If I am a Company warrant holder, can I exercise redemption rights with respect to my public Warrants?, page 18

1. Clarify that although holders of the company's outstanding public warrants do not have redemption rights in connection with the Business Combination, if they choose to redeem shares of Class A stock, they may still exercise their warrants if the merger is consummated.

3. We note in the Subsequent events disclosure for Sarcos on page F-54 that on February 18, 2021, the Sarcos CEO was granted 1 million RSAs that vest over a 15 month period commencing on the date of the business combination. We also note on page 200, in April 2021, the Sarcos board of directors amended RSAs to certain executives that triggers vesting of the RSAs on the closing of the business combination. While these costs will be expensed in the subsequent periods, since it is directly related to the merger in its vesting, please disclose this grant in the notes to the pro forma financial information.

Please revise to discuss the material tax consequences of the Business Combination to each company's stockholders and the company. In this regard, the merger agreement indicates that the parties intend for the merger to be tax free under Section 368(a) of the Internal Revenue Code. If you believe the business combination will be tax free, please disclose whether you received an opinion of counsel that supports this conclusion. Refer to Section III of Staff Legal Bulletin No. 19.
