OUR TECHNOLOGY

DeepBlue Innovations uses applied mathematical artificial intelligence trading software to allow investors and professional traders to utilize our technologically advanced and fully customizable AI trading management platform.

We design mathematical algorithms and AI software that empowers users to interconnect and remotely monitor all global markets.

Our platform is currently in pre-alpha testing before we move to full Alpha testing. The software is stable and able to execute trades and manage multiple assets and exchanges as it monitors each market for good trading opportunities.

STORY SO FAR

We have delivered our first version of the trading model which allows us to connect, analyze market data, place trades, and manage those trades in real time. Our algorithms have been tested for over nine months under a pre-alpha testing phase of the project.

We now need to develop the trading model further and continue to improve and expand its capabilities. Our vision includes more integration with brokers and exchanges, UI improvements, risk management updates, multi-currency support and a host of features to improve the functionality of the platform.

Our ROI returns in pre-alpha testing suggest an average ROI return per day of 1.5%. This figure will vary depending upon the market conditions and the risk level set in the platform for the asset class being traded.

INITIAL TESTING RESULTS

We have been testing our platform and intelligent trading algorithm, in what most people would consider a difficult market. Over this time our testing data gives us the following statistics between June 2022 and Feb 2023.

88% Win Rate between
June '22 and Feb '23

564 LONG trades in the

582 SHORT trades in the
