Summary

As the CEO and co-founder of Atakama, I lead our dedicated team on a mission to enhance security measures for small and medium-sized businesses. We cultivate partnerships with the managed service provider (MSP) community, where together, we create robust security frameworks that serve as the foundation of their defenses.

Our flagship offering, the Atakama Browser Security Platform, stands at the forefront of the contemporary MSP security arsenal. It equips MSPs with a suite of indispensable tools designed to navigate the ever-evolving threat landscape. This platform not only enhances the resilience of MSPs against emerging cyber threats but also provides profound insights into browser and SaaS application interactions, thereby enabling them to offer unparalleled protective measures to their clients.

We're a VC-backed company located in New York City.
