1. Summary of significant accounting policies

a. Nature of operations

ReadyB, Inc (the company) has developed an app for connecting individuals looking for service providers with top-quality, pre-screened professionals. The app allows consumers to easily find service providers, compare prices and allows for secure payments. Service providers are able to set their own rates and the Company charges a commission of service proceeds depending on the type of service provided. The app is available for consumers to download on the Apple App Store, Google Play, Galaxy Store, and the Huawei AppGallery.

The Company was incorporated in Delaware on September 18, 2019 and was registered as a Foreign Corporation with the California Franchise Tax Board on October 14, 2019.

b. Use of estimates

The preparation of the financial statements in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America (GAAP) requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the reporting period. Actual results could materially differ from those estimates.

c. Basis of accounting

The financial statements have been prepared in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America ("GAAP") as detailed in the Financial Accounting Standards Board's Accounting Standards Codification. The financial statements have been prepared on the accrual basis of accounting.

d. Fiscal Year

The Company operates on a December 31st year end.

e. Cash and cash equivalents

Cash and cash equivalents includes short-term investments and highly liquid investments in money market instruments which are carried at the lower of cost and market value with a maturity date of three months or less from the acquisition date. These are valued at cost which approximates market value.

f. Intangible Assets

Intangible assets consist of costs associated with patent applications and trademarks. As of December 31, 2020, the Company has 3 patents approved and 2 in pending status. Costs related to patents awarded are capitalized and amortized over the 20 year lives of the patents using the straight-line method, once the patent is approved. As Trademarks are eligible for renewal they have been classified as indefinite-life assets and accordingly are not amortized.

Costs related to patents pending are assessed for impairment by management whenever events or changes in circumstances indicate that the carrying amount of the asset may not be recoverable. Cost related to patents pending are deemed impaired upon the rejection of the patent application, or when management believes that the patent is unlikely to be awarded. The patent has since been granted as of the date the financials were available to be issued. As of December 31, 2020 and 2019, no impairment of the patents pending or approved was deemed necessary by management.

g. Income taxes

The company follows the liability method of accounting for income taxes. Under this method, future income tax liabilities and assets are recognized for the estimated income tax consequences attributable to differences between the financial statement carrying amounts of assets and liabilities and their respective tax basis. Future income tax liabilities and assets are measured using enacted tax rates. The effect on future income tax liabilities and assets of a change in tax rates is recognized in income in the period that the change occurs.

The Company is a Subchapter S Corporation and thus taxed as a pass-through entity. Accordingly, the accompanying financials statements do not include a provision, benefit, liability, or refund receivable for federal and state income taxes because the shareholders are taxed individually on their share of the Company's earnings.

The Company is subject to franchise tax filing requirements in the State of California and Delaware.

h. Advertising Expenses

The Company expenses advertising costs as they are incurred.

i. Revenue Recognition

ASC Topic 606, "Revenue from Contracts with Customers" establishes principles for reporting information about the nature, amount, timing and uncertainty of revenue and cash flows arising from the entity's contracts to provide goods or services to customers. Revenues are recognized when control of the promised goods or services are transferred to a customer, in an amount that reflects the consideration that the Company expects to receive in exchange for those goods or services. The Company applies the following five steps in order to determine the appropriate amount of revenue to be recognized as it fulfills its obligations under each of its agreements: 1) identify the contract with a customer; 2) identify the performance obligations in the contract; 3) determine the transaction price; 4) allocate the transaction price to performance obligations in the contract; and 5) recognize revenue as the performance obligation is satisfied.

ReadyB, Inc
Notes to the Financial Statements

Revenue is recognized when control of the promised goods or services is transferred to customers, in an amount that reflects the consideration the Company expects to be entitled to in exchange for those goods or services. As a practical expedient, the Company does not adjust the transaction price for the effects of a significant financing component if, at contract inception, the period between customer payment and the transfer of goods or services is expected to be one year or less.

The Company derives revenues from commissions for use of its software.

j. Software Development Costs

The company capitalizes qualifying internal computer software costs incurred during the application development stage. Costs incurred in the preliminary project stage and post-implementation-operation stage, which includes maintenance and training costs, are expensed as incurred. For financial reporting purposes, capitalized software costs are amortized by the straight-line method. The amount of costs capitalized within any period is dependent on the nature of software development activities and projects in each period.

2. Intangible Assets
