As a funding investor in Invincible I have had the pleasure to witness Ashley over the years in but she have seen leadership's ability to adapt and overcome challenges in changing conditions, execute on strategic growth initiatives and develop a very loyal customer base that is incentivized to watch on the new Galxy TV service. Over the years Invincible has built an impressive team around Ashley to help and it has demonstrated its ability to monetize that content across a wide range of platforms. I personally am excited to be invited in the company now because I believe that its lucid streaming service, Galxy, is poised to skyrocket and the newly launched Galxy Streaming Service puts the company in a position to capitalize on that growth. I am excited for the next phase in Invincible's growth and look forward to the company's success in delivering its audience customers.

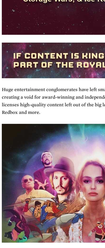
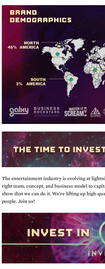
Why Invincible?



Huge entertainment conglomerates have left small and independent companies out of the game, creating a void for award-winning and independent content. Invincible produces, buys and licenses high-quality content left out of the big league, and sells it to Netflix, Amazon, Walmart, Redbox and more.

Big media companies have consolidated, leaving smaller companies struggling. But high-quality content left behind has found a new home, with Invincible, whose distribution includes TV channels, streaming, cable and physical media, and who allows smaller productions to find great success without sacrificing independence.

Our content reaches 300+ million people, and we believe that number will only continue to grow. Featured in the New York Times, the Hollywood Reporter, People Magazine, and more, we believe Invincible will soon be a household name in entertainment.



Even before the pandemic, this market saw explosive growth, and we believe it will continue to grow at an unprecedented rate over the next few years. We're capitalizing on this growth to support an industry in need and provide people with access to the highest-quality content at the time they, too, need it most.

A look at our distribution partners shows that we're not the only royalty in the room...

The Invincible team has built and worked on media companies of all sizes. From a 2x Emmy Award-winning producer to a former CEO of Nasdaq & NYSE companies--we believe this team has what it takes to lead Invincible towards a highly profitable exit, benefiting the entertainment industry and its investors alike.

Every time someone watches one of Invincible's productions, we get paid--whether it's via a movie ticket, a Blu Ray, an episode on Netflix, or content on one of our own 12 major streaming channels with diverse content and over 30 million unique impressions each month.

Disclaimer: These projections cannot be guaranteed

Invincible's audience and subscriber growth shows no sign of slowing down, and we hope to continue to acquire high-quality content as well as produce our own. With significant assets and multiple revenue streams provide recurring income which puts us on track towards over $6 million in revenue by 2023. Those projections cannot be guaranteed.

Our channels are gaining popularity across the planet, including a steadily growing number of viewers and subscribers in South America, Australia and Africa.

The entertainment industry is evolving at lightning speed, and we believe Invincible has the right team, concept, and business model to capitalize on the momentum--and the traction to show that we can do it. We're lifting up high-quality content and making it accessible to the people. Join us!
