Risk Factors

You Might Lose Your Money

When you buy a certificate of deposit from a bank, the Federal government (through the FDIC) guarantees it. Buying a Note is not like that at all. The ability of Stratta Kitchen to make the payments you expect, at the end of the term, depends on a number of factors, including many beyond our control.

Inability to Sell Your Investment

The law prohibits you from selling your securities (except in certain very limited circumstances) for 12 months after that one-year period, a host of Federal and State securities laws may limit or restrict your ability to sell. If you are permitted to sell, you will likely have difficulty finding a buyer because there will be no established market. You should be prepared to hold your investment for its full term.

No Registration Under Securities Laws

The Notes will not be registered with the SEC or the securities regulator of any State. Hence, neither the Notes nor the company will be subject to the same degree of regulation and scrutiny as if they were registered.

If Stratta Kitchen needs more capital in the future and takes on additional debt or other sources of financing rights superior to yours. For example, they might have the right to be paid before you are, to receive a voice in management, or otherwise.

The Company is Not Subject to the Corporate Governance Requirements of the National Securities Exchange Act

Any company whose securities are listed on a national stock exchange (for example, the New York Stock Exchange) is subject to a set of rules about corporate governance that are intended to protect investors. For example, the major U.S. companies are required to have an audit committee made up entirely of independent members of the board of directors (no relationships with Stratta Kitchen or management), which is responsible for monitoring Stratta Kitchen's financial reporting. Stratta Kitchen will not be required to implement these and other investor protections.

You Have a Limited Upside

Notes include a maximum amount you can receive. You cannot receive more than that even if Stratta Kitchen becomes more successful than your initial expectations.

You Do Have a Downside

Conversely, if Stratta Kitchen fails to generate enough revenue, you could lose some or all of your money.

Payments and Return Are Unpredictable

Because your payments are based on the revenue of Stratta Kitchen, and the revenue of Stratta Kitchen can fluctuate (and even disappear altogether) unpredictably, it is impossible to predict how much you will receive and when. As a result, your return is unpredictable, so is your ultimate return.

The Notes Are Unsecured and Uninsured

The Notes are not secured by any collateral, nor are they guaranteed or insured by the FDIC or any other government agency.

Subordination

The Notes shall be subordinated to all indebtedness of Stratta Kitchen to banks, commercial finance companies, and other institutions regularly engaged in the business of lending money.

Lack of Guaranty

The Notes are not personally guaranteed by any of the founders or any other person.

Limitation of Individual Rights in Event of Default
