Business Overview

Our corporate name is Aeroponics Integrated Systems, Inc., d/b/a AeroBloom. We are a California corporation that was incorporated on October 16th, 2018, for the purpose of operating a our proprietary aeroponics system meant to cultivate produce for distribute wholesale produce to grocery supply chains, individual grocers, restaurant chains at a competitive price point due to our technological advantages.

AeroBloom’s unique technology has the capability to seriously address global food security issues caused by climate change. It brings needed improvements to efficiency and resource conservation in large agriculture. The growing systems represent a quantum leap in crop yields and efficiency from all other known cultivation systems currently available to the agriculture market.

AeroBloom’s founder and Chief Innovation Officer, Dale Devore, has spent over 30 years developing aeroponics technology while testing and refining each version by growing various crops including peppers, tomatoes, and other produce. Aeroponics is a cultivation method in which plant roots are suspended in air, without entangling into a physical medium, and fed via a fine mist or fog-system.

NASA funded a major aeroponics research project led by Richard Stoner who often compared notes with Dale during the 90’s and early 2000’s. After the first ten years of trial and error, AeroBloom’s aeroponics systems had already integrated developments that solved the primary issues still unaddressed by the competition. The following twenty years were spent privately testing hundreds of system variations, each refined with the primary focus of further increasing crop yields while maintaining efficiency. This has resulted in AeroBloom’s proprietary grow system consistently producing substantially higher crop yields than current aeroponics and hydroponics systems currently available in the agriculture market.

Business Plan

Business Model

The core business of Aeroponics Integrated Systems, Inc. (dba AeroBloom) is to develop and use our proprietary aeroponics technology to grow food and other crops. The technology includes hardware, software, and know-how (unique growing protocols) for the optimal cultivation of plant crops in controlled environments.

AeroBloom's primary source of revenue will come from selling the crops grown with its aeroponics technology. After an integration is developed to protect the intellectual property from being stolen, Aerobloom will begin licensing its aeroponic systems to agriculture companies, providing a third source of revenue.

AeroBloom Software

AeroBloom has designed proprietary software currently under development. The software's interface will be accessible via computer and mobile device application. It will show the specific layout of aeroponic systems in each grow facility. Multiple sensors in each root chamber and across various components of the system will utilize cloud technology to feed live data to the software. This will enable the software to show vital indicators such as pump status, atomizer status, pH, nutrient content, water temperature, room temperature, CO2 root zone oxygen and humidity. The data will be displayed in the interface, pinpointing the exact location of any issues or maintenance requirements within the facility. It will also display the tools and supplies needed to address them. Artificial intelligence will use machine-learning algorithms to fine-tune operating parameters of the aeroponics system for optimal performance based on real-time observations derived from on-going data collection.

AeroBloom Technology / Hardware

AeroBloom's proprietary nutrient delivery system modifies the type of root development at different stages of plants' life cycles. It initially directs lateral root growth and overall root mass while increasingly directing the development of root hairs (tubular outgrowths of trichoblasts) as the flowering cycle progresses. This multi-stage process results in an increased rate of plant growth and significantly higher yields than other cultivation systems. The firing of individual delivery system components is offset by a connected computer, which has been programmed for maximum yields and efficiency. The computer also controls a component which is fired through the nutrient lines after every misting cycle, clearing the lines of any remaining nutrient solution.

Many sprayers of varying mist types are used in each proprietary root chamber that achieve total root mass penetration and saturation. Most aeroponic competitors use a system with too few misters of one type, poorly placed along the bottom of their root chambers. AeroBloom systems are modular, allowing long rows of root chambers to connect to each other. There are customization options available to optimize the growth of crop varieties in each facility, including plants per chamber, soil capability (upper root mass), and components that enable organic production.

Roots create the lifeblood of plants. The health and vigor of roots determine the quality and production of the plant. When plants are grown in rich organic soil, microbiomes thrive in the roots and enhance the quality as well as pest/disease resistance of the plant. However, growing in soil is otherwise highly inefficient.

Most hydroponics systems and all other aeroponics systems currently available are not capable of supporting the development of beneficial microbiomes in each plant's root system. The necessary organic substances for microbial abundance cause many issues for hydroponic and especially aeroponic cultivation systems due to complications regarding biomass sludge buildup and clogged misters. These microbiomes, or lack thereof, greatly influence the characteristics of plants. Similar to how a healthy microbiome in the human digestive tract generates many benefits for the entire body, healthy microbiomes in plant roots have immense beneficial effects on the plants' health such as quality characteristics (flavor, oils/resins, bioactive and nutritious content) as well as disease and pest resistance.

AeroBloom has developed integration to support thriving microbiomes in the roots of each plant growing in its systems, while maintaining a sterile recirculating nutrient solution. This integration produces all the benefits described from a healthy microbiome, creating a rich organic soil-quality product with the higher potency, automation, efficiency, and increased production of the systems.

Sales Strategy

AeroBloom's technology provides major advantages over hydroponic and other aeroponic systems available to controlled environment agriculture, particularly in terms of yield, water conservation, speed of growth, and quality of crops. This enables AeroBloom to produce food at drastically lower costs, providing a significant competitive advantage. Initially, AeroBloom will grow red bell peppers and cherry tomatoes in a flagship food production greenhouse. Meanwhile, system variations for coffee, squash, pumpkins, and many more crop varieties will be refined until they're ready to be added to commercial production. The produce will be sold wholesale to distributors. As the food security crisis worsens, large agriculture companies around the world will be searching for the best available solutions in order to stay in business. That will create tremendous opportunity for AeroBloom to consider licensing its systems for a percentage of each licensee's revenue. By licensing the technology to agriculture companies that have seemingly unlimited resources, AeroBloom can expand its impact on global food production more rapidly than scaling up its own facilities at a rate that would be limited by the pace of increasing resource availability and quality assurance while growing its labor force.

See Question 10 for additional information on the use of proceeds from this offering in executing the business plan.

Our Products and/ or Services

Aerobloom's core business is the development and use of proprietary aeroponic technology to harvest and cultivate various crops. This includes implementing our system to grow produce such as: Tomatoes, bell peppers, and other large root vegetables for distribution and retail. It also includes licensing their technology to other companies for use in a variety of other potential crops.

Aerobloom's proprietary technology including: Hardware, AI and software is used to further the optimal cultivation of crops in a controlled indoor environment and provides distinct advantages in terms of yield, water conservation, speed of growth and quality of crops when compared to other methods of controlled agriculture systems currently on the market.

Intellectual Property

The Company has filed a utility patent application (pending #16897246) for proprietary components within its system design and the methodology of how the nutrient delivery mechanisms alternate on precise timing schedules, as well as a step-by-step process of how to operate the system from the seedling/cutting stage to the day of harvest in a way that achieves optimal results.

It also includes claims of an integration that allows AeroBloom aeroponics systems to utilize organic nutrients and produce crops that meet organic certification standards. In general, the USDA has determined that aeroponically-grown produce cannot be labeled as organic. However, AeroBloom's patent-pending integration makes it a hybrid system, creating a work-around allowing crops grown organically in its systems to likely be labeled as organic. The Company will file additional patent claims to cover proprietary system components, robotics, processes, as well as software that are continuously developed.

Competition

Aerofarms closest competitors are Local Bounty, Infarm and Bowery Farms.

To the best of our knowledge, there are currently no hydroponics or aeroponics systems available to controlled environment agriculture that come close to the production capabilities of AeroBloom's proprietary technology. The systems used by our competitors are not capable of producing the yield, microbiomes, or quality enhancement advantages seen in crops produced with AeroBloom grow systems.

Aerobloom's technology allows us to cultivate crops with a higher yield per canopy area and profit margins than our competitors and to do so with reduced water usage. Most competitors in the space utilize vertical farming which comes with massive power requirements from artificial lighting and thus significantly higher production costs, as well as being less environmentally friendly. The Aerobloom technology utilizes natural sunlight in order to keep production costs down.

Litigation

There are no existing legal suits pending, or to our knowledge, threatened, against our company, which would have a material effect on the business of our company.

Risks Related to the Company

We have a limited operating history upon which you can evaluate our performance, and accordingly, our prospects must be considered in light of the risks that any new company encounters.

We were formed under the laws of California on October 16, 2018. We have limited operations and no operating revenue to date. We are in the development stage, and our future operations are subject to all of the risks inherent in the establishment of a new business enterprise. The likelihood of the success of our company must be considered in light of the problems, expenses, difficulties, complications and delays frequently encountered in connection with the development of an entity in the business of providing large scale aeroponics cultivation systems. Recruiting and retaining highly qualified personnel is critical to our success. These demands may require us to hire additional personnel and will require our existing management personnel to develop additional expertise. We face intense competition for personnel. The failure to attract and retain personnel or to develop such expertise could delay or halt the development and commercialization of our product candidates. If we experience difficulties in hiring and retaining personnel in key positions, we could suffer from delays in product development, loss of customers and sales and diversion of management resources, which could adversely affect operating results. Our consultants and advisors may be employed by third parties and may have commitments under consulting or advisory contracts with third parties that may limit their availability to us.

Quality management plays an essential role in determining and meeting customer requirements, preventing defects, improving the Company's products and services and maintaining the integrity of the data that supports the safety and efficacy of our products.

Our future success depends on our ability to maintain and continuously improve our quality management program. An inability to address a quality or safety issue in an effective and timely manner may also cause negative publicity, a loss of customer confidence in us or our current or future products, which may result in the loss of sales and difficulty in successfully launching new products. In addition, a successful claim brought against us in excess of available insurance or not covered by indemnification agreements, or any claim that results in significant adverse publicity against us, could have an adverse effect on our business and our reputation.

We may implement new lines of business or offer new products and services within existing lines of business.

There are substantial risks and uncertainties associated with these efforts, particularly in instances where the markets are not fully developed. In developing and marketing new lines of business and/or new products and services, we may invest significant time and resources. Initial timetables for the introduction and development of new lines of business and/or new products or services may not be achieved, and price and profitability targets may not prove feasible. We may not be successful in introducing new products and services in response to industry trends or developments in technology, or those new products may not achieve market acceptance. As a result, we could lose business, be forced to price products and services on less advantageous terms to retain or attract clients or be subject to cost increases. As a result, our business, financial condition or results of operations may be adversely affected.

The Company's success depends on the experience and skill of the board of directors, its executive officers and key employees.

In particular, the Company is dependent on Darren Walz, who is the CEO, and Dale Devore, who is the Chief Innovation Officer of the Company. The loss of Darren Walz and Dale Devore or any member of the board of directors or executive officer could harm the Company's business, financial condition, cash flow and results of operations.

If we are unable to obtain and maintain patent protection for our technology and products, or if the scope of the patent protection obtained is not sufficiently broad, competitors could develop and commercialize technology and products similar or identical to ours, and our ability to successfully commercialize our technology and products may be impaired.

Our success depends in large part on our ability to obtain and maintain patent and other intellectual property protection in the United States and other countries with respect to our proprietary technology and products.

The patent prosecution process is expensive and time-consuming, and our licensors may not be able to file and prosecute all necessary or desirable patent applications at a reasonable cost, in a timely manner, or in all jurisdictions. It is also possible that our licensors will fail to identify patentable aspects of our or their research and development output before it is too late to obtain patent protection. Moreover, we do not have the right to control the preparation, filing and prosecution of patent applications, or to maintain the patents, covering technology that we license from third party licensors. We may also require the cooperation of our licensors in order to enforce the licensed patent rights, and such cooperation may not be provided. Therefore, these patents and applications may not be prosecuted and enforced in a manner consistent with the best interests of our business.

Recent patent reform legislation could increase the uncertainties and costs surrounding the prosecution of our patent applications and the enforcement or defense of our issued patents. On September 16, 2011, the Leahy-Smith America Invents Act, or the Leahy-Smith Act, was signed into law. The Leahy-Smith Act includes a number of significant changes to United States patent law. These include provisions that affect the way patent applications are prosecuted and may also affect patent litigation. The U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, or U.S. PTO, recently developed new regulations and procedures to govern administration of the Leahy-Smith Act, and many of the substantive changes to patent law associated with the Leahy-Smith Act, and in particular, the first to file provisions, only became effective on March 16, 2013. Accordingly, it is not clear what, if any, impact the Leahy-Smith Act will have on the operation of our business. However, the Leahy-Smith Act and its implementation could increase the uncertainties and costs surrounding the prosecution of our patent applications and the enforcement or defense of our issued patents, all of which could have a material adverse effect on our business and financial condition.

The issuance of a patent is not conclusive as to its inventorship, scope, validity or enforceability, and our owned and licensed patents may be challenged in the courts or patent offices in the United States and abroad. Such challenges may result in loss of exclusivity or freedom to operate or in patent claims being narrowed, invalidated or held unenforceable, in whole or in part, which could limit our ability to stop others from using or commercializing similar or identical technology and products, or limit the duration of the patent protection of our technology and products. As a result, our owned and licensed patent portfolio may not provide us with sufficient rights to exclude others from commercializing products similar or identical to ours.

We may become involved in lawsuits to protect or enforce our patents or other intellectual property, which could be expensive, time-consuming and ultimately unsuccessful.

Competitors may infringe issued patents or other intellectual property that is licensed to us. To counter infringement or unauthorized use, we or our licensors may be required to file infringement claims, which can be expensive and time-consuming. Any claims we or our licensors assert against perceived infringers could provoke these parties to assert counterclaims against us alleging that we or our licensors infringe their intellectual property. In addition, in a patent infringement proceeding, a court may decide that a patent of our licensor is invalid or unenforceable, in whole or in part, construe the patent's claims narrowly or refuse to stop the other party from using the technology at issue on the grounds that our patents do not cover the technology in question. An adverse result in any litigation proceeding could put one or more of our licensed patents at risk of being invalidated or interpreted narrowly, which could adversely affect us and our collaborators.

If we are unable to protect the confidentiality of our trade secrets, our business and competitive position would be harmed.

In addition to seeking patents for some of our licensed technology, we also rely on trade secrets, including unpatented know-how, technology and other proprietary information, to maintain our competitive position. We seek to protect these trade secrets, in part, by entering into non-disclosure and confidentiality agreements with parties who have access to them, such as our employees, corporate collaborators, outside scientific collaborators, contract manufacturers, consultants, advisors and other third parties. We also seek to enter into confidentiality and invention or patent assignment agreements with our employees and consultants. Despite these efforts, any of these parties may breach the agreements and disclose our proprietary information, including our trade secrets, and we may not be able to obtain adequate remedies for such breaches. Our trade secrets may also be obtained by third parties by other means, such as breaches of our physical or computer security systems. Enforcing a claim that a party illegally disclosed or misappropriated a trade secret is difficult, expensive and time-consuming, and the outcome is unpredictable. In addition, some courts inside and outside the United States are less willing or unwilling to protect trade secrets. If any of our trade secrets were to be lawfully obtained or independently developed by a competitor, we would have no right to prevent them, or those to whom they communicate it, from using that technology or information to compete with us. If any of our trade secrets were to be disclosed to or independently developed by a competitor, our competitive position would be harmed.

We are subject to income taxes as well as non-income based taxes, such as payroll, sales, use, value-added, net worth, property and goods and services taxes, in the U.S.

Significant judgment is required in determining our provision for income taxes and other tax liabilities. In the ordinary course of our business, there are many transactions and calculations where the ultimate tax determination is uncertain. Although we believe that our tax estimates are reasonable: (i) there is no assurance that the final determination of tax audits or tax disputes will not be different from what is reflected in our income tax provisions, expense amounts for non-income based taxes and accruals and (ii) any material differences could have an adverse effect on our financial position and results of operations in the period or periods for which determination is made.

Successful development of our products is uncertain.

The products that we expect to develop are based on processes and methodologies that are not currently widely employed. Our development of current and future products are subject to the risks of failure and delay inherent in the development of new products and products based on new technologies, including delays in product development, testing, or manufacturing; unplanned expenditures in product development, testing, or manufacturing, a failure to receive regulatory approvals, the inability to manufacture on our own, or through any others, products on a commercial scale, or failure to achieve market acceptance, and the emergence of superior or equivalent products.

Because of these risks, our research and development efforts may not result in any commercially viable products. If a significant portion of these development efforts are not successfully completed, required regulatory approvals are not obtained, or any approved products are not commercially successful, our business, financial condition, and results of operations may be materially harmed.

Products that we manufacture, source, distribute or market are required to comply with regulatory requirements.

To lawfully operate our businesses, we are required to hold permits, licenses and other regulatory approvals from, and to comply with operating and security standards of, governmental bodies. Failure to maintain or renew necessary permits, licenses or approvals, or noncompliance or concerns over noncompliance may result in suspension of our ability to distribute, import or manufacture products or criminal and civil sanctions and could have an adverse effect on our results of operations and financial condition.

We may manufacture the products sold to our customers in a location to be obtained in the future. As a result, we may be dependent upon the uninterrupted and efficient operation of our manufacturing facility and our distribution facilities throughout the country. Our manufacturing facilities and distribution facilities may be subject to the risk of catastrophic loss due to, among other things, earthquake, fire, flood, terrorism or other natural or man-made disasters, as well as occurrence of significant equipment failures. If any of these facilities were to experience a catastrophic loss, it would be expected to disrupt our operations and could result in personal injury or property damage, damage relationships with our customers or result in large expenses to repair or replace the facilities or systems, as well as result in other liabilities and adverse impacts.

We may contract with third-party manufacturers to produce our products in the future in accordance with our specifications and standards. These contract manufacturers are subject to the same risks as our manufacturing facility as noted above. While we plan to implement stringent quality control procedures to verify that our contract manufacturers comply with our specifications and standards, we will not have full control over their manufacturing activities. Any difficulties, delays and defects in our products resulting from the activities of our contract manufacturers may have an adverse effect on our business and results of operations.

We are dependent on our collaborative agreements for the development of products and business development, which exposes us to the risk of reliance on the viability of third parties.

In conducting our research and development activities, we will in the future rely on collaborative agreements with third parties such as manufacturers, contract research organizations, commercial partners, universities, governmental agencies and not-for-profit organizations for both strategic and financial resources. The loss of, or failure to perform by us or our partners under, any applicable agreements or arrangements, or our failure to secure additional agreements for other products in development, would substantially disrupt or delay our research and development and commercialization activities. Any such loss would likely increase our expenses and materially harm our business, financial condition and results of operation.

Reliance on third-party relationships and outsourcing arrangements could adversely affect our business.

We utilize third parties, including suppliers, alliances with other agriculture companies and third-party service providers, for selected aspects of product development, the manufacture and commercialization of certain products, support for information technology systems, and certain financial transactional processes. Outsourcing these functions involves the risk that the third parties may not perform to our standards or legal requirements, may not produce reliable results, may not perform in a timely manner, may not maintain the confidentiality of our proprietary information, or may fail to perform at all. Failure of these third parties to meet their contractual, regulatory, confidentiality, or other obligations to us could have a material adverse effect on our business.

The forecasts of market growth included in our business plan and investor presentations may prove to be inaccurate, and even if the markets in which we compete achieve the forecasted growth, we cannot assure you our business will grow at similar rates, if at all.

Growth forecasts are subject to significant uncertainty and are based on assumptions and estimates that may not prove to be accurate. The forecasts in our business plan and investor presentations may prove to be inaccurate. Even if these markets experience the forecasted growth described in our business plan, we may not grow our business at similar rates, or at all. Our growth is subject to many factors, including our success in implementing our business strategy, which is subject to many risks and uncertainties. Accordingly, the forecasts of market growth included in our business plan should not be taken as indicative of our future growth.

We will need additional financing to execute our business plan, which we may not be able to secure on acceptable terms, or at all.

We will require additional financing in the near and long term to fully execute our business plan. Our success depends on our ability to raise such additional financing on reasonable terms and on a timely basis. Conditions in the economy and the financial markets may make it more difficult for us to obtain necessary additional capital or financing on acceptable terms, or at all. If we cannot secure sufficient additional financing, we may be forced to forego strategic opportunities or delay, scale back or eliminate further development of our goals and objectives, operations and investments or employ internal cost savings measures.

We plan to obtain insurance that may not provide adequate levels of coverage against claims.

We plan to obtain insurance customary for businesses of our size and type. However, there are types of losses we may incur that cannot be insured against or that we believe are not economically reasonable to insure. Such losses could have a material adverse effect on our business and results of operations.

Risks Related to the Company's Securities and this Offering

Affiliates of our company, including officers, directors and existing stockholder of our company, may invest in this offering and their funds will be counted toward our achieving the minimum amount.

There is no restriction on our affiliates, including our officers, directors and existing stockholders, investing in the offering. As a result, it is possible that if we have raised some funds, but not reached the minimum amount, affiliates can contribute the balance so that there will be a closing. The minimum amount is typically intended to be a protection for investors and gives investors confidence that other investors, along with them, are sufficiently interested in the offering and our company and its prospects to make an investment of at least the minimum amount. By permitting affiliates to invest in the offering and make up any shortfall between what non-affiliate investors have invested and the minimum amount, this protection is largely eliminated. Investors should be aware that no funds other than their own and those of affiliates investing along with them, may be invested in this offering.

We intend to use some of the proceeds from the offering for unspecified working capital.

This means that we have ultimate discretion to use this portion of the proceeds as we see fit and have chosen not to set forth any specific uses for you to evaluate. The net proceeds from this offering will be used for the purposes, which our management deems to be in our best interests in order to address changed circumstances or opportunities. As a result of the foregoing, our success will be substantially dependent upon our discretion and judgment with respect to application and allocation of the net proceeds of this offering. We may choose to use the proceeds in a manner that you do not agree with and you will have no recourse. A use of proceeds that does not further our business and goals could harm our company and its operations and ultimately cause you to lose all or a portion of your investment.

We are not subject to Sarbanes-Oxley regulations and lack the financial controls and safeguards required of public companies.

We do not have the internal infrastructure necessary, and are not required, to complete an attestation about our financial controls that would be required under Section 404 of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002. There can be no assurance that there are no significant deficiencies or material weaknesses in the quality of our financial controls. We expect to incur additional expenses and diversion of management's time if and when it becomes necessary to perform the system and process evaluation, testing and remediation required in order to comply with the management certification and auditor attestation requirements.

The securities being sold in this offering will not be freely tradable until one year from the initial purchase date. Although our securities may be tradable under federal securities law, state securities regulations may apply, and each investor should consult with his or her attorney.

You should be aware of the long-term nature of this investment. There is not now and likely will not be a public market for our securities. Because our securities have not been registered under the Securities Act or under the securities laws of any state or non-United States jurisdiction, our securities have transfer restrictions and cannot be resold in the United States except pursuant to Rule 501 of Regulation CF. It is not currently contemplated that registration under the Securities Act or other securities laws will be effected. Limitations on the transfer of the securities may also adversely affect the price that you might be able to obtain for our securities in a private sale. Investors should be aware of the long-term nature of their investment in the Company. Each investor in this offering will be required to represent that it is purchasing the securities for its own account, for investment purposes and not with a view to resale or distribution thereof.

Neither the offering nor the securities have been registered under federal or state securities laws, leading to an absence of certain regulation applicable to us.

No governmental agency has reviewed or passed upon this offering, our company or any Securities of our company. We also have relied on exemptions from securities registration requirements under applicable state securities laws. Investors, therefore, will not receive any of the benefits that such registration would otherwise provide. Prospective investors must therefore assess the adequacy of disclosure and the fairness of the terms of this offering on their own or in conjunction with their personal advisors.

No Guarantee of Return on Investment

There is no assurance that an investor will realize a return on its investment or that it will not lose its entire investment. For this reason, each investor should read the Form C and all Exhibits carefully and should consult with its own attorney and business advisor prior to making any investment decision.

A majority of our company is owned by a small number of owners.

Prior to the offering our officers, directors and those of our stockholders who own ten percent or more of our securities collectively own directly or indirectly 75% of our company. Subject to any fiduciary duties owed to our other owners or investors under Delaware law in the case of our officers and directors, these stockholders may be able to exercise significant influence over matters requiring owner approval, including the election of directors or managers and approval of significant company transactions, and will have significant control over our management and policies. These control persons may have interests that are different from yours. For example, they may support proposals and actions with which you may disagree. The concentration of ownership could delay or prevent a change in control of our company or otherwise discourage a potential acquirer from attempting to obtain control of the Company, which in turn could reduce the price potential investors are willing to pay for our company. In addition, this owner could use his voting influence to maintain the Company's existing management, delay or prevent changes in control of our company, or support or reject other management and board proposals that are subject to owner approval.

We have the right to extend the offering deadline.

We may extend the offering deadline beyond what is currently stated herein. This means that your investment may continue to be held in escrow while we attempt to raise the minimum amount even after the offering deadline stated in this offering statement is reached. Your investment will not be accruing interest during this time and will simply be held until such time as the new offering deadline is reached without our company receiving the minimum amount, at which time committed funds will become immediately available for withdrawal from the investor's brokerage account maintained with the Intermediary without interest or deduction, or until we receive the minimum amount, at which time it will be released to us to be used as set forth herein. Upon or shortly after release of such funds to us, the securities will be issued and distributed to you.

Your ownership of the shares will be subject to dilution.

If we conduct subsequent offerings of securities, issue shares pursuant to a compensation or distribution reinvestment plan or otherwise issues additional shares, investors who purchase securities in this offering who do not participate in those other stock issuances will experience dilution in their percentage ownership of our company's outstanding shares. Furthermore, shareholders may experience a dilution in the value of their underlying shares depending on the terms and pricing of any future share issuances (including the underlying shares being sold in this offering) and the value of the our assets at the time of issuance.

Management has discretion over proceeds of this offering.

We expect to use the net proceeds of this offering, over time, for general marketing and advertising, leasing costs, debt repayment and general working capital. However, we have no current specific plans for the net proceeds of this offering other than as outlined in the use of proceeds section of this offering statement. As a result, our management will have the discretion to allocate the net proceeds to uses that investors may not deem desirable. There can be no assurance that the net proceeds can or will be invested to yield a significant return.

The securities will be equity interests in our company and will not constitute indebtedness.

The securities will rank junior to all existing and future indebtedness and other non-equity claims on our company with respect to assets available to satisfy claims on the Company, including in a liquidation of our company. Additionally, unlike indebtedness, for which principal and interest would customarily be payable on specified due dates, there will be no specified payments of dividends with respect to the securities and dividends are payable only if, when and as authorized and declared by us and depend on, among other matters, our historical and projected results of operations, liquidity, cash flows, capital levels, financial condition, debt service requirements and other cash needs, financing covenants, applicable state law, federal and state regulatory prohibitions and other restrictions and any other factors our board of directors deems relevant at the time. In addition, there is no limit on the amount of debt or other obligations we may incur in the future. Accordingly, we may incur substantial amounts of additional debt and other obligations that will rank senior to the securities, which are the most junior securities of our company.

There can be no assurance that we will ever provide liquidity to investors through either a sale of our company or a registration of the securities.

There can be no assurance that any form of merger, combination, or sale of our company will take place, or that any merger, combination, or sale would provide liquidity for investors. Furthermore, we may be unable to register the securities for resale by investors for legal, commercial, regulatory, market-related or other reasons. In the event that we are unable to effect a registration, investors could be unable to sell their securities unless an exemption from registration is available.

The offering price in this offering may not represent the value of our securities.

The price of the securities being sold in this offering has been determined based on a number of factors and does not necessarily bear any relationship to our book value, assets, operating results or any other established criteria of value. Prices for our securities may not be indicative of the fair market value of our securities now or in the future.

17. What other securities or classes of securities of the issuer are outstanding? Describe the material terms of any other outstanding securities or classes of securities of the issuer.

The only securities of our company that are outstanding are common stock. The total amount of common stock issued and outstanding prior to this offering is 43,554,984 shares of common stock.

We may also offer preferred stock, or other debt or equity securities, including derivative securities like options, warrants and convertible debentures or notes in the future.

We reserve the right to sell our securities in a private placement transaction that occurs concurrent with this offering. Those securities may be SAFE securities (simplified agreement for future equity), preferred stock, convertible notes or other securities. Any securities that we sell for cash to investors in a private placement while this offering is ongoing will have a conversion cap, liquidation preference, conversion price, price or similar valuation mechanism that is based upon a valuation for our company equal to the valuation at which securities are being sold in this offering or higher. Investors should be aware that the securities that we sell in a concurrent private placement may have a liquidation preference, security interest, sinking fund, redemption provision or similar right that is senior to your rights as a common stockholder of this company and, accordingly, such other securities may be superior to our common stock in various ways even though they are being sold at the same valuation as we are selling our common stock in this offering.

18. How may the rights of the securities being offered be materially limited, diluted or qualified by the rights of any other class of security identified above?

The shares of our common stock being issued in this offering do not have anti-dilution rights, which means that future equity financings or other issuances of securities will dilute the ownership percentage that the investor will have in the company. It also means that if future financing rounds are done at a lower valuation, you will not receive the benefit of additional shares so that your valuation will remain the same. If we issue any shares of preferred stock or any debt securities in the future and, thereafter there is a liquidation of our company or sale of our company, the holders of such preferred stock or debt securities would have a preference in the payment of amounts owed to them such that you may not receive a large portion of (or any of) the assets, including any cash, to be distributed in liquidation.

19. Are there any differences not reflected above between the securities being offered and each other class of security of the issuer? ☐ Yes ☒ No

20. How could the exercise of rights held by the principal shareholders identified in Question 6 above affect the purchasers of the securities being offered.

If the principal shareholders exercise their voting rights, then the minority shareholders will have no ability to override the principal shareholders' votes. As a minority shareholder in the company, you will have limited ability, if at all, to influence our policies or any other corporate matters.

21. How are the securities being offered being valued? Include examples of methods for how such securities may be valued by the issuer in the future, including during subsequent corporate actions.

The securities being offered have been arbitrarily valued. Also, see the "The offering price in this offering may not represent the value of our securities" risk factor.

22. What are the risks to purchasers of the securities relating to minority ownership in the issuer?

As a minority shareholder in our company, you will have limited ability, if at all, to influence our policies or any other corporate matters such as amendments to our articles of incorporation, the creation of securities that are senior to the common stock being offered, mergers, the sale of all or substantially all of our assets, the election of board members, the liquidation or dissolution of our company and all other major corporate events.

23. What are the risks to purchasers associated with corporate actions including: additional issuances of securities, issuer repurchases of securities, a sale of the issuer or of assets of the issuer or transactions with related parties?

The securities do not have anti-dilution rights, which means that corporate actions, including: additional issuances of securities, issuer repurchases of securities, a sale of the issuer or of assets, or transactions with related parties could dilute the ownership percentage that the Investor may eventually have in the Company. Furthermore, if future issuances of securities are accomplished at a lower valuation than the valuation used for this offering (i.e., a down round), your valuation will remain the same as you have no price based anti-dilution protection.

24. Describe the terms of any indebtedness of the issuer.

During the year ended December 31, 2019, the Company engaged two individuals to assist with the management of the Company. Irreconcilable differences developed between these individuals and the Company. Effective December 17, 2021, an agreement was reached whereby the Company agreed to pay $60,000 to each as compensation for services rendered between October 1, 2019 and September 30, 2020. FINANCIAL CONDITION OF THE ISSUER

27. Does the issuer have an operating history? [X] Yes [] No

28. Describe the financial condition of the issuer, including, to the extent material, liquidity, capital resources and historical results of operations.

These financial statements have been prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles applicable to a going concern, which assumes that the Company will be able to meet its obligations and continue its operations for its next twelve months. Realization values may be substantially different from carrying values as shown and these financial statements do not give effect to adjustments that would be necessary to the carrying values and classifications of assets and liabilities should the Company be unable to continue as a going concern. At December 31, 2021, the Company did not have sales from operations and had accumulated losses of $3,360,727 since its inception, both of which casts substantial doubt about the Company's ability to continue as a going concern. The Company's ability to continue as a going concern is dependent upon its ability to generate future profitable operations and/or to obtain the necessary financing to meet its obligations and repay its liabilities arising from normal business operations when they come due.
