefit that drives additional exposure toward our Before You Drink gummies. We're also driving sales using pay per click with advertising support directly from Amazon, again, a Launchpad program benefit. And as we get deeper into the holidays, we'll be investing more in PR, holiday sampling, as well as additional online advertising. Beyond America, we're also testing new direct to consumer markets. We're launching on Amazon Singapore soon, and we're looking into expanding into Amazon Australia and Amazon Japan as well. We're also launching on an international marketplace called Shop Maple that serves Asia, the Middle East, and Europe. And as previously discussed, we're also launching wholesale through our partnership with AATAC, highlighting in a Miami hotel, and more. As we get into the new year, we'll look to follow up on the holidays by attending industry conventions to drive further wholesale growth. And as previously mentioned, we'd also like to run a clinical trial of our gummies and pilot our updated Before You Sleep line.

Sean O'Neill: As I said before, my name is Sean O'Neill. I'm the founder of Toast!. I developed the initial formulation and our first company prototypes while getting my MBA at Babson. It was there I first discovered the considerable international demand for and acceptance of this type of product, as well as the sharp difference in reactions to pills versus gummies. I then partnered with Dr. Joris Verster, a longtime researcher in this field, and the founder of the Alcohol Hangover Research firm. Dr. Verster provides us with scientific and clinical guidance for both our Before You Sleep gummies as well as our... Sorry, for our Before You Drink gummies as well as our Before You Sleep gummies, as sleep is another area of research of Dr. Verster's. We're a member of Mucker Labs, which gives us access to a wide and varied network, including introductions to programs like Amazon Launchpad, which I've previously mentioned we're a part of. Tenzo Tea is another key partner of ours, a premium launch company that's concentrated in the Los Angeles market, and they've provided us leads to their accounts throughout the LA area.

Sean O'Neill: Not listed here are some of our key operational partners, including a longtime American candy maker that makes our gummies, our fulfillment partner, Soapbox, who handles all of our channels except Amazon Prime, our packaging partner, Assemblies Unlimited, as well as our strong legal team, including a specialist in FDA regulations. I think we are poised to really drive growth and take advantage of this market opportunity. And I hope that you'll join us and take your piece of Toast!. So, thanks for your time, and I look forward to answering some questions with Brett.

Brett Andrews: Thanks, Sean. That was a very strong presentation. I can tell you've got some experience doing this. Not sure what questions I can have that you're not prepared for, but I'll see. So, I guess first I wanted to maybe start a little bit at the beginning. I ran through your background, and you got your MBA, you studied economics prior. I was sort of curious, how did you get so knowledgeable on this type of supplement in this space? You mentioned before that it's hard, right? I think creating any sort of food or CPG product is difficult, because you're dealing with actual hard physical goods. But it's certainly in a space where you've got all these kind of different ingredients, and you're working on a supplement that's supposed to have some sort of, I guess, effect on people. I guess I'm just curious how you got so knowledgeable in the space?

Sean O'Neill: Certainly. So, it was definitely a gradual process. It started off when I was first erroneously diagnosed with that cirrhotic liver. That was a huge shock to me, because I don't really actually drink that much myself. And that's the disease of a chronic alcoholic and decades older than myself. So, my doctors didn't have any good ideas, so I was like, well, there's got to be an answer this. Let's go into the research. What exactly does happen with alcohol in the liver? What could have gone wrong? Is there some genetic factors? And I started to come across these studies on things like milk thistle and prickly pear and green tea that showed various effects at protecting the liver. I'm a Tulane graduate, and there was actually a study done on prickly pear from a Tulane researcher that found that it even showed some efficacy at reducing a hangover.

Sean O'Neill:

And so, I was just blown away by this research, because I'm like, oh, man, this stuff is so cool. And when I talked to doctors, and they told me basically that they didn't know about it either, I just really saw the opportunity to bring it to the world. And at Babson, I had just an opportunity with a large, receptive audience of people who were regularly going out and consuming alcohol to try and see, all right, do any of these ingredients that I've read studies of have any effect? And so, that literally started off with me giving pills to people and saying, "Hey, take these before you go. Well, let me know how you feel tomorrow," to really just try and get proof of concept. And that was very hard, because strange pills, you got to walk through, exactly what is it? Yeah, that's safe. Yeah, these are things that lots of people take. Lots of hand holding.

Sean O'Neill:

I then, and after trying it in beverages, and still getting some of that pushback, I actually literally just got some Jell-O and gelatin at a store, baked it into a gummy format, put my active ingredients in there, went out to a bar that I knew some MBA classmates were going to, pulled out a bag, and people were just grabbing gummies out of it and eating them before I could even finish saying, "Hey, remember those pills I've been giving you? Well, I've put them into gummy form." And it was like night and day in that regard. So, that's when I knew, okay, gummies are definitely the way of doing this. And from there, it's really just been a matter of always learning what my limitations are, the difficult factors we need to overcome.

Sean O'Neill:

So, part of that was getting Dr. Verster to come on board as our scientific advisor. I had developed an active formulation based on his research, but by having the man himself, you're able to say, "Hey, this is the ingredients that we're looking at. Is there anything that you would suggest that we substitute, or that we should look at?" Or, "This is based on your science, what we're trying to do. What do you think?" Which was invaluable. And then in getting the gummies to actually be a mass produced, that was, again, a long process of just working with a lot of different experts. We worked with a number of different gummy manufacturers in trying to develop our updated version and to move from that beta that we launched in 2019 to a mainstream product, ultimately partnering with an American candy maker, who brought that candy know-how of, how do you make something tastes really good? And we brought that active ingredient know-how, and it's proved to be a great partnership in that regard.

Sean O'Neill:

So, it was definitely a slow, iterative process of just figuring out, okay, finding this research, figuring out is it actually true, does this work, figuring out, okay, how do you get people to try a product that does this, and then making it something that's not being made in a apartment kitchen, but something that's actually being produced in a FDA approved and compliant facility.

Brett Andrews:

Got it. Yeah, I love the story of going to the bar and just testing out the product with just almost like focus groups, but just in the real world. It's funny, that was actually one of my next questions, was going to be, why gummies? You talked a lot about the benefits as it relates to versus pills or beverages, and I was going to ask if you had actually gone down the path with those. It sounds like you did for a little bit, and then really, the way you arrived on this was just watching people's reaction. And so, that's a really cool story. You touched a little bit on the manufacturing process. I did want to, for folks who may not have really any idea maybe in CPG in general, but more specifically, on the type of product that you're making, wanted to maybe walk people through what this supply chain looks like. So, you talked about in the presentation that you have these labs, where you test the products, and you come up with your formulation, you've got the secret sauce. From there, then you mentioned the candy manufacturer that you're working with. From there, I guess, could you walk us through the steps of, okay, creating a batch of the product to ultimately getting into the customers' hands?

Sean O'Neill:

Absolutely. So, it all does start with that active blend. That's our active formulation, as is put it before, the secret sauce that makes the gummies work. That gets blended by what's either called a vitamin blender, which are companies that exclusively do that type of mix. There are also pharmaceutical manufacturers that also produce these types of active blends. So, there's a wide variety of options in that particular regard. They blend together those ingredients into a format. They typically do a little bit of work on the flavoring, either trying to neutralize some of the harsher bitterness of some ingredients that may be in there, or otherwise, get it just a little bit tweaked to make it easier to work with. That gets sent to a lab, which then test it to make sure...so, our formulation has very specific amounts of different ingredients that are supposed to be in there. That lab test to make sure that what the blend contains is in fact that exact formulation in that correct ratio.

Sean O'Neill:

So, what went wrong this past with that first active blend, and that's actually the only time this has happened for us, is that the blend was out of ratio. There was just not quite the right ratio of ingredients there, which is why we did not use it and had it replaced. Once the active blend is approved through testing, it goes to our gummy manufacturing partners. Gummy manufacturing is a very capital intensive process. These are production facilities that costs tens of millions of dollars to install, and a lot of technical know-how. Our partners have been making gummies for decades and decades and decades, and have been getting into supplements for the last few decades as well. So, they've got a depth of experience in that. They take the active blend that we provide, combine it into a gelatin base, and flavor it to get to that process. There's a whole bunch of R&D that's done in advance, making sure that they're using the right flavorings and can work with the blend to get a product that doesn't just taste good, but also has a good texture.

Sean O'Neill: Once their production is complete, we again test those completed gummies to make sure that A, the active ingredients are still in ratio. Even though we've proven that the blend has the right amount, we want to make sure that it's still translated in the production process to the gummies. We also want to make sure that there's not anything in there that shouldn't be, like a biological or heavy metal contaminant. The moment we get that approved, that's when... It's called a certificate of analysis. We then move into packaging. We have a packaging partner that I mentioned previously called Assemblies Unlimited that we work with to basically get the exact correctly size pouches and cartons. They help us find the correct plant here in the United States that can pack those gummies into those pouches and cartons. So, currently, our entire production process is here in the United States. Everything from testing to gummy production to packaging, it's all done here in the US. But once that packaging process is complete, we then ship it out to our fulfillment centers, and from there we ship it to you.

Brett Andrews: Got it. Yeah, it's just, it's crazy to me how much is involved in a process like that. It's just a ton of moving parts. So, kudos to you for being able to get that onto the market. I guess in terms of the products themselves, so you talked a little bit about, obviously, you have the Before You Drink gummies, which you mentioned as your core focus at the moment. You've got the Before You Sleep in the pipeline. In terms of, from a SKU perspective, could you share a little bit about the different both, I guess, packages, package sizes, is there different flavors of these gummies in either, for either the Before You Drink or Before You Sleep? Is it all one? I guess, can you share a little bit about, I guess, the different SKUs?

Sean O'Neill: Absolutely. So, currently, we're definitely still in a limited scale. The gummy plant we work with can produce tens of thousands of pounds of gummies I believe in an hour. So, we're still very low in that that volume amount. So, we currently just offer one flavor per production. In the future, as our production volumes grow, we can create other flavors as well. It's just a matter of, every flavor has to be run separately. And if they're only doing a few thousand pounds of one flavor, they don't want to have to then clean out all of the machines, get it re-prepped, because that takes hours, and then run just a few thousand pounds more of a different flavor. But as we scale, that's absolutely something we can do.

Sean O'Neill: Currently, we have our berry gummies. Those come packed with 10 gummies in an individual package, so that's two servings of gummies in a pack. Six of those packs are then packed into a carton, which is a little box that you can order. That is a format that we designed to also be for point of sale or for retail use. The box actually has a perforation, where the top portion of it can be removed and it becomes a display tray. So, if you think of, if you look at candy or anything on a convenience store shelf, where you see the bottom of a box, and then there's the products popping up that you grab from, that's exactly how our cartons are designed to function as well. So, that is our main SKU. With this updated version, our newest berry gummy, we're also introducing a bulk pouch.

So, that, as opposed to having 10 gummies in a pouch and then six of those pouches in a carton, we instead have just 40 gummies in a single pouch. So, that's more for peoples' home use kind of thing that you can have around and just take a few gummies as needed, as opposed to our main line, which is designed to be a bit more portable to be more vacation or travel friendly, that kind of thing. Those are our two main SKUs.

Sean O'Neill:

As Brett mentioned, we have the Before You Sleep line that is a melatonin gummy that we have piloted just to see how the demand for a sleep line shapes up. We found that to be a popular one, so we have since developed our own formulation that's going to have a custom packaging solution, very akin to our current model with the Before You Drink gummies, where there will be individual servings in a carton. It'll just be a little bit different, in that there's fewer gummies per serving. So, it'll be more akin to if you think of, they call fun sized candies, where it's a small portion and a little individual container, and then those are packed into either a box or a big pouch. That's exactly how those Before You Sleep line will work. And we designed it that way with the intent in mind, as I said before, that it's both for consumers' ease so that you don't have to carry around a big bottle of gummies, or you don't have... You can just slide the pack into your back pocket or have one in your car ready to go, while also making it convenient for retail. And that same is how we're approaching with the sleep gummies, where it's going to be designed so that, again, it can function at a point of sale or have individual packs that are put in a hotel minibar, while also being convenient for consumers.

Brett Andrews:

That's awesome. I appreciate the rundown there. Can you talk about, and feel free to pass on this if you want, but for people to understand maybe a little bit about the unit economics, given the nature of this raise, a lot of this information is available, but just maybe a little bit of a high level breakdown on what that typically looks like.

Sean O'Neill:

Yeah, so our gross margins are already pretty strong, more for this latest batch. It should shape up to be about a 75% gross margin, so that's the cost to actually make and package that gummy compared to the total sales price. Currently, the biggest cost for us is fulfillment. That's because we are direct to consumer, and so shipping each of those individual packs takes about another 20%. So, our fully baked margins, that's after everything involved from making the gummy to getting it to somebody's door, we end up with about a 40% gross margin currently on that, again, after accounting for fulfillment and those type of costs. We are still at the very bottom level of the economies of scale in our space. We've already received quotes from our packaging partner, Assemblies, showing that cost will drop in half at about four times our current volume of our production, and drops even further from there.

Sean O'Neill:

Packaging is currently the single largest cost we have. We expect, again, similarly with gummies, we are at the absolute minimum level of production that our partners produce. As we start to produce larger, we expect to see that drop as well. So, there are still some really good economies of scale for us to touch. But even right where we are, we have very competitive gross margins. And for retail, it's about at 50%, or again, 40 - 50% margin, fully begs, again, that's accounting for shipping it to the retailer or the business that's receiving them. So, we've got a good amount of space available that we can use to drive things like acquisition of customers.

Brett Andrews:

Yeah, that's, I guess just to reiterate that point for people who may not be aware with the CPG industry in general, if you're north of 50% in margins, that's really strong. And the fact that most of what is eating that cost has to do with the fact that you're just not economies of scale yet is really impressive, so kudos. And then I wanted to talk also a little bit about the different channels that you're getting to these customers. So, you talked about how you got the DTC line and the B2B line. And each one of those has their own ways of, probably from a marketing perspective, as well as the fulfillment. And I guess I was curious, maybe just to learn a little bit more about what does the current breakdown look like in terms of maybe revenue split between those channels? And then this is going to be somewhat forward looking, but we're not asking for firm numbers, just more goal oriented, what do you see when you do get to a little larger scale, what is the ideal split in your mind between direct to consumer versus places like C-stores or hospitality?

Sean O'Neill:

Yeah, absolutely. So, with just the history of our launch, where we had that limited inventory of our prior version, with the reformulation, and then being in private beta before that, we've really focused on DTC. Amazon in particular has proven to be a very successful channel for us. So, currently, the vast majority of our revenue, I would say well over 90%, 95% plus, is on that DTC channel. And part of that is, again, that we've not done any outbound wholesale. The wholesales that we have done that's the business to business sales, that's exclusively businesses that have come to us and said, "Hey, we're interested in your gummies." One of the things that we are really looking to do as we go into the future is to invert that and really start pursuing those wholesale accounts. And we're doing that, again, through things like our partnership with AATAC for trying to pick up distributors in the convenience space. And then by attending conventions and conferences, where, for things like the hospitality industry, that's where still a lot of the buying gets done for things like the minibar or the hotel bar. So, those are going to be very important, and we want to really start having a presence there.

Sean O'Neill:

So, ideally, as we get into the next couple of years, we would like to see those, the DTC and B2B, become a bit more... Get closer to parity. I think in the long run, B2B is really where we ideally want to push things. DTC is great. It can absolutely be a channel that we can grow quite a lot from where we are, and has quite an upside to it. But I personally have a strong belief in getting a product in front of people where it's going to be top of mind. So, having it available when people are either buying or consuming alcohol is something that we're very interested in pursuing. It's why we're so interested in things like the convenience and hospitality space, because they do offer alcohol. That's why we're very interested in things like liquor stores and casinos, as well as even down the line bars and clubs, because that's where we really see an opportunity for broad mainstream success, is where if you can get the product in front of people where it's most top of mind, that's where we think you can really take off.

Sean O'Neill: Again, there's a lot of ways to acquire customers online and grow that way. And we've seen there's a lot of organic demand for it. But we think that at the mainstream level, if you can get the product in front of people where they want it or where they need it, that's, I think, how we can both separate ourselves from our competitors who can't necessarily break into those channels, and also tap the highest upside for Toast! and our products.

Brett Andrews: Got it. I appreciate that. So, last couple of questions for me. The first just somewhat sticking with the future outlook. Again, not forward looking statements, but more just your vision of the business. Now, as an investor, you're always looking at market sizes, and I'm trying to understand the upside opportunity, right? And you talked a little bit about market size, certainly within the current markets that you're playing in. But I think from a higher level perspective, what do you see as the future of Toast!? You've obviously got the Before You Sleep product that's very close to being launched. I think you've also got some immune support product, if I remember correctly. Do you see this eventually being a... Obviously, right now, again, I want to reiterate is that the focus is on the Before You Drink gummies, and I think it's critical for a company at your stage too to stay very maniacally focused. But if an investor is looking at this and trying to understand the opportunity on a larger scale, what do you see as the overall vision for the business?

Sean O'Neill: Yeah, absolutely. And just to touch on that first part that you mentioned, the focus aspect, that's something I absolutely agree with. We are super... Right now, for instance, we are hyper focused on DTC and primarily Amazon and getting that really established again. From there, our next step is looking at that branded domain, doing the same thing there. And it's really a step by step process as we see it, getting that DTC, really clicking, then moving into wholesale, focusing until you really maxed out one channel, and then moving on to the next. On the topic of the long term vision, yeah, absolutely. While the Before You Drink line is our current flagship, it is our priority, it is far from the extent of the opportunity that we see in this space. There are a lot of functional problems, things: stress, anxiety, falling asleep, focus, energy. There's a lot of things that people would functionally could use support for, where there is, in fact, a lot of robust clinical science on natural ingredients that can help.

Sean O'Neill: And we believe that the model that we are pursuing, where we can provide those functional benefits in a candy-quality experience is really where we see this market going, where people want to be healthy, they want to make the most of their time. But they also, by the same virtue of wanting to make the most of things, they want things that taste good and that are an enjoyable experience themselves. So, if we are just as, again, a hypothetical thing that we might pursue in the future, looking at a stress or anxiety relief type of product, we wouldn't be like, oh, yeah, we should make this a powder, you're going to stir it into a drink, and then you're going to swallow it, and it's going to be bitter and taste bad.

Sean O'Neill: No, the ideal there would be, okay, how do we put this into a nice, hard candy that you can just be at work, you're like, I'm so stressed out, that you just pop in your mouth. And instead of it being a mint, it's a mint that actually helps you manage that stress or that anxiety. Or similarly, if you're like, oh, man, I can't just keep down in coffee. I want to have something that gives me a little bit of energy, having a chocolate that's a little bite size thing that you can take that provides a little bit more long... A longer boost in an enjoyable, little candy bite is how we see this opportunity. We do see that there are a variety of other applications like that. So yeah, we're absolutely focused on the Before You Drink line, and really pushing that because we think there is a huge market opportunity for it. But it is far from exclusive of the type of products that we want to deliver to consumers moving forward.

Brett Andrews: Got it. Great. I appreciate that illustration. And then last question, before we wrap up here. Obviously, the reason we're doing this webinar is just to further educate potential investors. So, I thought it might be helpful to maybe break down a little bit what the use of funds might go towards and how you plan to allocate that going forward.

Sean O'Neill: Yeah, absolutely. So, right now, we are really, as I said, pushing things on Amazon and pushing growth. So, the initial top use of funds we have in mind is really pushed in that growth marketing. As I mentioned, this production we just completed, it's about a quarter million dollars in inventory value that we'll have available for quarter four, and we really want to be able to start driving that growth with that inventory on hand and with a real stable supply chain that we have arranged that we can now really move into production as needed on additional gummies. So, really focusing on driving growth. Part of that is also things like the clinical study that I mentioned earlier. That's a use of funds where that would run between five and $10,000, depending upon the exact specifics of how we want to conduct it. But that's something where we see that not only is adding credibility for us, but also as a marketing expense, where we can use that to drive PR and press coverage. We can use it in our own advertising, because we can legally make certain claims depending upon how that clinical trial turns, or how such a clinical perspective clinical trial turned out. So, that's really our main focus.

Sean O'Neill: Same kind of thing in looking at conferences and conventions for wholesale. It's really, where can we put in capital right now that yields us the biggest revenue growth moving forward? That's the big thing that we are looking to do. So, that's everything from marketing, Amazon pay per click, to digital ads on Facebook or Instagram pointed to our branded domain, to, as I said, things like the conventions, going and getting the clinical trial done, as well as piloting, and then the next one I would put behind that would be piloting that next updated sleep line. That's, again, something that we have found there is a lot of interest in, and believe our updated formulation that is... Would be a much more proprietary and specialized product as opposed to just the bottle of gummies that our current version is, is something that we think we can drive a lot of growth with as well. But that would be a follow up to once we've already really been pushing the drink gummies.

Sean O'Neill: So, growth is the number one thing I would tell you. That's really our focus. That's really what we're raising capital for so that we can get out there and really start getting these gummies out into the world.

Brett Andrews: That's great. Well, look, Sean, I really appreciate the time here. Before I kick it to you for some, any sort of parting thoughts, I want to thank everyone who's listening in to this, and also just give you a couple of other areas you can find some more information. If you are listening to this, you're likely on the MicroVentures campaign page for Toast!. But if for some reason you're not, I'd love to point you to that campaign page. The direct URL is invest.microventures.com/offerings/toast-supplements. You can also go to microventures.com, click the Invest button, then scroll down to see the Toast! tombstone and click there.

Brett Andrews: On that page, we've got a lot more information. In addition to this deck that Sean went through, we've got a bunch of other information that our team put together in conjunction with him. So, background on the business itself, more into the financials. He's also been posting some updates there related to the business, so I would encourage you to follow along there. There's also a discussion forum down at the bottom. So, if for some reason we didn't get to a question that you may have, I encourage you to submit it there. Sean's being good about responding to those, so it's a great way to get in touch, and other investors can see the Q&A that already is there as well. And then the terms of the investment are also listed. As I mentioned, of course, the reason we're doing this webinar is to further educate prospective investors. If you would like to be a part of this and join what Sean's building, I'd encourage you to do so. If you click the orange Invest button on that same campaign page, it'll walk you through the steps to participate. If you have an account with us already, you likely know how that works. If not, I'd encourage you to sign up. It's free to do so, and you can decide how much you'd like to participate with.

Brett Andrews: And then yeah, I think that's the best other place to find. I think you could also look up Toast! on social media, follow their website. But I think the MicroVentures campaign page is where you'll find most of the information as it relates to the offering. So, with that, Sean, any other areas you'd like to point people towards, or any other parting thoughts?

Sean O'Neill: Sure. So, just to follow up on what Brett said, I love answering questions. We've had some really good ones, and it's been an opportunity to answer some things that aren't in that campaign page that are... I genuinely really enjoy talking about Toast! and about our products and the thought process there. So, any questions you have, please do ask. I take great pleasure in answering them for you. You can definitely... I would definitely recommend you check out our gummies. They are currently available, fulfilled by Amazon, so that's Amazon Prime. Just, if you go to Amazon and search for "Toast! Before You Drink gummies", you'll find them quite quickly. You'll get them in two days. Check them out. I think you'll really enjoy the product. And you can also find them on our branded domain, alwaystoast.com. So, definitely, I would tell you to check them out. If you're at all interested, if at all even it sounds like a product that you think might be of use to you, give them a try. I think you'll be really pleased and impressed with how they work and how they taste.

Sean O'Neill: Also, would love for you to spread the word. Our gummies have historically been a very popular gift item over the holidays. We're working to get them into some gift guides this year. So, anyone you've got in mind, to the drinker in your life, whether it's a wine drinking female friend or family member, or a buddy who likes to have a few while watching the game, it's a perfect stocking stuffer of that kind of thing. So, definitely check them out. Otherwise, I just want to say thanks for taking the time to listen to me speak on about this. I think it really is a great opportunity. And if you do have any questions, as I said, please do ask, because I'd be more than happy to answer them for you.

Brett Andrews: I appreciate that, Sean. Well, this has been great, Sean. I really appreciate you taking some time here during your sure to be busy day. It was super helpful, and enjoyed speaking with you as always. And thanks again to everybody tuning in. I know everybody's got a lot going on, so it means a lot to us that you're taking some time to learn a little bit more about the business. So, thanks again, Sean.

Sean O'Neill: Thank you, Brett. And thank you, everyone for watching.

Brett Andrews: All right, sounds good. Talk soon.

Sean O'Neill: All right. Bye-bye.
