Lowercase Capital is a family of funds investing into startups, acquiring later stage companies and advising business and funds of all sizes on strategy and execution. While primarily known for its investments in seed and early stage technology companies, Lowercase Capital has also become an active investor in the later rounds of many of its portfolio companies. With over seventy consumer web, mobile, and wireless technology startups as well as an array of mature enterprises Lowercase has quietly become one of the largest and most diverse venture funds in the country.

Lowercase Capital is lucky to have backed some of the most ambitious and talented entrepreneurs in the game today. While many are small teams, early in their evolution to becoming household names, others have matured into some of the most exciting and impactful companies in technology today. With a portfolio that includes Twitter, Uber, Instagram, Kickstarter, Heroku, Twilio, Locu, Optimizely, Quirky, Lookout, Photobucket and many others, the unique strategy and approach of the fund has proven repeatedly to be a value add to great teams executing on incredible products.
