RISK FACTORS

Risks Related to the Company's Business and Industry

In order for the Company to compete and grow, it must attract, recruit, retain and develop the necessary personnel who have the needed experience.

Recruiting and retaining highly qualified personnel is critical to our success. These demands may require us to hire additional personnel and will require our existing management personnel to develop additional expertise. We face intense competition for personnel. The failure to attract and retain personnel or to develop such expertise could delay or halt the development and commercialization of our product candidates. If we experience difficulties in hiring and retaining personnel in key positions, we could suffer from delays in product development, loss of customers and sales and diversion of management resources, which could adversely affect operating results. Our consultants and advisors may be employed by third parties and may have commitments under consulting or advisory contracts with third parties that may limit their availability to us.

The development and commercialization of our services is highly competitive.

We face competition with respect to any products that we may seek to develop or commercialize in the future. Our competitors include major companies worldwide. Many of our competitors have significantly greater financial, technical, and human resources than we have and superior expertise in research and development and marketing approved fraud prevention products and thus may be better equipped than us to develop and commercialize fraud prevention products. These competitors also compete with us in recruiting and retaining qualified personnel and acquiring technologies. Smaller or early stage companies may also prove to be significant competitors, particularly through collaborative arrangements with large and established companies. Accordingly, our competitors may commercialize products more rapidly or effectively than we are able to, which would adversely affect our competitive position, the likelihood that our fraud prevention will achieve initial market acceptance and our ability to generate meaningful additional revenues from our products.

Security breaches and other disruptions could compromise our information and expose us to liability, which would cause our business and reputation to suffer.

We collect and store sensitive data, including intellectual property, our proprietary business information and that of our customers, suppliers and business partners, and personally identifiable information of customers, employees, and individuals and organizations found to be compromised through our cybersecurity activities in our data centers and on our networks. The secure processing, maintenance and transmission of this information is critical to our operations and business strategy. Despite our security measures, our information technology and infrastructure may be vulnerable to attacks by hackers or breached due to employee error, malfeasance, or other disruptions. Any such breach could compromise our networks and the information stored there could be accessed, publicly disclosed, lost, or stolen. Any such access, disclosure or other loss of information could result in legal claims or proceedings, liability under laws that protect the privacy of personal information, and regulatory penalties, disrupt our operations and the services we provide to customers, and damage our reputation, and cause a loss of confidence in our products and services, which could adversely affect our business/operating margins, revenues, and competitive position.

The secure processing, maintenance and transmission of this information is critical to our operations and business strategy, and we devote significant resources to protecting our information by implementing reasonable security measures and attempting to maintain compliance with recommended security standards such as SOC2 and PCI DSS. The expenses associated with protecting our information/ these steps could reduce our operating margins.

Our business could be negatively impacted by cyber security threats, attacks, and other disruptions.

Like others in our industry, we continue to face advanced and persistent attacks on our information infrastructure where we manage and store various proprietary information and sensitive/confidential data relating to our operations. These attacks may include, but are not limited to, sophisticated malware (viruses, worms, and other malicious software programs) and phishing emails that attack our products or otherwise exploit any security vulnerabilities. These intrusions sometimes may be zero-day malware that are difficult to identify because they are not included in the signature set of commercially available antivirus scanning programs. Experienced computer programmers and hackers may be able to penetrate our network security and misappropriate or compromise our confidential information or that of our customers or other third parties, create system disruptions, or cause shutdowns. Additionally, sophisticated software and applications that we produce or procure from third parties may contain defects in design or manufacture, including "bugs" and other problems that could unexpectedly interfere with the operation of the information infrastructure. A disruption, infiltration, or failure of our information infrastructure systems or any of our data centers as a result of software or hardware malfunctions, computer viruses, cyber attacks, employee theft or misuse, power disruptions, natural disasters or accidents could cause breaches of data security, loss of critical data and performance delays, which in turn could adversely affect our business.

Through our operations, we collect and store certain personal information that our customers provide to purchase products or services, enroll in promotional programs, register on our web site, or otherwise communicate and interact with us. We also collect certain personal, confidential information for fraud prevention purposes.

We may share information about such persons with vendors that assist with certain aspects of our business. Security could be compromised, and confidential customer or business information misappropriated. Loss of customer or business information could disrupt our operations, damage our reputation, and expose us to claims from customers, financial institutions, payment card associations and other persons, any of which could have an adverse effect on our business, financial condition, and results of operations. In addition, compliance with tougher privacy and information security laws and standards may result in significant expense due to increased investment in technology and the development of new operational processes.

The use of individually identifiable data by our business, our business associates and third parties is regulated at the state, federal and international levels.

Costs associated with information security – such as investment in technology, the costs of compliance with consumer protection laws and costs resulting from consumer fraud – could cause our business and results of operations to suffer materially. Additionally, the success of our online operations depends upon the secure transmission of confidential information over public networks, including the use of cashless payments. The intentional or negligent actions of employees, business associates or third parties may undermine our security measures. As a result, unauthorized parties may obtain access to our data systems and misappropriate confidential data. There can be no assurance that advances in computer capabilities, new discoveries in the field of cryptography or other developments will prevent the compromise of our customer transaction processing capabilities and personal data. If any such compromise of our security or the security of information residing with our business associates or third parties were to occur, it could have a material adverse effect on our reputation, operating results, and financial condition. Any compromise of our data security may materially increase the costs we incur to protect against such breaches and could subject us to additional legal risk.

The products we sell are advanced, and we need to rapidly and successfully develop and introduce new products in a competitive, demanding and rapidly changing environment.

To succeed in our intensely competitive industry, we must continually improve, refresh, and expand our product and service offerings to include newer features, functionality, or solutions, and keep pace with price-to-performance gains in the industry. Shortened product life cycles due to customer demands and competitive pressures impact the pace at which we must introduce and implement new technology. This requires a high level of innovation by both our software developers and the suppliers of the third-party software components included in our systems. In addition, bringing new solutions to the market entails a costly and lengthy process, and requires us to accurately anticipate customer needs and technology trends. We must continue to respond to market demands, develop leading technologies and maintain leadership in analytic data solutions performance and scalability, or our business operations may be adversely affected.

We must also anticipate and respond to customer demands regarding the compatibility of our current and prior offerings. These demands could hinder the pace of introducing and implementing new technology. Our future results may be affected if our products cannot effectively interface and perform well with software products of other companies and with our customers' existing IT infrastructures, or if we are unsuccessful in our efforts to enter into agreements allowing integration of third-party technology with our database and software platforms. Our efforts to develop the interoperability of our products may require significant additional investments of capital and employee resources that we may be unable to secure. In addition, many of our principal products are used with products offered by third parties and, in the future, some vendors of non-Company products may become less willing to provide us with access to their products, technical information and marketing and sales support. As a result of these and other factors, our ability to introduce new or improved solutions could be adversely impacted and our business would be negatively affected.

We plan to implement new lines of business or offer new products and services within existing lines of business.

There are substantial risks and uncertainties associated with these efforts, particularly in instances where the markets are not fully developed. In developing and marketing new lines of business and/or new products and services, we may invest significant time and resources. Initial timetables for the introduction and development of new lines of business and/or new products or services may not be achieved, and price and profitability targets may not prove feasible. We may not be successful in introducing new products and services in response to industry trends or developments in technology, or those new products may not achieve market acceptance. As a result, we could lose business, be forced to price products and services on less advantageous terms to retain or attract clients or be subject to cost increases. As a result, our business, financial condition, or results of operations may be adversely affected.

An intentional or unintentional disruption, failure, misappropriation or corruption of our network and information systems could severely affect our business.

Such an event might be caused by computer hacking, computer viruses, worms and other destructive or disruptive software, "cyber attacks" and other malicious activity, as well as natural disasters, power outages, terrorist attacks and similar events. Such events could have an adverse impact on us and our customers, including degradation of service, service disruption, excessive call volume to call centers and damage to our plant, equipment, and data. In addition, our future results could be adversely affected due to the theft, destruction, loss, misappropriation or release of confidential customer data or intellectual property. Operational or business delays may result from the disruption of network or information systems and the subsequent remediation activities. Moreover, these events may create negative publicity resulting in reputation or brand damage with customers.

The Company's success depends on the experience and skill of the board of directors, its executive officers, and key employees.

In particular, the Company is dependent on Tobin Shea (CEO, Board President, and Treasurer), Nico Kokonas (CTO, Board Director), and Casey McGlynn (Board Secretary). The Company has or intends to enter into employment agreements with Tobin Shea and Nico Kokonas although there can be no assurance that it will do so or that they will continue to be employed by the Company for a particular period of time. The loss of Tobin Shea, Nico Kokonas, or any member of the board of directors or executive officer could harm the Company's business, financial condition, cash flow and results of operations.

Although dependent on certain key personnel, the Company does not have any key man life insurance policies on any such people.

The Company is dependent on Tobin Shea, Nico Kokonas, and Casey McGlynn in order to conduct its operations and execute its business plan, however, the Company has not purchased any insurance policies with respect to those individuals in the event of their death or disability. Therefore, if any of Tobin Shea, Nico Kokonas, and Casey McGlynn die or become disabled, the Company will not receive any compensation to assist with such person's absence. The loss of such person could negatively affect the Company and its operations.

We must acquire or develop new products, evolve existing ones, address any defects or errors, and adapt to technology change.

Technical developments, client requirements, programming languages, and industry standards change frequently in our markets. As a result, success in current markets and new markets will depend upon our ability to enhance current products, address any product defects or errors, acquire, or develop and introduce new products that meet client needs, keep pace with technology changes, respond to competitive products, and achieve market acceptance. Product development requires substantial investments for research, refinement, and testing. We may not have sufficient resources to make necessary product development investments. We may experience technical or other difficulties that will delay or prevent the successful development, introduction, or implementation of new or enhanced products. We may also experience technical or other difficulties in the integration of acquired technologies into our existing platform and applications. Inability to introduce or implement new or enhanced products in a timely manner could result in loss of market share if competitors are able to provide solutions to meet customer needs before we do, give rise to unanticipated expenses related to further development or modification of acquired technologies as a result of integration issues, and adversely affect future performance.

Our failure to deliver high quality server solutions could damage our reputation and diminish demand for our products, and subject us to liability.

Our customers require our products to perform at a high level, contain valuable features and be extremely reliable. The design of our server solutions is sophisticated and complex, and the process for manufacturing, assembling, and testing our server solutions is challenging. Occasionally, our design or manufacturing processes may fail to deliver products of the quality that our customers require. For example, a vendor may provide us with a defective component that failed under certain heavy use applications. As a result, our product would need to be repaired. The vendor may agree to pay for the costs of the repairs, but we may incur costs in connection with the recall and diverted resources from other projects. New flaws or limitations in our products may be detected in the future. Part of our strategy is to bring new products to market quickly, and first-generation products may have a higher likelihood of containing undetected flaws. If our customers discover defects or other performance problems with our products, our customers' businesses, and our reputation, may be damaged. Customers may elect to delay or withhold payment for defective or underperforming products, request remedial action, terminate contracts for untimely delivery, or elect not to order additional products. If we do not properly address customer concerns about our products, our reputation and relationships with our customers may be harmed. In addition, we may be subject to product liability claims for a defective product. Any of the foregoing could have an adverse effect on our business and results of operations.

If we do not respond to technological changes or upgrade our websites and technology systems, our growth prospects and results of operations could be adversely affected.

To remain competitive, we must continue to enhance and improve the functionality and features of our websites and technology infrastructure. As a result, we will need to continue to improve and expand our hosting and network infrastructure and related software capabilities. These improvements may require greater levels of spending than we have experienced in the past. Without such improvements, our operations might suffer from unanticipated system disruptions, slow application performance or unreliable service levels, any of which could negatively affect our reputation and ability to attract and retain customers and contributors. Furthermore, in order to continue to attract and retain new customers, we are likely to incur expenses in connection with continuously updating and improving our user interface and experience. We may face significant delays in introducing new services, products, and enhancements. If competitors introduce new products and services using new technologies or if new industry standards and practices emerge, our existing websites and our proprietary technology and systems may become obsolete or less competitive, and our business may be harmed. In addition, the expansion and improvement of our systems and infrastructure may require us to commit substantial financial, operational, and technical resources, with no assurance that our business will improve.

The Company could be negatively impacted if found to have infringed on intellectual property rights.

Technology companies, including many of the Company's competitors, frequently enter into litigation based on allegations of patent infringement or other violations of intellectual property rights. In addition, patent holding companies seek to monetize patents they have purchased or otherwise obtained. As the Company grows, the intellectual property rights claims against it will likely increase. The Company intends to vigorously defend infringement actions in court and before the U.S. International Trade Commission. The plaintiffs in these actions frequently seek injunctions and substantial damages. Regardless of the scope or validity of such patents or other intellectual property rights, or the merits of any claims by potential or actual litigants, the Company may have to engage in protracted litigation. If the Company is found to infringe one or more patents or other intellectual property rights, regardless of whether it can develop non-infringing technology, it may be required to pay substantial damages or royalties to a third-party, or it may be subject to a temporary or permanent injunction prohibiting the Company from marketing or selling certain products. In certain cases, the Company may consider the desirability of entering into licensing agreements, although no assurance can be given that such licenses can be obtained on acceptable terms or that litigation will not occur. These licenses may also significantly increase the Company's operating expenses.

Regardless of the merit of particular claims, litigation may be expensive, time-consuming, disruptive to the Company's operations and distracting to management. In recognition of these considerations, the Company may enter into arrangements to settle litigation. If one or more legal matters were resolved against the Company's consolidated financial statements for that reporting period could be materially adversely affected. Further, such an outcome could result in significant compensatory, punitive, or trebled monetary damages, disgorgement of revenue or profits, remedial corporate measures or injunctive relief against the Company that could adversely affect its financial condition and results of operations.

We rely heavily on our technology and intellectual property, but we may be unable to adequately or cost-effectively protect or enforce our intellectual property rights, thereby weakening our competitive position and increasing operating costs.

To protect our rights in our services and technology, we rely on a combination of copyright and trademark laws, patents, trade secrets, confidentiality agreements with employees and third parties, and protective contractual provisions. We also rely on laws pertaining to trademarks and domain names to protect the value of our corporate brands and reputation. Despite our efforts to protect our proprietary rights, unauthorized parties may copy aspects of our services or technology, obtain and use information, marks, or technology that we regard as proprietary, or otherwise violate or infringe our intellectual property rights. In addition, it is possible that others could independently develop substantially equivalent intellectual property. If we do not effectively protect our intellectual property, or if others independently develop substantially equivalent intellectual property, our competitive position could be weakened.

Effectively policing the unauthorized use of our services and technology is time-consuming and costly, and the steps taken by us may not prevent misappropriation of our technology or other proprietary assets. The efforts we have taken to protect our proprietary rights may not be sufficient or effective, and unauthorized parties may copy aspects of our services, use similar marks or domain names, or obtain and use information, marks, or technology that we regard as proprietary. We may have to litigate to enforce our intellectual property rights, to protect our trade secrets, or to determine the validity and scope of others' proprietary rights, which are sometimes not clear or may change. Litigation can be time consuming and expensive, and the outcome can be difficult to predict.

We rely on agreements with third parties to provide certain services, goods, technology, and intellectual property rights necessary to enable us to implement some of our applications.

Our ability to implement and provide our applications and services to our clients depends, in part, on services, goods, technology, and intellectual property rights owned or controlled by third parties. These third parties may become unable to or refuse to continue to provide these services, goods, technology, or intellectual property rights on commercially reasonable terms consistent with our business practices, or otherwise discontinue a service important for us to continue to operate our applications. If we fail to replace these services, goods, technologies, or intellectual property rights in a timely manner or on commercially reasonable terms, our operating results and financial condition could be harmed. In addition, we exercise limited control over our third-party vendors, which increases our vulnerability to problems with technology and services those vendors provide. If the services, technology, or intellectual property of third parties were to fail to perform as expected, it could subject us to potential liability, adversely affect our renewal rates, and have an adverse effect on our financial condition and results of operations.

Indemnity provisions in various agreements potentially expose us to substantial liability for intellectual property infringement and other losses.

Our agreements with advertisers, advertising agencies, customers and other third parties may include indemnification provisions under which we agree to indemnify them for losses suffered or incurred as a result of claims of intellectual property infringement, damages caused by us to property or persons, or other liabilities relating to or arising from our products, services or other contractual obligations. The term of these indemnity provisions generally survives termination or expiration of the applicable agreement. Large indemnity payments would harm our business, financial condition, and results of operations. In addition, any type of intellectual property lawsuit, whether initiated by us or a third party, would likely be time consuming and expensive to resolve and would divert management's time and attention.

Industry consolidation may result in increased competition, which could result in a loss of customers or a reduction in revenue.

Some of our competitors have made or may make acquisitions or may enter into partnerships or other strategic relationships to offer more comprehensive services than they individually had offered or achieve greater economies of scale. In addition, new entrants not currently considered to be competitors may enter our market through acquisitions, partnerships, or strategic relationships. We expect these trends to continue as companies attempt to strengthen or maintain their market positions. The potential entrants may have competitive advantages over us, such as greater name recognition, longer operating histories, more varied services, and larger marketing budgets, as well as greater financial, technical, and other resources. The companies resulting from combinations or that expand or vertically integrate their business to include the market that we address may create more compelling service offerings and may offer greater pricing flexibility than we can or may engage in business practices that make it more difficult for us to compete effectively, including on the basis of price, sales and marketing programs, technology or service functionality. These pressures could result in a substantial loss of our customers or a reduction in our revenue.

We have not prepared any audited financial statements.

Therefore, you have no audited financial information regarding the Company's capitalization or assets or liabilities on which to make your investment decision. If you feel the information provided is insufficient, you should not invest in the Company.

We are subject to income taxes as well as non-income based taxes, such as payroll, sales, use, value-added, net worth, property and goods and services taxes, in both the U.S.

Significant judgment is required in determining our provision for income taxes and other tax liabilities. In the ordinary course of our business, there are many transactions and calculations where the ultimate tax determination is uncertain. Although we believe that our tax estimates are reasonable: (i) there is no assurance that the final determination of tax audits or tax disputes will not be different from what is reflected in our income tax provisions, expense amounts for non-income based taxes and accruals and (ii) any material differences could have an adverse effect on our financial position and results of operations in the period or periods for which determination is made.

We are not subject to Sarbanes-Oxley regulations and lack the financial controls and safeguards required of public companies.

We do not have the internal infrastructure necessary, and are not required, to complete an attestation about our financial controls that would be required under Section 404 of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002. There can be no assurance that there are no significant deficiencies or material weaknesses in the quality of our financial controls. We expect to incur additional expenses and diversion of management's time if and when it becomes necessary to perform the system and process evaluation, testing and remediation required in order to comply with the management certification and auditor attestation requirements.

The Company's business operations may be materially adversely affected by a pandemic such as the Coronavirus (COVID-19) outbreak.

In December 2019, a novel strain of coronavirus was reported to have surfaced in Wuhan, China, which spread throughout other parts of the world, including the United States. On January 30, 2020, the World Health Organization declared the outbreak of the coronavirus disease (COVID-19) a "Public Health Emergency of International Concern." On January 31, 2020, U.S. Health and Human Services Secretary Alex M. Azar II declared a public health emergency for the United States to aid the U.S. healthcare community in responding to COVID-19, and on March 1, 2020 the World Health Organization characterized the outbreak as a "pandemic." COVID-19 resulted in a widespread health crisis that adversely affected the economies and financial markets worldwide. The Company's business could be materially and adversely affected. The extent to which COVID-19 impacts the Company's business will depend on future developments, which are highly uncertain and cannot be predicted, including new information which may emerge concerning the severity of COVID-19 and the actions to contain COVID-19 or treat its impact, among others. If the disruptions posed by COVID-19 or other matters of global concern continue for an extended period of time, the Company's operations may be materially adversely affected.

We face risks related to health epidemics and other outbreaks, which could significantly disrupt the Company's operations and could have a material adverse impact on us.

The outbreak of pandemics and epidemics could materially and adversely affect the Company's business, financial condition, and results of operations. If a pandemic occurs in areas in which we have material operations or sales, the Company's business activities originating from affected areas, including sales, materials, and supply chain related activities, could be adversely affected. Disruptive activities could include the temporary closure of facilities used in the Company's supply chain processes, restrictions on the export or shipment of products necessary to run the Company's business, business closures in impacted areas, and restrictions on the Company's employees' or consultants' ability to travel and to meet with customers, vendors, or other business relationships. The extent to which a pandemic or other health outbreak impacts the Company's results will depend on future developments, which are highly uncertain and cannot be predicted, including new information which may emerge concerning the severity of a virus and the actions to contain it or treat its impact, among others. Pandemics can also result in social, economic, and labor instability which may adversely impact the Company's business.

If the Company's employees or employees of any of the Company's vendors, suppliers or customers become ill or are quarantined and in either or both events are therefore unable to work, the Company's operations could be subject to disruption. The extent to which a pandemic affects the Company's results will depend on future developments that are highly uncertain and cannot be predicted.

We face risks relating to public health conditions such as the COVID-19 pandemic, which could adversely affect the Company's customers, business, and results of operations.

Our business and prospects could be materially adversely affected by the COVID-19 pandemic or recurrences of that or any other such disease in the future. Material adverse effects from COVID-19 and similar occurrences could result in numerous known and currently unknown ways including from quarantines and lockdowns which impair the Company's business. If the Company purchases materials from suppliers in affected areas, the Company may not be able to procure such products in a timely manner. The effects of a pandemic can place travel restrictions on key personnel which could have a material impact on the business. In addition, a significant outbreak of contagious diseases in the human population could result in a widespread health crisis that could adversely affect the economies and financial markets of many countries, resulting in an economic downturn that could reduce the demand for the Company's products and impair the Company's business prospects including as a result of being unable to raise additional capital on acceptable terms to us, if at all.

Risks Related to the Securities

The Crowd Notes will not be freely tradable until one year from the initial purchase date. Although the Crowd Notes may be tradable under federal securities law, state securities regulations may apply, and each Purchaser should consult with his or her attorney.

You should be aware of the long-term nature of this investment. There is not currently and likely will not in the future be a public market for the Crowd Notes. Because the Crowd Notes have not been registered under the Securities Act or under the securities laws of any state or non-United States jurisdiction, the Crowd Notes have transfer restrictions and cannot be resold in the United States except pursuant to Rule 501 of Regulation CF. It is not currently contemplated that registration under the Securities Act or other securities laws will be effected. Transfer of the Crowd Notes is also subject to the prior written approval of the Company, which may be given or withheld in the Company's sole discretion. Limitations on the transfer of the Crowd Notes may also adversely affect the price that you might be able to obtain for the Crowd Notes in a private sale. Purchasers should be aware of the long-term nature of their investment in the Company. Each Purchaser in this Offering will be required to represent that it is purchasing the Securities for its own account, for investment purposes and not with a view to resale or distribution thereof.

Neither the Offering nor the Securities have been registered under federal or state securities laws, leading to an absence of certain regulation applicable to the Company.

No governmental agency has reviewed or passed upon this Offering, the Company, or any Securities of the Company. The Company also has relied on exemptions from securities registration requirements under applicable state securities laws. Investors in the Company, therefore, will not receive any of the benefits that such registration would otherwise provide. Prospective investors must therefore assess the adequacy of disclosure and the fairness of the terms of this Offering on their own or in conjunction with their personal advisors.

No Guarantee of Return on Investment

There is no assurance that a Purchaser will realize a return on its investment or that it will not lose its entire investment. For this reason, each Purchaser should read the Form C/A and all Exhibits carefully and should consult with its own attorney and business advisor prior to making any investment decision.

A majority of the Company is owned by a small number of owners.

Prior to the Offering the Company's current owners of 20% or more beneficially own up to 93% of the Company. Subject to any fiduciary duties owed to our other owners or investors under Delaware law, these owners may be able to exercise significant influence over matters requiring owner approval, including the election of directors or managers and approval of significant Company transactions, and will have significant control over the Company's management and policies. Some of these persons may have interests that are different from yours. For example, these owners may support proposals and actions with which you may disagree. The concentration of ownership could delay or prevent a change in control of the Company or otherwise discourage a potential acquirer from attempting to obtain control of the Company, which in turn could reduce the price potential investors are willing to pay for the Company. In addition, these owners could use their voting influence to maintain the Company's existing management, delay or prevent changes in control of the Company, or support or reject other management and board proposals that are subject to owner approval.

There is no present market for the Securities, and we have arbitrarily set the price.

We have arbitrarily set the price of the Securities with reference to the general status of the securities market and other relevant factors. The Offering price for the Securities should not be considered an indication of the actual value of the Securities and is not based on our net worth or prior earnings. We cannot assure you that the Securities could be resold by you at the Offering price or at any other price.

Upon conversion of the Crowd Notes, Purchasers who are not "Major Investors" will grant a proxy to vote their underlying securities to the Intermediary or its affiliate, and, thus, will not have the right to vote on any matters coming before the shareholders of the Company for a vote. By granting this proxy you are giving up your right to vote on important matters, including significant corporate actions like mergers, amendments to our certificate of incorporation, a liquidation of our company and the election of our directors.

Upon conversion of the Crowd Notes and by virtue of a provision contained in the Crowd Notes, if you are not a Major Investor, that is, an investor who has purchased at least $25,000 in principal amount of the Crowd Notes, you will grant a proxy to the intermediary or its affiliate to vote the underlying securities that you will acquire upon conversion on all matters coming before the shareholders for a vote. The intermediary does not have any fiduciary duty to you to vote shares in a manner that is in your best interests. Accordingly, the intermediary may vote its proxy in a manner that may not be in the best interests of you as a security holder. For example, the intermediary may vote the proxy in favor of an amendment to our charter that adversely affects the rights of the holders of your class of securities in order to allow for a new investment to occur where the new investor requires senior rights.

Purchasers will be unable to declare the Security in "default" and demand repayment.

Unlike convertible notes and some other securities, the Securities do not have any "default" provisions upon which the Purchasers will be able to demand repayment of their investment. With respect to Purchasers who invest less than $25,000 in the Securities, the Company has ultimate discretion as to whether or not to convert the Securities upon a future equity financing and such Purchasers have no right to demand such conversion. Only in limited circumstances, such as a liquidity event, may such Purchasers demand payment and even then, such payments will be limited to the amount of cash available to the Company.

You will not have a vote or influence on the management of the Company.

All decisions with respect to the management of the Company will be made exclusively by the officers, directors, managers, or employees of the Company. You, as a Purchaser of Crowd

Notes, will have no ability to vote on issues of Company management and will not have the right or power to take part in the management of the company and will not be represented on the board of directors or managers of the Company. Accordingly, no person should purchase a Security unless he or she is willing to entrust all aspects of management to the Company.

The Company may never elect to convert the Securities or undergo a liquidity event.

The Company may never receive a future equity financing or, with respect to those Purchasers who invest less than $25,000, elect to convert the Securities upon such future financing. In addition, the Company may never undergo a liquidity event such as a sale of the Company or an IPO. If neither the conversion of the Securities nor a liquidity event occurs, the Purchasers could be left holding the Securities in perpetuity. The Securities have numerous transfer restrictions and will likely be highly illiquid, with no secondary market on which to sell them. The Securities are not equity interests, have no ownership rights, have no rights to the Company's assets or profits and have no voting rights or ability to direct the Company or its actions.

Affiliates of the Company, including officers, directors, and existing shareholders of the Company, may invest in this Offering and their funds will be counted toward the Company achieving the Minimum Amount.

There is no restriction on affiliates of the Company, including its officers, directors and existing shareholders, investing in the Offering. As a result, it is possible that if the Company has raised some funds, but not reached the Minimum Amount, affiliates can contribute the balance so that there will be a closing. The Minimum Amount is typically intended to be a protection for investors and gives investors confidence that other investors, along with them, are sufficiently interested in the Offering and the Company and its prospects to make an investment of at least the Minimum Amount. By permitting affiliates to invest in the offering and make up any shortfall between what non-affiliate investors have invested and the Minimum Amount, this protection is largely eliminated. Investors should be aware that no funds other than their own and those of affiliates investing along with them may be invested in this Offering.

The Company has the right to conduct multiple closings during the Offering.

If the Company meets certain terms and conditions an intermediate close of the Offering can occur, which will allow the Company to draw down on a portion of the proceeds of the offering committed and captured during the relevant period. The Company may choose to continue the Offering thereafter. Purchasers should be mindful that this means they can make multiple investment commitments in the offering, which may be subject to different cancellation rights. For example, if an intermediate close occurs and later a material change occurs as the Offering continues, Purchasers previously closed upon will not have the right to re-confirm their investment as it will be deemed completed.

The Company has the right to extend the Offering deadline. The Company has the right to end the Offering early.

The Company may extend the Offering deadline beyond what is currently stated herein. This means that your investment may continue to be held in escrow while the Company attempts to raise the Target Amount even after the Offering deadline stated herein is reached. While you have the right to cancel your investment in the event the Company extends the Offering, if you choose to reconfirm your investment, your investment will simply be held until such time as the new Offering deadline is reached without the Company receiving the Target Amount, at which time it will be returned to you without interest or deduction, or the Company receives the Target Amount, at which time it will be released to the Company to be used as set forth herein. Upon or shortly after release of such funds to the Company, the Securities will be issued and distributed to you. The Company may also end the Offering early; if the Offering reaches its target Offering amount after 30-calendar days but before the deadline, the Company can end the Offering with five business days' notice. This means your failure to participate in the Offering in a timely manner, may prevent you from being able to participate – it also means the Company may limit the amount of capital it can raise during the Offering by ending it early.

In addition to the risks listed above, businesses are often subject to risks not foreseen or fully appreciated by the management. It is not possible to foresee all risks that may affect us. Moreover, the Company cannot predict whether the Company will successfully effectuate the Company's current business plan. Each prospective Purchaser is encouraged to carefully analyze the risks and merits of an investment in the Securities and should take into consideration when making such analysis, among other, the Risk Factors discussed above.

THE SECURITIES OFFERED INVOLVE A HIGH DEGREE OF RISK AND MAY RESULT IN THE LOSS OF YOUR ENTIRE INVESTMENT. ANY PERSON CONSIDERING THE PURCHASE OF THESE SECURITIES SHOULD BE AWARE OF THESE AND OTHER FACTORS SET FORTH IN THIS FORM C/A AND SHOULD CONSULT WITH HIS OR HER LEGAL, TAX AND FINANCIAL ADVISORS PRIOR TO MAKING AN INVESTMENT IN THE SECURITIES. THE SECURITIES SHOULD ONLY BE PURCHASED BY PERSONS WHO CAN AFFORD TO LOSE ALL OF THEIR INVESTMENT.

Operations

We are currently raising our pre-seed round which we anticipate will be enough funding for at least one year of operating expenses. Our challenges will be marketing our services to and acquiring banking institution clients and a significant portion of raised funds will be devoted to do this.

The company intends to focus heavily on client acquisition through significant sales and marketing efforts. Some of these efforts include retaining with a PR firm to develop a strong brand identity and awareness through earned media content, outbound marketing, trade shows, channel partnerships, and working with banking associations.

Liquidity and Capital Resources

The proceeds will be primarily used for staffing and client acquisition. Many of these key hires will support the drive for client acquisition and provide further support for MindWise to handle its new client load.

The Company continues to evaluate potential additional raises from prospective angels and other investors.

Capital Expenditures and Other Obligations

The Company does not intend to make any material capital expenditures in the future.

Material Changes and Other Information

None.

Trends and Uncertainties

After reviewing the above discussion of the steps the Company intends to take, potential Purchasers should consider whether achievement of each step within the estimated time frame is realistic in their judgment. Potential Purchasers should also assess the consequences to the Company of any delays in taking these steps and whether the Company will need additional financing to accomplish them.

The financial statements are an important part of this Form C/A and should be reviewed in their entirety. The financial statements of the Company are attached hereto as Exhibit A.

THE OFFERING AND THE SECURITIES

The Offering

The Company is offering up to $250,000.00 in principal amount of Crowd Notes. The Company is attempting to raise a minimum amount of $25,000.00 in this Offering (the “Minimum Amount”). The Company must receive commitments from investors in an amount totaling the Minimum Amount by September 26, 2022 (the “Offering Deadline”) in order to receive any funds. If the sum of the investment commitments does not equal or exceed the Minimum Amount by the Offering Deadline, no Securities will be sold in the Offering, investment commitments will be cancelled and committed funds will be returned to potential investors without interest or deductions. If the Company has received the Minimum Amount by the Offering Deadline, the Company has the right to extend the Offering Deadline at its discretion. The Company will accept investments in excess of the Minimum Amount up to $250,000.00 (the “Maximum Amount”), and the additional Securities will be allocated at the Company’s discretion.

The price of the Securities does not necessarily bear any relationship to the Company’s asset value, net worth, revenues, or other established criteria of value, and should not be considered indicative of the actual value of the Securities.

In order to purchase the Securities, you must make a commitment to purchase by completing the Subscription Agreement. Purchaser funds will be held in escrow with Evolve Bank & Trust until the Minimum Amount of investments is reached. Purchasers may cancel an investment commitment until 48 hours prior to the Offering Deadline or the Closing, whichever comes first using the cancellation mechanism provided by the Intermediary. The Company will notify Purchasers when the Minimum Amount has been reached. If the Company reaches the Minimum Amount prior to the Offering Deadline, it may close the Offering at least five (5) days after reaching the Minimum Amount and providing notice to the Purchasers. If any material change (other than reaching the Minimum Amount) occurs related to the Offering prior to the Offering Deadline, the Company will provide notice to Purchasers and receive reconfirmations from Purchasers who have already made commitments. If a Purchaser does not reconfirm his or her investment commitment after a material change is made to the terms of the Offering, the Purchaser’s investment commitment will be cancelled, and the committed funds will be returned without interest or deductions.

If a Purchaser does not cancel an investment commitment before the Offering Deadline, the funds will be released to the Company upon closing of the Offering, and the Purchaser will receive the Securities in exchange for his or her investment. Any Purchaser funds received after the initial closing will be released to the Company upon a subsequent closing and the Purchaser will receive Securities in exchange for his or her investment as soon as practicable thereafter.

In the event that at least $75,000 in investments is committed and received by the escrow agent and more than thirty (30) days remain before the Offering Deadline, the Company may, at the discretion of the Intermediary, conduct the first of multiple closings of the Offering (an "Intermediate Close") and withdraw funds from escrow, provided that all investors receive notice that an Intermediate Close will occur and funds will be released to the Company, at least five (5) business days prior to the Intermediate Close (absent a material change that would require an extension of the offering and reconfirmation of the investment commitment). Investors who committed on or before such notice will have until 48 hours before the Intermediate Close to cancel their investment commitment.

Thereafter, the Company may, at the discretion of the Intermediary, only conduct another Intermediate Close before the Offering Deadline if (i) the amount of investment commitments made and received in escrow exceeds $125,000 since the time of the last Intermediate Close, and (ii) more than thirty (30) days remain before the Offering Deadline.

If a Purchaser does not cancel an investment commitment before an Intermediate Close or before the Offering Deadline, the funds will be released to the Company upon closing of the Offering and the Purchaser will receive the Securities in exchange for his or her investment. Any Purchaser funds received after the initial closing will be released to the Company upon a subsequent closing, and the Purchaser will receive Securities in exchange for his or her investment as soon as practicable thereafter.

The Company has agreed to return all funds to investors in the event a Form C-W is ultimately filed in relation to this Offering, regardless of any subsequent closes.

Subscription Agreements are not binding on the Company until accepted by the Company, which reserves the right to reject, in whole or in part, in its sole and absolute discretion, any subscription. If the Company rejects all or a portion of any subscription, the applicable prospective Purchaser's funds will be returned without interest or deduction.

The price of the Securities was determined arbitrarily. The minimum amount that a Purchaser may invest in the Offering is $100.00.

The Offering is being made through MicroVenture Marketplace, Inc., the Intermediary. The following two fields set forth the compensation being paid in connection with the Offering.

Commission/Fees

The Company shall pay to the Intermediary at the conclusion of the Offering a fee consisting of five percent (5.0%) commission based on the amount of investments raised in the offering and paid upon disbursement of funds from escrow at the time of closing.

Stock, Warrants and Other Compensation

The intermediary will receive a number of Crowd Notes of the issuer that is equal to two percent (2.0%) of the total number of Crowd Notes sold by the issuer in the Offering.

Transfer Agent and Registrar

The Company will act as transfer agent and registrar for the Securities.

The Securities

We request that you please review our offering materials and the Crowd Note(s) in conjunction with the following summary information.

Authorized Capitalization

See “CAPITALIZATION AND OWNERSHIP” above.

General

A Crowd Note is similar to a SAFE (Simple Agreement for Future Equity) security where an investor makes a cash investment in our company but receives company stock at a later date in connection with a specific event. Although the security is called a Crowd Note, the Crowd Note is not a debt instrument. It is intended to be an alternative to a convertible note.

Events Triggering Conversion of Crowd Notes

If you are a Major Investor, which is defined as an investor who invests at least $25,000 in this offering, then the specified event upon which the Crowd Notes would convert into capital stock of our company is (i) a Qualified Equity Financing, which we define below, or (ii) a Corporate Transaction, which we define below, if instead of receiving two times (2X) the outstanding principal of your Crowd Note, your Crowd Note converts immediately prior to the closing of the Corporate Transaction.

If you are not a Major Investor, then the Crowd Notes will only convert into capital stock of our company upon the earlier of (i) our company’s election to convert your Crowd Note, including upon a Qualified Equity Financing if our company elects to convert your Crowd Note then, or (ii) a Corporate Transaction, if instead of receiving two times (2X) the outstanding principal of your Crowd Note, your Crowd Note converts immediately prior to the closing of the Corporate Transaction.

Qualified Equity Financing

The Crowd Note defines “Qualified Equity Financing” as the first sale (or series of related sales) by us of our preferred stock following the closing of this offering from which we receive gross proceeds of not less than $1,000,000.00 (excluding the aggregate amount of securities converted into preferred stock in connection with such sale (or series of related sales)).

If the Crowd Note converts into equity in connection with a Qualified Equity Financing, then we will convert the Crowd Note into shares of our preferred stock that are issued in connection with the Qualified Equity Financing, which we refer to as Conversion Shares, equal to the quotient obtained by dividing the outstanding principal amount of the Crowd Note by the Conversion Price, which is defined below. The issuance of Conversion Shares will be on the same terms and conditions applicable to the stock sold in the Qualified Equity Financing; provided, however, that if you are not a Major Investor, you will receive shares of a shadow series, as we describe below, with certain limited rights. The Conversion Price applicable to a Qualified Equity Financing is the lower of:

(i) the product of (a) one minus any applicable Discount, and (b) the price paid per share for preferred stock by the investors in the Qualified Equity Financing, or

(ii) the quotient resulting from dividing (a) the Valuation Cap by (b) the total number of our shares of capital stock that are outstanding on a fully diluted basis (assuming for this purpose the exercise, exchange, or conversion of all securities exercisable or exchangeable for, or convertible into, our capital stock), immediately prior to the closing of the Qualified Equity Financing.

Any investor who is not a Major Investor will receive a shadow series of preferred stock upon conversion of such investor's Crowd Note. A shadow series is a series of our preferred stock that is identical in all respects to the shares of preferred stock issued in the Qualified Equity Financing (e.g., if the Company sells Series A Preferred Stock in the Qualified Equity Financing, the shadow series would be Series A-1 Preferred Stock), except that the liquidation preference per share of the shadow series shall equal the Conversion Price and the following additional differences will apply:

(i) shadow series shareholders will grant their vote on any matter that is submitted to a vote or for the consent of the stockholders of our company (except for on matters required by law) by irrevocable proxy; and

(ii) shadow series shareholders will receive quarterly business updates from the company through the Platform but will have no additional information or inspection rights (except with respect to such rights which are required by law).

Corporate Transaction and Corporate Transaction Payment

The Crowd Note defines "Corporate Transaction" as

(i) the closing of the sale, transfer, or other disposition of all or substantially all of our assets,

(ii) the consummation of the merger or consolidation of our company with or into another entity (except a merger or consolidation in which the holders of capital stock of our company immediately prior to such merger or consolidation continue to hold at least 50% of the voting power of the capital stock of our company or the surviving or acquiring entity),

(iii) the closing of the transfer (whether by merger, consolidation or otherwise), in one transaction or a series of related transactions, to a person or group of affiliated persons (other than an underwriter of our securities), of securities of our company if, after such closing, such person or group of affiliated persons would hold 50% or more of the outstanding voting stock of our company (or the surviving or acquiring entity), or

(iv) the initial public offering, liquidation, dissolution or winding up of our company; provided, however, that a transaction shall not constitute a Corporate Transaction if its sole purpose is to change the state of our incorporation or to create a holding company that will be owned in substantially the same proportions by the persons who held our securities immediately prior to such transaction.

In the event of a Corporate Transaction (defined above), you will receive the higher value of (i) an amount equal to two times (2X) the price you paid for your Crowd Note (i.e., 2X your principal amount) or (ii) the number of shares of preferred stock of the Company calculated by (a) multiplying the price you paid for your Crowd Note by the total number of our shares of capital stock that are outstanding on a fully diluted basis (assuming for this purpose the exercise, exchange or conversion of all securities exercisable or exchangeable for, or convertible into, our capital stock), immediately prior to the closing of the Qualified Equity Financing, and (b) dividing the product of that calculation by the Valuation Cap.

If there are not enough funds to pay you and other Crowd Note investors in full, then proceeds from the respective transaction will be distributed with equal priority and pro rata among the Crowd Note investors in proportion to their Purchase Price.

Termination of Crowd Note

The Crowd Notes will terminate upon the earlier of (i) a conversion of the entire purchase price under the Crowd Notes into Conversion Shares; or (ii) the payment of amounts due to the investor pursuant to a Corporate Transaction.

No Voting Rights, No Shareholders Agreement and No Anti-Dilution Rights

The Crowd Notes do not have any voting rights. Further, upon conversion of the Crowd Notes into Conversion Shares, shadow series shareholders shall grant their vote on any matter that is submitted to a vote or for the consent of the members of the Company (except for on matters required by law) by irrevocable proxy.

The Company does not have any shareholder/equity holder agreements in place.

The Securities do not have anti-dilution rights.

Restrictions on Transfer

Any Securities sold pursuant to Regulation CF being offered may not be transferred by any Purchaser of such Securities during the one-year holding period beginning when the Securities were issued, unless such Securities are transferred: i) to the Company, ii) to an accredited investor, as defined by Rule 501(d) of Regulation D promulgated under the Securities Act, iii) as part of an IPO or iv) to a member of the family of the Investor or the equivalent, to a trust controlled by the Purchaser, to a trust created for the benefit of a member of the family of the Investor or the equivalent, or in connection with the death or divorce of the Investor or other similar circumstances. "Member of the family" as used herein means a child, stepchild, grandchild, parent, stepparent, grandparent, spouse or spousal equivalent, sibling, mother / father / daughter / son / sister / brother-in-law and includes adoptive relationships. Remember that although you may legally be able to transfer the Securities, you may not be able to find another party willing to purchase them.

In addition to the foregoing restrictions, prior to making any transfer of the Securities or any Securities into which they are convertible, such transferring Purchaser must either make such transfer pursuant to an effective registration statement filed with the SEC or provide the Company with an opinion of counsel stating that a registration statement is not necessary to effect such transfer.

Additional Transfer Restrictions

The Purchaser may not transfer the Securities or any Securities into which they are convertible to any of the Company's competitors, as determined by the Company in good faith.

IPO Lock Up

Upon the event of an IPO, the capital stock into which the Securities are converted will be subject to a lock-up period and may not be sold for up to 180 days following such IPO.

Other Material Terms

The Company does not have the right to repurchase the Securities.

EACH PROSPECTIVE INVESTOR SHOULD CONSULT WITH HIS OR HER OWN TAX AND ERISA ADVISOR AS TO THE PARTICULAR CONSEQUENCES TO THE INVESTOR OF THE PURCHASE, OWNERSHIP AND SALE OF THE INVESTOR'S SECURITIES, AS WELL AS POSSIBLE CHANGES IN THE TAX LAWS.

MindWise, Inc
Notes to the Unaudited Financial Statements
December 31st, 2021
$USD

NOTE 1 – ORGANIZATION AND NATURE OF ACTIVITIES

MindWise is a Delaware company formed in July 2019. Through advanced Dark Web surveillance, MindWise provides cybersecurity and fraud prevention solutions to enterprise clients. The company headquarters is listed in Walnut Creek, California, but is primarily a remote work-enabled company with its team located in several locations.

The company is conducting a Reg CF crowdfunding campaign that started on March 1st, 2022.

NOTE 2 – SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Basis of Presentation

Our financial statements are prepared in accordance with U.S. generally accepted accounting principles (“GAAP”). Our fiscal year ends on December 31. The Company has no interest in variable interest entities and no predecessor entities.

Use of Estimates and Assumptions

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the reporting period. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

Cash and Cash Equivalents

Cash and cash equivalents include all cash balances, and highly liquid investments with maturities of three months or less when purchased.

Fair Value of Financial Instruments

ASC 820 “Fair Value Measurements and Disclosures” establishes a three-tier fair value hierarchy, which prioritizes the inputs in measuring fair value. The hierarchy prioritizes the inputs into three levels based on the extent to which inputs used in measuring fair value are observable in the market.

These tiers include:

Level 1: defined as observable inputs such as quoted prices in active markets;

Level 2: defined as inputs other than quoted prices in active markets that are either directly or indirectly observable; and

Level 3: defined as unobservable inputs in which little or no market data exists, therefore requiring an entity to develop its own assumptions.

Concentrations of Credit Risks

The Company’s financial instruments that are exposed to concentrations of credit risk primarily consist of its cash and cash equivalents. The Company places its cash and cash equivalents with financial institutions of high credit worthiness. The Company’s management plans to assess the financial strength and credit worthiness of any parties to which it extends funds, and as such, it believes that any associated credit risk exposures are limited.

Revenue Recognition

The Company recognizes revenue from the sale of products and services in accordance with ASC 606, "Revenue Recognition" following the five steps procedure:

- Step 1: Identify the contract(s) with customers
- Step 2: Identify the performance obligations in the contract
- Step 3: Determine the transaction price
- Step 4: Allocate the transaction price to performance obligations
- Step 5: Recognize Revenue When or As Performance Obligations Are Satisfied

The Company will identify and analyze its performance obligations with respect to customer contracts once the first contract is signed.

Advertising Costs

Advertising costs associated with marketing the Company's products and services are generally expensed as costs are incurred.

General and Administrative

General and administrative expenses consist of payroll and related expenses for employees and independent contractors involved in general corporate functions, including accounting, finance, tax, legal, business development, and other miscellaneous expenses.

Equity based compensation

The Company has reserved 2,000,000 Common Stock for issuance through its 2019 Equity Incentive Plan as spelled out in the Initial Board Consent.

The Company accounts for stock options issued to employees under ASC 718 (Stock Compensation). Under ASC 718, share-based compensation cost to employees is measured at the grant date, based on the estimated fair value of the award, and is recognized as an item of expense ratably over the employee's requisite vesting period. The Company has elected early adoption of ASU 2018-07, which permits measurement of stock options at their intrinsic value, instead of their fair value. An option's intrinsic value is defined as the amount by which the fair value of the underlying stock exceeds the exercise price of an option. In certain cases, this means that option compensation granted by the Company may have an intrinsic value of $0.

The Company measures compensation expense for its non-employee stock-based compensation under ASC 505 (Equity). The fair value of the option issued or committed to be issued is used to measure the transaction, as this is more reliable than the fair value of the services received. The fair value is measured at the value of the Company's common stock on the date that the commitment for performance by the counterparty has been reached or the counterparty's performance is complete. The fair value of the equity instrument is charged directly to expense and credited to additional paid-in capital.

There is not a viable market for the Company's common stock to determine its fair value, therefore management is required to estimate the fair value to be utilized in the determining stock-based compensation costs. In estimating the fair value, management considers recent sales of its common stock to independent qualified investors, placement agents' assessments of the underlying common shares relating to our sale of preferred stock and validation by independent fair value experts. Considerable management judgment is necessary to estimate the fair value. Accordingly, actual results could vary significantly from management's estimates. Management has concluded that the estimated fair value of the Company's stock and corresponding expense is negligible.

Warrants - The Company accounts for stock warrants as either equity instruments, derivative liabilities, or liabilities in accordance with ASC 480, Distinguishing Liabilities from Equity (ASC 480), depending on the specific terms of the warrant agreement. The Warrants do not have cash settlement provisions or down round protection; therefore, the Company classifies them as equity. Management considers the equity-based compensation expense for 2021 to be negligible.

In April 2021, the Company entered into a warrant agreement with an investor providing them the right to purchase securities in a Qualified Financing, defined as an equity financing including any convertible debt, convertible preferred stock, or other equity-linked securities, based on the following conditions:

(a) In the case of a priced equity Qualified Financing, the valuation shall be the greater of either (i) a twenty percent (20%) Discount Price of the price per share or (ii) one and a half times (1.5X) the highest discount offered to investors in respective Qualified Financing; or (b) in case of convertible security Qualified Financing at the greater of either (i) a twenty percent (20%) discount or (ii) one and a half times (1.5X) the highest discount offered to investors in respective Qualified Financing.

Income Taxes

The Company is subject to Corporate income and state income taxes in the state it does business. A deferred tax asset as a result of net operating losses (NOL) has not been recognized due to the uncertainty of future positive taxable income to utilize the NOL.

Recent accounting pronouncements

The FASB issues ASUs to amend the authoritative literature in ASC. There have been a number of ASUs to date that amend the original text of ASC. Management believes that those issued to date either (i) provide supplemental guidance, (ii) are technical corrections, (iii) are not applicable to us or (iv) are not expected to have a significant impact on our financial statements.

NOTE 3 – RELATED PARTY TRANSACTIONS

The Company follows ASC 850, “Related Party Disclosures,” for the identification of related parties and disclosure of related party transactions. No transactions require disclosure.

NOTE 4 – COMMITMENTS, CONTINGENCIES, COMPLIANCE WITH LAWS AND REGULATIONS

We are currently not involved with or know of any pending or threatening litigation against the Company or any of its officers. Further, the Company is currently complying with all relevant laws and regulations. The Company does not have any long-term commitments or guarantees.

NOTE 5 – DEBT

Convertible Notes - The Company has entered into a convertible note agreement, totaling $25,000 for the purposes of funding operations. The interest on the note is 5%. The amount is to be repaid at the demand of the holder prior to conversion with a maturity in March 2023. The notes are convertible into shares of the Company’s Preferred Stock at the lesser of (i) 75% of the price per share paid by the other purchasers of the Preferred Stock sold in the Qualified Financing or (ii) an amount obtained by dividing $5,000,000 (the “Valuation Cap”) by the Fully Diluted Capitalization of the Company, during a change of control or qualified financing event.

NOTE 6 – EQUITY

Dividends may be paid in cash, in property, or in shares of the Company's capital stock, subject to the provisions of the certificate of incorporation

NOTE 7 – SUBSEQUENT EVENTS

The Company has evaluated events subsequent to December 31, 2021 to assess the need for potential recognition or disclosure in this report. Such events were evaluated through September 1, 2022, the date these financial statements were available to be issued.

The Company issued stock options to an advisor/ contractor in March 2022. 100,000 options will be vested over 3 years with a price of $0.01 per share. Additionally, performance incentive goals have been set to award a maximum of 400,000 additional shares at $0.01 per share.

NOTE 8 – GOING CONCERN

The accompanying balance sheet has been prepared on a going concern basis, which contemplates the realization of assets and the satisfaction of liabilities in the normal course of business. The entity has not commenced principal operations and will likely realize losses prior to generating positive working capital for an unknown period of time. During the next twelve months, the Company intends to finance its operations with funds from a crowdfunding campaign. The Company's ability to continue as a going concern in the next twelve months following the date the financial statements were available to be issued is dependent upon its ability to produce revenues and/or obtain financing sufficient to meet current and future obligations and deploy such to produce profitable operating results. Management has evaluated these conditions and plans to generate revenues and raise capital as needed to satisfy its capital needs. No assurance can be given that the Company will be successful in these efforts. These factors, among others, raise substantial doubt about the ability of the Company to continue as a going concern for a reasonable period of time. The financial statements do not include any adjustments relating to the recoverability and classification of recorded asset amounts or the amounts and classification of liabilities.

NOTE 9 – RISKS AND UNCERTAINTIES

COVID-19

The spread of COVID-19 has severely impacted many local economies around the globe. In many countries, businesses are being forced to cease or limit operations for long or indefinite periods of time. Measures taken to contain the spread of the virus, including travel bans, quarantines, social distancing, and closures of non-essential services have triggered significant disruptions to businesses worldwide, resulting in an economic slowdown. Global stock markets have also experienced great volatility and a significant weakening. Governments and central banks have responded with monetary and fiscal interventions to stabilize economic conditions. The duration and impact of the COVID-19 pandemic, as well as the effectiveness of government and central bank responses remains unclear currently. It is not possible to reliably estimate the duration and severity of these consequences, as well as their impact on the financial position and results of the Company for future periods.

INDEPENDENT ACCOUNTANT'S REVIEW REPORT

October 5, 2021

To: Board of Directors, MINDWISE, INC.

Re: 2020-2019 Financial Statement Review

We have reviewed the accompanying financial statements of MINDWISE, INC. (the "Company"), which comprise the balance sheets as of December 31, 2020 and 2019, and the related statements of operations, changes in shareholders' equity/deficit and cash flows for the calendar year period ending 2020 and the inception period from July 15, 2019 through December 31, 2019, and the related notes to the financial statements.

A review includes primarily applying analytical procedures to management's financial data and making inquiries of company management. A review is substantially limited in scope compared to an audit, the objective of which is the expression of an opinion regarding the financial statements as a whole. Accordingly, we do not express such an opinion.

Management's Responsibility for the Financial Statements

Management is responsible for the preparation and fair presentation of these financial statements in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America; this includes the design, implementation, and maintenance of internal control relevant to the preparation and fair presentation of financial statements that are free from material misstatement whether due to fraud or error.

Accountant's Responsibility

Our responsibility is to conduct the review engagement in accordance with Statements on Standards for Accounting and Review Services promulgated by the Accounting and Review Services Committee of the AICPA. Those standards require us to perform procedures to obtain limited assurance as a basis for reporting whether we are aware of any material modifications that should be made to the financial statements for them to be in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America. We believe that the results of our procedures provide a reasonable basis for our conclusion.

Accountant's Conclusion

Based on our review, we are not aware of any material modifications that should be made to the accompanying financial statements in order for them to be in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America.

Going Concern

As discussed in the Notes and Additional Disclosures, certain conditions indicate there is substantial doubt as to whether the Company may continue as a going concern. The accompanying financial statements do not include any adjustments which might be necessary should the Company be unable to continue as a going concern. Our conclusion is not modified with respect to that matter.

Sincerely,

NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

AS OF DECEMBER 31, 2020 and 2019
(UNAUDITED)

NOTE 1 – NATURE OF OPERATIONS

MINDWISE, INC. (which may be referred to as the “Company”, “we,” “us,” or “our”) is a corporation formed under the laws of Delaware on July 15, 2019. The Company provides a real-time, comprehensive, event-driven fraud prevention platform aimed at banks, merchant gateways, payment processors, and other financial institutions.

Since inception, the Company has relied on issuing securities to founders to fund its operations. As of December 31, 2020, the Company had negative shareholders' capital and will likely incur additional losses prior to generating positive working capital. These matters raise substantial doubt about the Company's ability to continue as a going concern (see Note 3). The Company intends to fund its operations with funding from the crowdfunding campaign (see Note 9) and the receipt of funds from continuing revenue producing activities. These financial statements and related notes thereto do not include any adjustments that might result from these uncertainties.

NOTE 2 – SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Basis of Presentation

The accounting and reporting policies of the Company conform to accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America (“US GAAP”). The accompanying unaudited financial statements do not include all the information and notes required by GAAP for complete financial statements. In the opinion of management, all adjustments considered necessary for the fair presentation of the unaudited financial statements for the years presented have been included.

Use of Estimates

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States requires management to make certain estimates and assumptions that affect the amounts reported in the financial statements and footnotes thereto. Actual results could materially differ from these estimates. It is reasonably possible that changes in estimates will occur in the near term.

Significant estimates inherent in the preparation of the accompanying financial statements include valuation of provision for refunds and chargebacks, equity transactions and contingencies.

Risks and Uncertainties

The Company's business and operations are sensitive to general business and economic conditions in the United States and other countries that the Company operates in. A host of factors beyond the Company's control could cause fluctuations in these conditions. Adverse conditions may include recession, downturn or otherwise, local competition or changes in consumer taste. These adverse conditions could affect the Company's financial condition and the results of its operations.

Concentration of Credit Risk

The Company maintains its cash with a major financial institution located in the United States of America, which it believes to be credit worthy. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation insures balances up to $250,000. At times, the Company may maintain balances in excess of the federally insured limits.

Cash and Cash Equivalents

The Company considers short-term, highly liquid investment with original maturities of three months or less at the time of purchase to be cash equivalents. Cash consists of funds held in the Company's checking account. As of December 31, 2020 and 2019, the Company had $1,230 and $1,385 of cash on hand, respectively.

Fixed Assets

Property and equipment is recorded at cost. Expenditures for renewals and improvements that significantly add to the productive capacity or extend the useful life of an asset are capitalized. Expenditures for maintenance and repairs are charged to expense. When equipment is retired or sold, the cost and related accumulated depreciation are eliminated from the accounts and the resultant gain or loss is reflected in income.

Depreciation is provided using the straight-line method, based on useful lives of the assets which range from three to fifteen years.

The Company reviews the carrying value of property and equipment for impairment whenever events and circumstances indicate that the carrying value of an asset may not be recoverable from the estimated future cash flows expected to result from its use and eventual disposition. In cases where undiscounted expected future cash flows are less than the carrying value, an impairment loss is recognized equal to an amount by which the carrying value exceeds the fair value of assets. The factors considered by management in performing this assessment include current operating results, trends and prospects, the manner in which the property is used, and the effects of obsolescence, demand, competition, and other economic factors. As of December 31, 2020 and 2019, the Company had $0 and $0 of net fixed assets, respectively.

Fair Value Measurements

Generally accepted accounting principles define fair value as the price that would be received to sell an asset or be paid to transfer a liability in an orderly transaction between market participants at the measurement date (exit price) and such principles also establish a fair value hierarchy that prioritizes the inputs used to measure fair value using the following definitions (from highest to lowest priority):

- Level 1 – Unadjusted quoted prices in active markets that are accessible at the measurement date for identical, unrestricted assets or liabilities.
- Level 2 – Observable inputs other than quoted prices included within Level 1 that are observable for the asset or liability, either directly or indirectly, including quoted prices for similar assets and liabilities in active markets; quoted prices for identical or similar assets and liabilities in markets that are not active; or other inputs that are observable or can be corroborated by observable market data by correlation or other means.

- Level 3 – Prices or valuation techniques requiring inputs that are both significant to the fair value measurement and unobservable.

Income Taxes

Income taxes are provided for the tax effects of transactions reporting in the financial statements and consist of taxes currently due plus deferred taxes related primarily to differences between the basis of receivables, inventory, property and equipment, intangible assets, and accrued expenses for financial and income tax reporting. The deferred tax assets and liabilities represent the future tax return consequences of those differences, which will either be taxable or deductible when the assets and liabilities are recovered or settled. Deferred tax assets are reduced by a valuation allowance when, in the opinion of management, it is more likely than not that some portion or all of the deferred tax assets will not be realized. Any deferred tax items of the Company have been fully valued based on the determination of the Company that the utilization of any deferred tax assets is uncertain.

The Company complies with FASB ASC 740 for accounting for uncertainty in income taxes recognized in a company's financial statements, which prescribes a recognition threshold and measurement process for financial statement recognition and measurement of a tax position taken or expected to be taken in a tax return. For those benefits to be recognized, a tax position must be more-likely-than-not to be sustained upon examination by taxing authorities. FASB ASC 740 also provides guidance on derecognition, classification, interest and penalties, accounting in interim periods, disclosure and transition. Based on the Company's evaluation, it has been concluded that there are no significant uncertain tax positions requiring recognition in the Company's financial statements. The Company believes that its income tax positions would be sustained on audit and does not anticipate any adjustments that would result in a material change to its financial position.

Revenue Recognition

The Company recognizes revenue in accordance with ASC 606 when it has satisfied the performance obligations under an arrangement with the customer reflecting the terms and conditions under which products or services will be provided, the fee is fixed or determinable, and collection of any related receivable is probable. ASC Topic 606, "Revenue from Contracts with Customers" establishes principles for reporting information about the nature, amount, timing and uncertainty of revenue and cash flows arising from the entity's contracts to provide goods or services to customers. Revenues are recognized when control of the promised goods or services are transferred to a customer, in an amount that reflects the consideration that the Company expects to receive in exchange for those goods or services. The Company applies the following five steps in order to determine the appropriate amount of revenue to be recognized as it fulfills its obligations under each of its agreements: 1) identify the contract with a customer; 2) identify the performance obligations in the contract; 3) determine the transaction price; 4) allocate the transaction price to performance obligations in the contract; and 5) recognize revenue as the performance obligation is satisfied.

The Company has not yet earned any revenue.

Accounts Receivable

The allowance for uncollectible accounts is evaluated on a regular basis by management and is based upon management's periodic review of the collectability of the receivables in light of historical experience, the nature and type of account, adverse situations that may affect the payor's ability to repay and prevailing economic conditions. This evaluation is inherently subjective, as it requires estimates that are susceptible to significant revision as more information becomes available. Accounts are deemed to be past due upon invoice due date.

Receivables deemed uncollectible are charged off against the allowance when management believes the assessment of the above factors will likely result in the inability to collect the past due accounts. The Company's standard terms and conditions with commercial accounts generally requires payment within 30 days of the invoice date, however, timing of payment of specific customers may be separately negotiated.

Advertising

The Company expenses advertising costs as they are incurred.

Recent Accounting Pronouncements

In June 2019, FASB amended ASU No. 2019-07, Compensation – Stock Compensation, to expand the scope of Topic 718, Compensation – Stock Compensation, to include share-based payment transactions for acquiring goods and services from nonemployees. The new standard for nonpublic entities will be effective for fiscal years beginning after December 15, 2019, and interim periods within fiscal years beginning after December 15, 2020, and early application is permitted. We are currently evaluating the effect that the updated standard will have on the financial statements and related disclosures.

In August 2019, amendments to existing accounting guidance were issued through Accounting Standards Update 2019-15 to clarify the accounting for implementation costs for cloud computing arrangements. The amendments specify that existing guidance for capitalizing implementation costs incurred to develop or obtain internal-use software also applies to implementation costs incurred in a hosting arrangement that is a service contract. The guidance is effective for fiscal years beginning after December 15, 2020, and interim periods within fiscal years beginning after December 15, 2021, and early application is permitted. We are currently evaluating the effect that the updated standard will have on the financial statements and related disclosures.

The FASB issues ASUs to amend the authoritative literature in ASC. There have been a number of ASUs to date, including those above, that amend the original text of ASC. Management believes that those issued to date either (i) provide supplemental guidance, (ii) are technical corrections, (iii) are not applicable to us or (iv) are not expected to have a significant impact on our financial statements.

NOTE 3 – GOING CONCERN

These financial statements are prepared on a going concern basis. The Company began operation in 2019 and has incurred a cumulative loss since inception. The Company's ability to continue is dependent upon management's plan to raise additional funds and achieve profitable operations. The financial statements do not include any adjustments that might be necessary if the Company is not able to continue as a going concern.

NOTE 4 – DEBT

The Company's does not have any outstanding debt obligations.

NOTE 5 – INCOME TAX PROVISION

The Company has filed or will timely file its corporate income tax return for the period ended December 31, 2020 and 2019. The income tax returns will remain subject to examination by the Internal Revenue Service under the statute of limitations for a period of three years from the date it is filed. The Company incurred a loss during the period from inception through December 31, 2020 and carries a federal net operating loss that can be used to offset future corporate taxable income (to extent allowed by law).

NOTE 6 – COMMITMENTS AND CONTINGENCIES

Litigation

The Company, from time to time, may be involved with lawsuits arising in the ordinary course of business. In the opinion of the Company's management, any liability resulting from such litigation would not be material in relation to the Company's consolidated financial position, results of operations and cash flows. The Company is not currently aware of any actual or threatened litigation.

NOTE 7 – EQUITY

The Company has a single class of equity. The two founders of the Company were each issued 4,000,000 shares of common stock which is subject to a vesting schedule. As of December 31, 2020, each founder has vested 2,562,500 of their 4,000,000 share issuance. Additionally, the Company has issued an additional 600,000 common shares to advisors for services rendered but none of those additional shares have vested yet. Furthermore, the Company has reserved an additional 2,000,000 shares for options set aside for in an incentive plan but none of these options have been issued.

NOTE 8 – RELATED PARTY TRANSACTIONS

The Company is not aware of any related-party transactions outside the normal scope of business that would have a material impact on these financial statements.

NOTE 9 – SUBSEQUENT EVENTS

Crowdfunded Offering

In 2021, the Company intends to offer securities in a securities offering expected to be exempt from registration under Regulation CF. The offering campaign will be made through MicroVentures, a FINRA approved Regulation CF funding portal.

Convertible Note Issuance

In 2021, the Company has issued a convertible note for $25,000. The note and any accrued and unpaid interest converts to equity upon certain corporate events at a $5,000,000 valuation cap or a 25 percent discount.

Participation in Accelerator

The Company has entered an accelerator program with Newchip LLC (“Accelerator”) for a net program fee of $3,999, which consists of a $16,000 scholarship deduction from the gross program fee of $19,999. The Accelerator has received investment and follow-on investment rights to invest up to $250,000 in securities issued in the event of any equity or equity-linked financing event from which the Company receives gross proceeds of at least $100,000.

COVID-19 Related Actions

On March 10, 2020, the World Health Organization declared the coronavirus outbreak (“COVID19”) to be a pandemic. The outbreak is negatively impacting businesses across a range of industries. The extent of the impact of COVID-19 on the Company’s operational and financial performance will depend on certain developments, including the duration and spread of the outbreak, impact on the Company’s customers, employees and vendors, all of which are uncertain and cannot be predicted. Therefore, the extent to which COVID-19 may impact the Company’s financial condition or results of operations in the future is uncertain.

Management’s Evaluation

Management has evaluated subsequent events through October 5, 2021, the date the financial statements were available to be issued. Based on this evaluation, no additional material events were identified which require adjustment or disclosure in the financial statements.

Company: MindWise

Market: Fraud detection and prevention

Product: Fraud prevention engine that is engineered to detect sensitive information for sale on the deep web

Company Highlights

- Scanned over 4 million credit cards on the dark web
- Entered into a profit-sharing agreement with its current partner LoanClose, who will introduce MindWise to its banking partners as its fraud prevention provider
- Previously confirmed the existence of stolen credit card information being sold on the dark web, which originated from a Jason's Deli data breachⁱ
- Creating a modular analytics engine to scan the deep web for sensitive banking and non-banking data

WHY IT'S INTERESTING

Have you had ever had your identity stolen, or know someone who has? In the U.S. alone, there were 1.4 million cases of identity theft in 2020, which increased 53% from 2019.ⁱⁱ Fraud continues to persist as cyber criminals are becoming increasingly sophisticated in obtaining your personal or financial information.ⁱⁱⁱ Once obtained, these criminals can either use the information themselves or sell it on the “black market” through the dark web.^{iv} MindWise has created a fraud prevention platform that monitors the dark web to identify stolen information. If information is identified on the dark web, MindWise alerts its partnering institution of a breach with the goal of stopping fraud before it occurs.

MindWise has already proven the efficacy of its minimal viable product, which is initially focused on credit card fraud detection and prevention. In 2017, the Joker's Stash illicit card market released about 7 million compromised cards. By compiling data on batches of these cards, Mindwise was able to confirm the existence of one of the breaches from which Joker's Stash had sourced credit card information and hone in on its source— Jason's Deli.^v Today, MindWise is bringing this technology to financial institutions and individuals. Its first customer is LoanClose, who has signed an agreement to use its card fraud prevention services. MindWise is currently raising capital to expand its solutions and build out a Modular Analytics Engine (MAE), which it is designing as a robust platform for fraud detection and prevention.

EXECUTIVE SNAPSHOT

MindWise is a threat detection software solution that uses proprietary technology to monitor the deep web for sensitive, personal information for banking and non-banking institutions. MindWise's platform currently supports a credit card detection scanning system that specifically seeks to alert institutions of sensitive information that may be up for sale on the deep web. The company anticipates developing additional products to its platform that serve specific use cases for financial institutions (account takeover prevention and payment processor protection) and individuals (personal information monitoring). MindWise is currently seeking up to $250,000 to execute on its goals of further client acquisition and additional product development.

COMPANY SUMMARY

Opportunity

In 2020, it's estimated that $11 billion of losses were attributed to credit card fraud in the U.S. alone.^{vi} With the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic and its residual effects on digitization, the negative economic effects of credit card fraud may not go away. According to MarketsAndMarkets, more than 60-70% of the global population are now using at least one digital platform, including digital banking products like bank apps and digital money wallets.^{vii} The costs for breached financial accounts are usually borne by the banking institution.^{viii} As consumers "digitize" their lives, cyber threats related to credit cards play an ever-increasing role in our day-to-day lives.

Beyond credit card information, other personal identifiable information (PII), and credentials to financial accounts all have a market on the deep web, or the "internet for fraudsters". For example, on average, a forged Minnesota driver's license has a sticker price of $20, utility bill templates are more than $39, email credentials are priced at around $10, and hacked crypto accounts go for between $310 and $810.^{ix} What if this information, along with financial information kept by financing institutions, could be found before a sale occurs?

MindWise is aiming to provide an extra level of security for banking and non-banking institutions with its modular analytics engine, first starting with its Card Fraud Prevention solution. This solution scans the deep web for information, such as bank identification numbers ("BINs"), and alerts institutions if their BINs appear on deep web marketplaces. This information can then be utilized by the institution as well as the customer, with the goal of stopping fraud before a criminal attempts transactions with the information. Looking forward, the company anticipates developing add-on solutions for financial institutions and expanding its platform into consumer-facing solutions relating to identity protection.

Product

MindWise's initial product, the card fraud prevention solution, is built on the MindWise platform, called the Modular Analytics Engine (MAE). MindWise expects the MAE to support additional products for both enterprises and consumers following continued product development.

Card Fraud Prevention

MindWise's Card Fraud Prevention solution was built to catch card fraud before it happens. It does this by scanning the deep web, which is home to sensitive information, like credit card data, that is bought and sold by both hackers and thieves looking to capitalize on this stolen information.

Fraud that originates from the black market typically follows this timeline:

- Step 1: The card information is acquired through some form of cybersecurity breach
- Step 2: The card information is either sold to a "wholesaler" on the deep web or directly put up for sale by the cybercriminal on a deep web marketplace
- Step 3: A criminal purchases the information for use—a physical card can be delivered to the criminal, or the information can be delivered electronically
- Step 4: A criminal makes a purchase with the card or card information

MindWise's card fraud solution is engineered to stop card fraud between steps Two and Three. MindWise has built an automated process to gain reliable access to dark web marketplaces and scour them in real time for partial card data. By cross referencing other marketplaces and databases, we are able to build a more complete profile of the compromised individual. With this profile we can then identify and alert the bank that issued the now compromised card. Now, the bank has an opportunity to mitigate the compromised card before the fraud is even attempted, protecting both its customers and itself from potential financial loss.

Modular Analytics Engine

MindWise's MAE is a modular, cloud-based platform that is being designed as a one-size-fits-many security protection solution for enterprise and individual customers. For enterprises, integration is as easy as connecting BINs through an API. The MAE is backed by a trade secret that essentially scans the dark web for customer BINs.

- Intermediary Fees: Fees paid to the intermediary for this offering
- Salary: Salary payments for current staff and additional hires such as industry experienced sales and technology specialists

Product Roadmap

MindWise designed its platform to support additional products in which customers could receive comprehensive security across a variety of products and use cases. Some of the planned products in development include:

Loan Fraud/Synthetic Fraud

As one of the fastest growing types of fraud in the U.S. in 2019,^x synthetic fraud results from fraudsters using real and fake information. The Loan Fraud/Synthetic Fraud product will be positioned for banking institutions to protect its customers' personal data and its potential customers from applying with fraudulent information.

Payment Processor Protection

MindWise expects this product to take the most resources to develop, yet potentially open up an attractive market opportunity. Payment processor protection attempts to monitor compromised cards and build a scoring matrix to stop transactions that are likely using fraudulent cards.

Breach Monitoring

Breach monitoring security can be used by businesses to protect their cloud-hosted or on-premise hosted sensitive data. According to the company, this product can use a similar UI and logical coding functions as its other products.

Account Takeover

This security protection attempts to protect banking and non-banking customers' username and password credentials. According to MindWise, the protection code on the backend is ready to be rolled out, however, it needs funds to develop the UI and a necessary monitoring component.

Consumer Information Monitoring

Consumer-facing product that will use the same screening technology already in place, but with a simple-to-use UI and support for high account volumes.

MICROVENTURES

Business Model

MindWise expects to launch a pay-as-you-go pilot program for its card protection product that charges institutions per compromised card ($100/card). This pilot program is priced at a substantial discount to its future pay-as-you-go pricing model, which will charge institutions $400 per confirmed compromised card. Additionally, the company anticipates rolling out a subscription-based model, which will charge financial institutions $2.50 per issued card per month.

The company expects to employ a subscription-based model for the products on its roadmap and believes it has considerable flexibility in the pricing structure.

USER TRACTION

As a bootstrapped startup, MindWise has focused its efforts on developing the technology behind its protection monitoring technology to prove its efficacy in scanning black market databases. To date, the company has scanned over 4 million cards.

Additionally, the company has entered a Pilot Program Partnership with LoanClose to provide loan application fraud screening and data breach monitoring. MindWise and LoanClose are also engaged in a profit-sharing agreement in which LoanClose will introduce MindWise to its banking partners as its fraud prevention provider in return for a finder's fee.

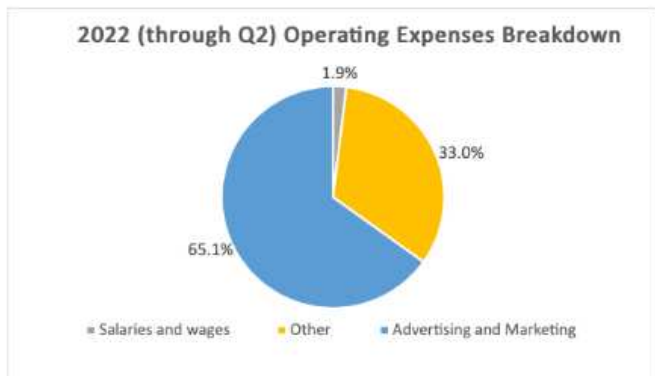

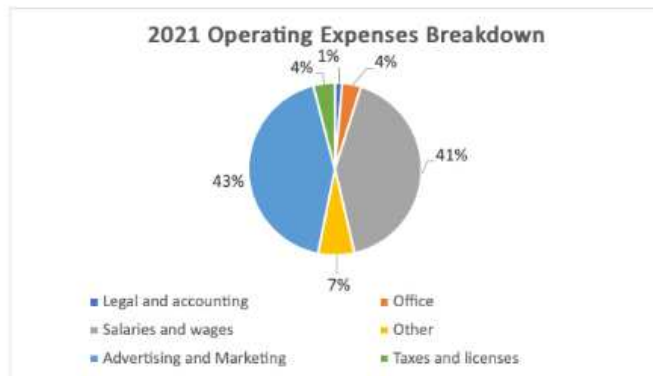

HISTORICAL FINANCIALS

MindWise is currently pre-revenue and aims to further develop its product roadmap and launch business development initiatives from the proceeds of this raise. The company has been bootstrapped since inception in 2019, and therefore, has incurred only $70,277 of operating expenses (from inception through Q2 2022). In 2021, a majority of expenses were attributed to salaries and advertising costs. In 2022, the company has decreased its operating costs. Of the $5,377 the company incurred in the first half of 2022, about two thirds were attributed to advertising and marketing costs. A detailed breakdown of its operating expenses for 2021 and 2022 (through Q2) are as follows:

MICROVENTURES

In the first half off 2022, the company averaged a monthly cash burn of nearly $900. The company is committed to infusing cash as needed throughout the duration of this offering.

INDUSTRY AND MARKET ANALYSIS

Cybersecurity

According to Grandview Research, the global cyber security market was valued at $167.13 billion in 2020 and is expected to grow at a compounded annual growth rate (CAGR) of 10.9% from 2021 to 2028. The research firm also notes that while disruptive and emerging technologies in various sectors have offered new capabilities, facilitated automation, and enabled increasing ease of work, these technologies have also emerged as a potent factor in the development of the global threat landscape of exploits, vulnerabilities, and malware. Because of this ever-evolving threat landscape, the research firm notes that cybersecurity has become vital to organizations due to rapidly increasing frauds, cybercrimes, risk, threats, and vulnerabilities.^{xi}

In light of COVID-19, the cybersecurity industry, like many other industries, has been forced to adapt to changing environments. In 2020, cybercrimes were up 600% due to the COVID-19 pandemic.^{xii} In its State of Cybersecurity 2020 report, CompTIA notes that the COVID-19 pandemic introduced new elements to the security equation. Among these, CompTIA cites remote work exposing vulnerabilities in workforce knowledge and connectivity and phishing emails that prey on new health concerns rather than previous financial tactics.^{xiii}

Fraud Detection and Protection

The COVID-19 pandemic has also impacted the global fraud detection and protection (FDP) market, one serviceable addressable market for cybersecurity solutions. According to MarketsAndMarkets, the global FDP is expected to grow from $20.9 billion in 2020 to $38.2 billion by 2025, representing a 12.8% CAGR over that time period. Partly accelerated by the COVID-19 pandemic, the research firm reports that 60-70% of people are now using one or many digital platforms, including the use of digital banking platforms and mobile, or digital, wallets.^{xiv}

As consumers are increasingly using digital products, specifically for banking, sensitive material on the black market is growing. For example, cybersecurity firm Sixgill reported that over 76 million compromised cards were offered for sale on the black market in the second half of 2019, which represents over triple the amount found on the black market in the first half of that year.^{xv} The global costs for card fraud is equally staggering—A report by research firm Nilson reported total card fraud losses globally reached $28.65 billion in 2019. Another report by Aite Group cited the U.S. alone has seen approximately $11 billion of losses related to credit card fraud in 2020.^{xvi}

Cybercriminals, including fraudsters that buy illicitly obtained information, typically do so on the deep web, which acts as an “eBay” for a host of products, including the financial information of unsuspecting individuals. These marketplaces on the deep web are surprisingly well-established, where the price of information, for example, is influenced by a host of factors including the “fullness” of the information and its recency.^{xvii} For example, the average price of stolen credit card information on the deep web is about $17.36, or less than a penny per dollar of credit limit. A physical copy of a stolen credit card is comparatively more expensive, costing on average $171, or about five cents per dollar of credit limit. Additionally, login credentials for PayPal accounts would set you back close to $200, on average, which can be a substantial discount to the accessible account balance.^{xviii}

The undersigned acknowledges that neither the Company, MicroVenture Marketplace Inc. nor any of their respective affiliates have made any representation regarding the proper characterization of the Securities for purposes of determining the undersigned's authority or suitability to invest in the Securities.
- iv. The undersigned is familiar with the business and financial condition and operations of the Company, all as generally described in the Form C/A. The undersigned has had access to such information concerning the Company and the Securities as it deems necessary to enable it to make an informed investment decision concerning the purchase of the Securities.

- v. The undersigned understands that, unless the undersigned notifies the Company in writing to the contrary at or before the Closing, each of the undersigned's representations and warranties contained in this Subscription Agreement will be deemed to have been reaffirmed and confirmed as of the Closing, taking into account all information received by the undersigned.
- vi. The undersigned acknowledges that the Company has the right in its sole and absolute discretion to abandon this Offering at any time prior to the completion of the Offering. This Subscription Agreement shall thereafter have no force or effect and the Company shall return any previously paid subscription price of the Securities, without interest thereon, to the undersigned.
- vii. The undersigned understands that no federal or state agency has passed upon the merits or risks of an investment in the Securities or made any finding or determination concerning the fairness or advisability of this investment.

c) No Guaranty.

The undersigned confirms that the Company has not (i) given any guarantee or representation as to the potential success, return, effect or benefit (either legal, regulatory, tax, financial, accounting or otherwise) of an investment in the Securities or (ii) made any representation to the undersigned regarding the legality of an investment in the Securities under applicable legal investment or similar laws or regulations. In deciding to purchase the Securities, the undersigned is not relying on the advice or recommendations of the Company and the undersigned has made its own independent decision that the investment in the Securities is suitable and appropriate for the undersigned.

d) Status of the Undersigned.

The undersigned has such knowledge, skill and experience in business, financial and investment matters that the undersigned is capable of evaluating the merits and risks of an investment in the Securities. With the assistance of the undersigned's own professional advisors, to the extent that the undersigned has deemed appropriate, the undersigned has made its own legal, tax, accounting and financial evaluation of the merits and risks of an investment in the Securities and the consequences of this Subscription Agreement. The undersigned has considered the suitability of the Securities as an investment in light of its own circumstances and financial condition and the undersigned is able to bear the risks associated with an investment in the Securities and its authority to invest in the Securities.

e) Restrictions on Transfer or Sale of Securities.

- i. The undersigned is acquiring the Securities solely for the undersigned's own beneficial account, for investment purposes, and not with a view to, or for resale in connection with, any distribution of the Securities. The undersigned understands that the Securities have not been registered under the Securities Act or any State Securities Laws by reason of specific exemptions under the provisions thereof which depend in part upon the investment intent of the undersigned and of the other representations made by the undersigned in this Subscription Agreement. The undersigned understands that the Company is relying upon the representations and agreements contained in this Subscription Agreement (and any supplemental information) for the purpose of determining whether this transaction meets the requirements for such exemptions.

- ii. The undersigned understands that the Securities are restricted from transfer for a period of time under applicable federal securities laws and that the Securities Act and the rules of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (the "Commission") provide in substance that the undersigned may dispose of the Securities only pursuant to an effective registration statement under the Securities Act, an exemption therefrom or as further described in Rule 501 of Regulation CF, after which certain state restrictions may apply. The undersigned understands that the Company has no obligation or intention to register any of the Securities, or to take action so as to permit sales pursuant to the Securities Act. Even when the Securities become freely transferrable, a secondary market in the Securities may not develop. Consequently, the undersigned understands that the undersigned must bear the economic risks of the investment in the Securities for an indefinite period of time.
- iii. The undersigned agrees: (A) that the undersigned will not sell, assign, pledge, give, transfer or otherwise dispose of the Securities or any interest therein, or (B) make any offer or attempt to do any of the foregoing, except pursuant to Rule 501 of Regulation CF.

7. Conditions to Obligations of the Undersigned and the Company. The obligations of the undersigned to purchase and pay for the Securities specified on the signature page hereto and of the Company to sell the Securities are subject to the satisfaction at or prior to the Closing of the following conditions precedent: the representations and warranties of the Company contained in Section 5 hereof and of the undersigned contained in Section 6 hereof shall be true and correct as of the Closing in all respects with the same effect as though such representations and warranties had been made as of the Closing.

8. Obligations Irrevocable. Following the Closing, the obligations of the undersigned shall be irrevocable.

9. Legend. The certificates, book entry or other form of notation representing the Securities sold pursuant to this Subscription Agreement will be notated with a legend or designation, which communicates in some manner that the Securities were issued pursuant to Section 4(a)(6) of the Securities Act and may only be resold pursuant to Rule 501 of Regulation CF.

10. Waiver, Amendment. Neither this Subscription Agreement nor any provisions hereof shall be modified, changed, discharged or terminated except by an instrument in writing, signed by the party against whom any waiver, change, discharge or termination is sought.

11. Assignability. Neither this Subscription Agreement nor any right, remedy, obligation or liability arising hereunder or by reason hereof shall be assignable by either the Company or the undersigned without the prior written consent of the other party.

12. Waiver of Jury Trial. THE UNDERSIGNED IRREVOCABLY WAIVES ANY AND ALL RIGHT TO TRIAL BY JURY WITH RESPECT TO ANY LEGAL PROCEEDING ARISING OUT OF THE TRANSACTIONS CONTEMPLATED BY THIS SUBSCRIPTION AGREEMENT.

13. Dispute Resolution.

a) General Rule.

Any dispute under this Subscription Agreement will be resolved through arbitration, not through the court system. All arbitration will be conducted in the state where the executive office of the Company is located at such time, unless both parties agree otherwise in writing in a specific case. All arbitration will be conducted before a single arbitrator in following the rules of the American Arbitration Association. Except as required by law, neither a party nor the arbitrator may disclose the existence, content or results of any arbitration without the prior written consent of the other parties.

b) Appeal of Award.

Within thirty days of a final award by the single arbitrator, either party may appeal the award for reconsideration by a three-arbitrator panel. If there is an appeal, the other party may cross-appeal within thirty days after notice of the appeal. The panel will reconsider all aspects of the initial award that are appealed, including related findings of fact.

c) Effect of Award.

Any award by the individual arbitrator that is not subject to appeal, and any panel award on appeal, shall be final and binding, except for any appeal right under the Federal Arbitration Act, and may be entered as a judgment in any court of competent jurisdiction.

d) No Class Action Claims.

NO ARBITRATION SHALL PROCEED ON A CLASS, REPRESENTATIVE, OR COLLECTIVE BASIS. No party may join, consolidate, or otherwise bring claims for or on behalf of two or more individuals or unrelated corporate entities in the same arbitration unless those persons are parties to a single transaction. An award in arbitration shall determine the rights and obligations of the named parties only, and only with respect to the claims in arbitration, and shall not (i) determine the rights, obligations, or interests of anyone other than a named party, or resolve any claim of anyone other than a named party, or (ii) make an award for the benefit of, or against, anyone other than a named party. No administrator or arbitrator shall have the power or authority to waive, modify, or fail to enforce this paragraph, and any attempt to do so, whether by rule, policy, and arbitration decision or otherwise, shall be invalid and unenforceable. Any challenge to the validity of this paragraph shall be determined exclusively by a court and not by the administrator or any arbitrator. If this paragraph shall be deemed unenforceable, then any proceeding in the nature of a class action shall be handled in court, not in arbitration.

14. Governing Law. This Subscription Agreement shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of the State of Delaware, without regard to conflict of law principles thereof.

15. Section and Other Headings. The section and other headings contained in this Subscription Agreement are for reference purposes only and shall not affect the meaning or interpretation of this Subscription Agreement.

18. Binding Effect. The provisions of this Subscription Agreement shall be binding upon and accrue to the benefit of the parties hereto and their respective heirs, legal representatives, successors and assigns.

19. Survival. All representations, warranties and covenants contained in this Subscription Agreement shall survive (i) the acceptance of the subscription by the Company, (ii) changes in the transactions, documents and instruments described in the Form C/A which are not material or which are to the benefit of the undersigned and (iii) the death or disability of the undersigned.

20. Notification of Changes. The undersigned hereby covenants and agrees to notify the Company upon the occurrence of any event prior to the closing of the purchase of the Securities pursuant to this Subscription Agreement, which would cause any representation, warranty, or covenant of the undersigned contained in this Subscription Agreement to be false or incorrect.

21. Severability.  - l. "Shadow Series" shall mean shares of a series of the Company's preferred stock that is identical in all respects to the shares of preferred stock issued in the Qualified Equity Financing (e.g., if the Company sells Series A Preferred Stock in the Qualified Equity Financing, the Shadow Series would be Series A-1 Preferred Stock), except that the liquidation preference per share of the Shadow Series shall equal the Conversion Price (as determined pursuant to Section 2) and the following additional differences:

- i. Shadow Series shareholders shall grant their vote on any matter that is submitted to a vote or for the consent of the stockholders of the Company (except for on matters required by law) by irrevocable proxy; and

Webinar Transcript

Brett Andrews: Hey everybody, this is Brett Andrews with MicroVentures. Thank you all for tuning into this webinar today. Today we're going to be hearing from MindWise, a threat detection software solution that uses proprietary technology to monitor the deep web for sensitive personal information for banking and non-banking institutions. We are joined today by their co-founder and CEO, Tobin Shea. Tobin oversees all activities, employees, product development and fundraising for MindWise. Prior to co-founding MindWise, Tobin was a researcher within Saint Mary's College of California's Chemistry Department, and presented his research on the synthesis and testing of photo-responsive liquid crystal elastomers at the American Chemical Society Conference.

Brett Andrews: Accompanying his academic background, Tobin is currently in the process of completing a cybersecurity certificate from Stanford University. He holds a bachelors from Saint Mary's College with a double major in biology and philosophy, and a double minor in chemistry and music. Outside of academics, Tobin has developed several patent-pending devices ranging from ventilators in response to the pandemic, to firearm safety devices. How are you doing today Tobin?

Tobin Shea: Doing really well, thank you for asking.

Brett Andrews: Yeah hey great. Thanks for joining us and spending some of your time here today. Just so for folks listening and tuning in here, just to understand what we're going to be doing. Tobin's going to spend about 10 or 15 minutes going through his presentation for MindWise, hopefully you can see that intro slide on your screen. He's going to give us a little bit more background, and when he's finished he's going to kick it back over to me and we're going to do a little conversational Q&A to learn a little bit more about the business. With that Tobin I'll let you take it away and introduce everyone to MindWise.

Tobin Shea: Thank you so much. My name is Tobin Shea, and today we'll be talking about MindWise cybersecurity and fraud prevention. So first we can outline fraud today, and already there's some newer statistics than the ones shown here, but the general trend holds true and that is that fraud is growing. In 2020, the fraud burden grew to about $31 billion for financial institutions.ⁱ Data breaches have continued to grow with about an average of 54% year over year growth,ⁱⁱ and I think the most recent figure was actually 68% in this last year.ⁱⁱⁱ Then of course card fraud in general is also on the rise, and it's increased about 436% since 2015.^{iv} Of course there are current security measures in place, and these measures do well and they actually stop a significant amount of fraud. Lots of times this fraud goes through because it's just too slow. The fraud isn't even detected before the transaction is approved.

Tobin Shea: Financial institutions often have to depend on layered security often through multiple providers. This is also slow and expensive, and it depends on manual reviews in many cases, which is actually a person going through transactions and deciding whether to flag it or not. The average stolen card is charged about

$780,^v but the actual losses to the institution are much higher. That's because you have to include things like mitigation costs and the costs for things like those manual reviews. So, in reality, even though a card is charged $780, they're really losing about $3.60 per dollar when you factor in the other costs.^{vi}

Tobin Shea: This is the conventional fraud timeline. Not all, but a large percentage of fraud occurs in exactly this manner. It usually starts with compromise. The card information is acquired, this is usually through some kind of data breach somewhere. Maybe the bank directly, it may be a store that has credit card information on file, or it could be something else. But it usually starts with a data breach.

Tobin Shea: The hackers then take that information that they were able to secure from the data breach, and they put that for sale. They give that to an online illicit marketplace. Sometimes the hacking group may host their own marketplace to sell the information they're able to acquire. Other times they sell it to another wholesaler marketplace on the dark web. The stolen information is then put up for auction on these sites, and individual fraudsters can browse the credit and debit cards that are for sale and purchase the information if they choose to. Once the cyber-criminal purchases the card information they're able to use it for illegal purposes and attempt the fraud. The conventional fraud prevention acts at the end of this timeline. Essentially it analyzes transactions and it looks for abnormalities, and they can see if someone is making a strange purchase, they might be able to freeze the transaction. But the key thing here is the fraudster already has your information and they're already at least attempting transactions if not completing them.

Tobin Shea: MindWise on the other hand attempts to act earlier. We are able to penetrate these online auction sites. We can attempt to notify the issuing institution before the fraudster has even bought the information or even attempted the fraud. This sounds simple enough, namely monitoring a marketplace and reporting the cards that are up for sale, but in practice this is actually quite difficult. The marketplaces are often incredibly secure and many places or in many instances they're just secret, it's hard to locate them. Then once you have, it's hard to infiltrate them. They also employ different techniques to make it harder to identify data breaches. That can include selective card data releases, where rather than releasing 10,000 compromised cards all at once from a recent data breach, they trickle them out over several months. That makes it very hard for institutions to detect the data breach in the first place.

Tobin Shea: But for MindWise it kind of doesn't matter, because regardless of how or when it was breached, the moment it goes for sale we're able to chronicle that. They also use behavior tracking technology. This is to prevent automated scrapers or surveillance tools from gaining sustained access to these marketplaces. A person takes time to scroll through and read, whereas a scraper or a computer does so instantaneously, and then they lose access to the marketplaces. Of course MindWise has automated this. We've engineered an automated response to the security measures that allow us to gain reliable access to these marketplaces. The core to our platform is the modular analytics engine. We call it modular analytics engine because while this presentation is mostly focusing on credit and debit card fraud, we can modularly apply the same technology to other types of issues like synthetic fraud, account takeover, and identity theft protection.

Tobin Shea: It's cloud based, so it's scalable with very little increase in our overhead cost. Our secure REST API makes integration quick and easy. The only thing we need from banks is their BIN numbers, which is not even really privileged information. Of course, this is our trade secret. Like I described earlier, it's quite complex to execute what we're doing, and we believe as a trade secret this would be hard to replicate. The savings and benefits for a financial institution. Like I said, MindWise aims to stop fraud prevention of all types that are originating from illicit marketplaces. We expect our product to deliver a cost savings to the financial institution, especially when you consider the true cost of fraud calculation.

Tobin Shea: MindWise seeks to detect compromised cards early, which gives institutions much more time to react as opposed to trying to process in a matter of seconds whether a transaction is fraudulent or not. Whereas MindWise is acting or attempting to act much further upstream. So banks may have a matter of days to mitigate a potential risk as opposed to seconds. Then of course this could improve the customer experience. We've all probably gotten a call from our bank asking if a transaction is fraudulent or not. This is irritating, especially when you're getting a call for a legitimate transaction and you're waiting in the checkout line. Hopefully with MindWise we can reduce these false positives, and hopefully improve customer experience. Here's some of our other product offerings and our product offering roadmaps that we plan to expand to if we aren't already doing it.

Tobin Shea: Just to briefly go over each, we can start with synthetic fraud. Synthetic fraud is basically a new spin on identity theft. It's not quite identity theft, where they're taking one person's identity and using it illicitly. Rather, they're taking multiple people's identities and creating a new person at least digitally, and using that new persona to secure loans, credit cards or cars, or other things illegally. This is actually one of the fastest growing types of fraud,^{vii} and it's pretty difficult to combat. Similarly, we have traditional identity theft, and again MindWise can help combat this with our dark web monitoring. We have account takeover, which is essentially the sale of username or password. This can be anything from a bank account, gaining someone's login information, or this can be something like social media, "hacking someone's account." Of course there's general consumer information.

Tobin Shea: Obviously most of our solutions here have been business facing, but of course individual consumers and customers have sensitive information that they would not want available on the dark web either. MindWise plans in the future to roll out an individual facing solution to help individual people protect their information. We also have merchant protection. Individual storefronts are some of the biggest losers to fraud. Lots of times the liability for the fraud lands on the bank, but other times it lands on the store that had something purchased from them with that illegal card. We also plan to roll out a solution that will help these individual merchants detect fraud. Then of course we want to roll out generalized threat intelligence. Hackers often collaborate and coordinate attacks on the dark web, maybe it's through forums or other hotbeds of illegal activity. MindWise is able to monitor these forums as well, and we can notify a client about a potential attack or dangerous chatter that we were able to pick up on in some of these forums.

Tobin Shea: Some product validation. Very early on in our prototyping stage, one of our most exciting discoveries and product validations was the discovery of the Jason's Deli breach. MindWise was able to analyze lots of cards, and we found that there was nearly a 100% overlap between the zip codes of cards on the dark web and those of Jason's Deli. We were able to communicate with the authorities and share our findings, which turned out to be correct, and that was that Jason's Deli had undergone a data breach and was leaking payment information of their customers.^{viii} Our system is able to detect millions of cards. Cumulatively, we are above four million cards counted across these black marketplaces. Of course, we also have our pilot program partner which is LoanClose. MindWise is currently partnered with LoanClose, who is a loan portal. We are working with them to help them stay secure, of course, and to also analyze some of their new applicants and determine whether it may be a stolen identity.

Tobin Shea: The market today for financial institutions there is just over 9,000 FDIC insured banks and credit unions in the United States.^{ix} Domestically about 47% of Americans have been a victim of card fraud within the last five years.^x As far as cards issued, there's approximately 1.1 billion issued cards in the United States.^{xi} So our marketing and sales. Our approach is going to be multi-pronged. One thing we want to focus a lot on is content creation, whether that's web content like videos or articles. This is very important when it comes to establishing trust and establishing MindWise as a thought leader in the field, and establishing ourselves as really a pioneer in this style of fraud prevention. We also will target banks with known compromises.

Tobin Shea: One thing we do is monitoring the cards on the dark web. We're not just monitoring cards for existing clients. So even though bank X might not be a client yet we are monitoring bank X's cards. We can approach bank X and tell them that we have found approximately this many cards in this time period. I think that's pretty unique for MindWise. Most companies when they approach a potential client, they talk about their benefits at a hypothetical theoretical level. Whereas MindWise we can say with some certainty that we already have this many cards and we can already provide the service. We also hope to utilize banking associations, and trade show type groups to promote MindWise across the banking institution. Of course, through some of our business advisors and other partners we also have inside contacts at other banks. We also hope to use channel partnerships with other complementary security. What that means is other fraud prevention and security providers might not be direct competitors.

Tobin Shea: Like I described earlier, most fraud prevention operates by analyzing transaction abnormalities. We don't see these companies as direct competitors, rather complimentary service providers. So hopefully, MindWise will work out partnerships with some of these complimentary providers and use them to promote ourselves and our partners, and provide the best services we can to our future clients. Our pricing model. We have an early pilot card protection for banks in the trial period. Essentially, we want this to be risk free, which means if we don't find any compromised cards the bank doesn't have to pay us anything. If we do deliver a compromised card to them, we will charge $100 per card, which is still a huge savings considering the average stolen card is charged about $780. Of course when you factor in the true cost the fraud multiplier there, the loss for the bank is even higher.

Tobin Shea: After the pilot program ends, we would move to our regular pricing options. That can be one of two ways. We could continue the risk-free pay-as-you-go model, where we charge only for cards we deliver, but the price increases from our trial pricing option. Or we could move to a regular subscription, where they pay a flat fee based on how many cards the bank has issued. Here we have some information on our use of proceeds. As you can see on the right side of the pie chart salary is the largest single expense. This is because we need to be able to attract some of the best talent for software development and cybersecurity. Other significant expenses include marketing and sales. I think this is self-explanatory here.

Tobin Shea: Without a healthy marketing and sales budget client acquisition would be harder. That's the next most important aspect of our budget. Of course, we have about eight percent of our expenses will be dedicated to our tech stack. That's things like server expenses and systems that will run the API. So of course it's eight percent, which I think is great. This is a serious platform, and we're able to run it very efficiently, and that only eight percent of our operating budget, this is a very lean and efficient system and I think that's worth noting. Of course there are few other smaller fees such as general legal and administrative, and then of course intermediary fees for the fundraising. Lastly, we have our core team. I can skip over myself as we did a little intro in the beginning, and I can speak about Nico our CTO and co-founder. Nico's been working in cybersecurity since as early as he could.

Tobin Shea: When he was 15 he got his work permit and started working in cybersecurity, which I think is pretty impressive. I don't know many 15 year olds that have already secured a cybersecurity position job. Some of his work experience ranges from medical record security, to even working enterprise security at banks. He regularly consults other developers on all things cybersecurity, botnets, scraping, and other topics. Nico's really been using this technology and things like the Tor Browser since they were invented. We also have our very distinguished advisor, Dr. Earl Sacerdoti. Dr. Sacerdoti is a serial entrepreneur with over 40 years of experience in the industry. He has his master's degree and PhD from Stanford, and he was also the co-founder of Symantec, a Fortune 500 software company that notably owns Norton Security and LifeLock.

Tobin Shea: Lastly, another one of our key advisors is Mr. Graham Seel. Graham Seel is a bank technologist and advisor to credit unions and other banks and fintechs with decades of industry experience. He provides lots of insight for our operations and strong connections within the industry. Of course, we have our references if you want to learn where any of our data came from, feel free to explore any of these sources. That about wraps up our presentation on MindWise and the fraud landscape today. I really hope you enjoyed and thank you very much for taking the time to watch through this.

Brett Andrews: Great, thanks Tobin. That was very thorough and appreciate all the background there. I've got a couple just quick follow-up questions that I thought might be interesting to talk about briefly. The first one, maybe if you can flip back to the, I think it might have been the third slide, the one with the timeline of how the fraud typically takes place. I believe yes, this is right. I'm not sure if you're aware of this or not, but what would you say in general is the timeframe from the starting point where a card's compromised to the ending point where there's fraud that takes in real time? Is this something that occurs in a matter of seconds, minutes, days in general? What do you typically see there?

Tobin Shea: That's a really great and really interesting question. In a sentence it depends. To provide a little more detail than that, the average data breach actually goes undetected for over 200 days.^{xii} That means before a company is aware that their data is even compromised, about 200 days have transpired. In that 200 days, that's generally when we see this activity. Cyber criminals want to capitalize on that fact. They know that it takes time to detect data breaches, and if they do their job well, it can take a long time to detect those breaches. They want to capitalize on that. Typically, they want to offload that stolen information as quickly as possible. They typically want to do that somewhat quickly to beat the authorities.

Tobin Shea: On the other hand, if they release all the cards at once that were stolen from Jason's Deli perhaps, to talk about a real-life example. If they release all those cards at once, it makes it easier for MindWise to do so and it makes it easier for other institutions like Visa or MasterCard to analyze it. So what fraudsters can do is they release it over a staggered period of time, and it makes it more challenging to find the source of the data breach, and it also skews the timeline of how quickly we move through this process, namely from compromise to fraud. So it depends. But in general they try to keep it fairly quick before the authorities are aware of the breach.

Brett Andrews: Got it. Then when it comes to, this is probably an obvious question, but when it comes to the moment in which you guys have detected an alert or detected a compromised card. In terms of what happens with that information, information meaning like hey this card or these groups of cards are compromised, is that really just up to the client? So you have a bank that's paying you just to tell them when there has been a breach, and then they decide whether they want to handle it internally or go to the authorities, or what have you, it's really just up to the customer?

Tobin Shea: Essentially yes. For most of our solutions, we will deliver them the information, but it's up to their internal policy on how to mitigate it. Of course we will support integrating into their automated process, but yes in the end they will customize their policy accordingly to their policies. So yes, we're simply delivering the information and leaving it up to them.

Brett Andrews: Okay, understood. I figured that was the response. Shifting to the go to market strategy, you talked about some of the things that you guys were doing. I know when we originally spoke months ago one of the things I did find fascinating was your bringing, you're almost doing the work without being paid up front. If you find some cards that have been compromised, obviously going to a potential customer with that information there's already value, you're demonstrating value without actually even being compensated for it. In terms of the actual commercialization side, and just drilling down into that process and putting it in practice, let's say you find that some merchant or some bank has had a batch of compromised cards, what is the process from there? I guess who is the purchaser within those organizations? I guess it's different depending on who it is, but are you contacting the C-suite to let them know about this? Is it via email? I guess I'm just curious about the tactics in terms of how that sale process starts once you've got some value you can demonstrate.

Tobin Shea: Sure, also great question. The answer is also it depends. I think the biggest factor there as how big is the bank? The bigger the bank the more levels of corporate governance. The smaller the bank usually it's a little more straightforward, there might be general employees then a middle management then a C-suite. As opposed to the large banks where there are so many tiers of management, different departments, etcetera. Typically, when we reach out to a bank regardless of size, we're not going to reach out to one person alone. We usually try to extend that outreach to a few individuals.

Tobin Shea: Banks organize differently, but there's typically a fraud prevention director or a risk security officer that handles fraud. We always try to include that person, which is usually a high-ranking decision maker, oftentimes on the C-suite. Then there's usually the base level employees working in the security department. We're also trying to contact those individuals as well and share our findings essentially, and that we believe we can help this institution. With any bank we're trying make contact on multiple levels, but the title of those people varies from bank to bank.

Brett Andrews: Sure. I'm sure as a quick aside, I'm sure a lot of these questions the correct answer is going to be it depends, but it helps to just get a little bit of color of how you think about things. On that note and sticking with this slide, I really do think this slide is very illustrative of how you guys fit into the stream. I think that leads into my next topic I wanted to touch on, which is competition. One thing I was curious about in terms of competition, and I know that there's other forms of fraud that maybe don't go through this timeline, but assuming in these cases where there is a compromised card that ends up going to an auction. Is there a competition in the auction to purchase space that in terms of where you guys are in the stream? Or is all of the competition at the end of the cycle sort of towards the fraud? Maybe if the answer is the former, what does the competition look like from a high level?

Tobin Shea: Sure. Yes, this was a excellent question already on our discussion page. I was actually very excited to answer this question. Of course there are other fraud prevention companies, this is a very established field already. I think the biggest differentiating factor one is how we're doing this, namely through dark web monitoring rather than analyzing transactions or behavior. Within our specific niche of dark web monitoring yes, there are other companies that do so. They might be doing other things. For instance, I think in the discussion well, one company that was asked about was oh, I think it was DeepSense. They do, they monitor the dark web.

Tobin Shea: They're doing so to analyze company risk, like third party vendor management risk based on what sort of chatter is on the dark web. They're monitoring the dark web, but to a completely different end than MindWise. There are a few companies, and I'm only aware of a very small number, that are monitoring things like stolen credit and debit card frauds. I think without going too much into each of these companies and their methods compared to MindWise, I think to sum it up in a sentence, MindWise aims to deliver more focus active fraud prevention and cybersecurity. Focusing on timeliness, data quality and comprehensiveness at a very flexible price point that is enabled by that very lean technology stack I mentioned earlier.

Brett Andrews: Got it, I think that's a great succinct tagline there. Just as a follow-up to that, and I'm sure the answer to this one is it depends on the customer. But do you see, especially given your business model where it's like hey, you pay us, I know there's a couple different models you've got in the works. But certainly, the one where it's like hey, you pay us if we prove our value. Do you see this as a replacement for most of the existing solutions or potentially a supplement? I guess if I'm a customer I'm looking at it like hey if these guys happen to get stuff that our other system doesn't catch then that's worth paying for. I was just curious how you see it given the overall landscape.

Tobin Shea: Exactly yeah. So, like you said, a supplement, that's how I see MindWise where we're currently standing. That's where I see MindWise fitting in. I personally wouldn't advocate that a bank drops or a credit union drops their current fraud prevention protocols. I think they should probably keep those in place and add MindWise as another layer of security. So that those transactions that their current methods don't catch, well maybe MindWise can. So again I see us mostly as complimentary rather than competitive with a lot of the existing fraud prevention solutions.

Brett Andrews: Sure. I think that helps. If folks are wondering about competition that kind of I think the business model really it speaks to your belief in the product. Because if you aren't able to produce that value it's tough to earn revenue. Last couple of questions. One's going to be about the future and one's a little bit more of a drill down on where things are today, starting with the future here. You talked a bit about the different applications that this product could evolve into. Obviously, we've spoken a lot today about banking, banking institutions, credit unions.

Brett Andrews: As you guys look at the different verticals that you could go into, just curious what drives maybe some of the, or what will drive some of the decision making there? Is it hey, we've seen this one vertical is ripe with issues and our system is catching a lot of instances of fraud that are tied to the same place? Is it more working backwards of hey, what are the verticals where this fraud is costing them the most, and that value delta based off what we can charge, even if the absolute number isn't quite as high really makes more sense to pursue that vertical? I was just curious how you guys think about that as you continue to grow.

Tobin Shea: Great thoughts included in your question there. Yes, so we've identified banking institutions. That being said, there's also downsides associated with the financial institution industry, namely they're notorious for long sales cycles. While other business verticals might theoretically calculate to be less lucrative, we might avoid things like the long sales cycle. That certainly influences and has influenced our decisions on what sort of products we want to roll out and in what order.

Tobin Shea: On that note, one of the products we've recently rolled out as you can see on our newly updated website is data breach protection. Of course, this can be used by financial institutions, but really this is something that can be used by any company that is storing sensitive data. Again, the benefit for working with non-financial institutions is, while it might be a smaller contract value, other companies typically are more agile than banks because they're dealing with less regulation and less complicated corporate governance, and just a generally faster sales cycle. It's things like that, that help inform our decision on what products we want to roll out and in what order.

Brett Andrews: I think that's super interesting that you guys throw the factor of sales cycle in there. I didn't even think of that, but I can see that. Cashflow velocity obviously at an early stage of a business is almost more important than overall contract size, and so that makes a lot of sense. That makes a lot of sense. Last question. You talked a bit about the updated website, I thought maybe I just wanted to give you a minute or so to speak just about the state of the product today. I know you talked about some of the pilot that you've got ongoing, and I was just curious if you wanted to share anything about where things are today. I know you've got a number of products in the pipeline, but what is in the near term of what you guys might be, obviously feel free to keep whatever you want close to the vest, but what is on the near term, on the horizon of what you guys might roll out soon?

Tobin Shea: Sure, absolutely. Again, to anyone who's watching, feel free to look up the website mindwise.io. In the website you can browse and scroll to the solutions tab. Under there, we'll talk about a lot of our products that are now ready for market. That includes of course our premier product, which is the credit and debit card fraud product. Then we have our data breach monitoring product, which I just briefly mentioned. Our generalized threat intelligence, identity verification, which is, in a word I would describe our identity verification is the broad name for our synthetic fraud and identity theft products. They're just fraud prevention dealing with identities and our account takeover solution. These are all ready for market now.

Tobin Shea: We're really excited about that. Like I spoke to earlier, one reason we were able to develop these and roll these out relatively quickly is because of our modular analytics engine. We built this platform in a way that at its earlier stage was focusing solely on credit and debit card frauds, but we built it in a way where we could change the search criteria and also monitor compromised accounts, compromised data, really anything of value that could be sold on these marketplaces, we can quickly tailor our modular and analytics engine to detect that type of data.

Brett Andrews: Got it. I think that's a great point to mention that the infrastructure of how you guys are building this does allow for you to be nimble. So, if you see an opportunity it sounds like you can jump on that fairly quickly, even with the resources that you currently have. You can imagine with even more resources what the future might hold. Really appreciate the time here. Before I give you any sort of parting thoughts or pass it over to you for that, just want to thank anybody who has tuned into this. Then of course if you'd like to invest, we'd encourage you to do so. That is the point of presentation, is to share more information for potential investors. If you don't already have an account with us at MicroVentures, I'd encourage you to set one up, it's free to do so. If you do then you likely know what the process is like, but there's a bright orange invest button up at the top right of that campaign page. You can click there, decide how much you'd like to contribute, and it'll walk you through the process of transferring the funds.

Brett Andrews: That campaign page you can find if you go to the microventures.com website and click on the Invest tab at the top. You can scroll down and find the tombstone for MindWise. The direct URL as well is invest.microventures.com/offerings/mindwise. Then I guess lastly, we mentioned this at the end here. If you are a business owner and you feel like this product could help you in some way, whether that's a finance institution or any of the products that Tobin had mentioned, definitely check out that website, mindwise.io. I think you can find ways to get in touch with Tobin and his team, I think they'd be certainly open to exploring that. That's it for me here, Tobin any parting thoughts or any other places that you wanted to point people towards potentially?

Tobin Shea:

Yeah, sure. Like you said, if you are listening and you are a business owner working with sensitive data, I really encourage you to reach out. The cybersecurity landscape right now is very active to name it in one word. We really hope that we can play a role in keeping businesses and their data safe. So please reach out and we can find a agreeable term to help protect your data. I just want to say thank you for everyone who spent time here today learning more about MindWise, and yeah please feel free to reach out with any questions.
