Our Team

oneKIN, Inc. CEO / Co-Founder

Marvin is a graduate of Boston College and New York University with 15 years in finance and tech. A self-taught coder, Marvin is incredibly passionate about leveraging technology to disrupt the invisible market forces that exacerbate the wealth gap.

Market forces have accelerated the demise of small business favoring quick and cost-efficient solutions over sustainable and community-centered outcomes. Small businesses serve as economic spigots in their communities, and represent the most important tool we have to combat socio-economic deterioration, particularly in disinvested communities.

Jennifer Gomez CMO / Co-Founder

Jennifer is a Brown University graduate with 15+ years driving global omnichannel marketing solutions in retail and CPG (L'Oréal, Time, Sephora etc.). As a tech founder & speaker, Jennifer is on a mission to create an equitable future through tech.

Powering the Future of Retail for Small Businesses

We believe communities flourish when small businesses flourish.

By supporting and investing in small businesses, we empower them to have community-level impact and effect widespread socio-economic change.

The effects of the pandemic persist, and disproportionately impact Black and Brown small businesses. Their erasure comes with far-reaching consequences including loss of jobs, community development and new economic opportunities.

This is why we are hyper-focused on providing small businesses with creative technology solutions to help them compete in the digital landscape, achieve scale, and grow sustainably.

who we are:

oneKIN Inc. is a mission-driven, fintech + retail-tech company that provides small businesses with creative and cost-effective solutions to accelerate their digital transformation and drive revenue growth.

The Problem

Brick-and-mortar shops have limited reach, while online shops battle through the noise and clutter of e-commerce to reach their audience.

Major online marketplaces run on algorithms that ensure small businesses without multi-million dollar marketing budgets never gain sufficient visibility.

Existing retail distribution channels are fundamentally flawed, and ripe for disruption.

problem:

small businesses are losing out on $1 billion+ in revenue each year because they struggle to reach their target audience.*

why?

- Physical stores suffer limited visibility + reach
- The digital landscape is noisy + cluttered, and merchants struggle to find their customers
- Declining customer loyalty + engagement

The Solution

oneKIN Live merges the intimacy and personalization of in-store shopping experiences with the broad reach and efficiency of e-commerce.

With our technology, we extend the reach and visibility of small businesses, and provide an integrated social commerce experience for consumers with the potential to 10x conversions. (Conversion rates aren't guaranteed).

solution:

a livestream app featuring small + local businesses that merges the best of in-person and online shopping to create a S.I.C™ experience imagine a modern-day QVC, that:

- ✓ Virtually extends a shop's "footprint" to a nationwide audience
- ✓ Consolidates the customer's journey from discovery to conversion
- ✓ Bridges the gap between seller + buyer

...and has the potential to 10x conversion!

The Product

Leveraging insights from the Chinese social commerce industry, the US pop-up market model, and thousands of small businesses, oneKIN Live is designed to provide highly-personalized and high-converting shopping experiences with integrated livestream, chat, and in-app shopping features.

Market Validation

market validation:

Social media was an effective awareness + engagement tool for small businesses, but constant algorithm changes have resulted in nearly non-existent ROI without significant marketing spend.

While this social site can help build a business, it is plagued by customer service issues and disappearing posts, critics say.

Instagram's choice to prioritize videos over photos creates confusion for small companies, leaving many owners disheartened.

Instagram is clearly not designed for selling... I still have to point people to my Shopify store. Once that happens, I've lost them. And all of the information (inventory, data, analytics) is stored on iS. Now I have an entirely separate inventory and order management system to deal with.

You spend all this time building an audience and creating videos for only a handful of people to see your content. In addition to selling, we need to educate and provide value to our customers so we're looking for a tool that can help us achieve all of it.

Market Opportunity

Initially, we are targeting small businesses, with a prioritization of those operating in disinvested communities and under-penetrated markets.

Given the sustained shift in consumer shopping behavior towards small and local businesses, our entry into the market is timely.

Competitive Landscape

Live commerce has seen astronomical success in China, and is now approaching $500 billion. oneKIN benefits from being among first movers in the US introducing this new solution to an eager audience.
