

The J.P. Morgan U.S. Franchise List Sub-Basket

The collective turbulence from the seizure in credit markets, weakening economic outlook, and battered equity markets have most likely put fundamental analysis on the back burner for many investors. However, for investors with investment horizons that stretch beyond the current turmoil in the markets, J.P. Morgan's North America Equity Research believes that fundamental analysis remains an important component of an investment framework.

The J.P. Morgan U.S. Franchise List Basket (the "U.S. Franchise List Basket") is a select group of stocks that J.P. Morgan North America Equity Research sees as core investments over the next 12-18 months. The J.P. Morgan U.S. Franchise List Sub-Basket (the "Sub-Basket") is a subset of fifteen stocks from the U.S. Franchise List Basket and is equally-weighted. The selection of the U.S. Franchise List Basket was based on a combination of quantitative analysis and fundamental analysis (which is qualitative and subjective). To be included in this basket, companies (1) must possess a combination of stable financial characteristics as measured by several quantitative factors developed by our equity research analysts and (2) must be viewed by our equity research analysts as outperformers during the global weakness envisioned over the next year. The process for selecting the stocks in the U.S. Franchise List Basket is outlined below.

The stocks in the U.S. Franchise List Basket were selected based on the following criteria:

- Substantial financial resources. Limited financial risk as measured by low leverage. Companies were ranked on net current assets (as a percentage of stock price) and debt to equity, and limited to those ranking in the top deciles among 1,200 U.S. stocks.
- Actual cash return to shareholders. Companies were ranked on either dividend yield or stock buyback yield and the selection was limited to companies whose cash return was in the top deciles.
- Profitability of business model. The margin profile of companies is key. The focus was on companies with high free cash yields as well as high net income margins and those selected ranked in the top deciles.
- Outperforming in a weakening global economy. Our equity research analysts provided companies that they viewed as capable of outperforming a weakening global economy. These companies needed some combination of pricing power, market dominance, counter-cyclical profile, revenue visibility, or a secular story outweighing the cyclical. In other words, our equity research analysts needed to have conviction on the fundamental story for the stock.
