Doc Compton is one of the nation's foremost authorities on credit repair and credit restoration. With over two decades of experience in consumer credit and credit repair, having helped thousands by correcting or deleting inaccurate and incomplete information from their credit reports, and teaching them how to increase their credit scores, through establishing and maintaining their very best credit. After a two year break, during which he was no longer involved in the day-to-day operations, but remained a technical consultant and advisor to Omega, he has returned to the company to manage referral partner relationships. A consumer advocate at heart, he works tirelessly to protect consumers' rights, making sure that creditors, collection agencies, and the credit bureaus are held accountable for what they report. He's hosted his own radio and television shows, is a published author, and dynamic speaker.
