Christopher Kaspar

Founder. Creator. Father. Son.
Shiner, Texas, United States

Summary

Chris is the founder of Techless and creator of Wisephone, a minimalist phone for families and digital minimalists.

Chris was the co-founder and President of Espresso, a design agency specializing in ground-up brand & design strategy. Clients include Ranch Hand, TrustTexas Bank, Horizon Firearms, Ful-O-Pep Feeds, Texas Precious Metals, Kaspar Companies, and Bedrock Truck Beds. Espresso is the recipient of multiple Addy Awards for print, film and non-traditional work.

Chris founded Texas A&M's ARTISTS, a creative student organization. Today, ARTISTS continues to glorify God through deep community, discipleship and the creative arts.

Chris founded Dancing Fox Films, a film production company specializing in ministry and non-profit collaborations. Work from Dancing Fox Films has been filmed and screened worldwide, including a longform piece for Chic-Fila-A that aired on ESPN Superbowl Gameday.

Chris currently serves as the chairman of the Don G. Kaspar foundation and is a member of Capital Factory in Austin.

Chris is married to his lovely wife, Ciera, who works at home raising their four playful girls. Chris and Ciera have been foster parents for a handful of beautiful kids, are active leaders in their home church community and live for a deeper purpose.
