RISK FACTORS

Risks Related to the Company's Business and Industry

In order for the Company to compete and grow, it must attract, recruit, retain and develop the necessary personnel who have the needed experience

Recruiting and retaining highly qualified personnel is critical to our success. These demands may require us to hire additional personnel and will require our existing management personnel to develop additional expertise. We face intense competition for personnel. The failure to attract and retain personnel or to develop such expertise could delay or halt the development and commercialization of our product candidates. If we experience difficulties in hiring and retaining personnel in key positions, we could suffer from delays in product development, loss of customers and sales and diversion of management resources, which could adversely affect operating results. Our consultants and advisors may be employed by third parties and may have commitments under consulting or advisory contracts with third parties that may limit their availability to us.

The development and commercialization of our products/services is highly competitive

We face competition with respect to any products that we may seek to develop or commercialize in the future. Our competitors include major companies worldwide. Many of our competitors have significantly greater financial, technical and human resources than we have and superior expertise in research and development and marketing approved products/services and thus may be better equipped than us to develop and commercialize products/services. These competitors also compete with us in recruiting and retaining qualified personnel and acquiring technologies. Smaller or early stage companies may also prove to be significant competitors, particularly through collaborative arrangements with large and established companies. Accordingly, our competitors may commercialize products more rapidly or effectively than we are able to, which would adversely affect our competitive position, the likelihood that our products/services will achieve initial market acceptance and our ability to generate meaningful additional revenues from our products.

The use of individually identifiable data by our business, our business associates and third parties is regulated at the state, federal and international levels.

Costs associated with information security – such as investment in technology, the costs of compliance with consumer protection laws and costs resulting from consumer fraud – could cause our business and results of operations to suffer materially. Additionally, the success of our online operations depends upon the secure transmission of confidential information over public networks. The intentional or negligent actions of employees, business associates or third parties may undermine our security measures. As a result, unauthorized parties may obtain access to our data systems and misappropriate confidential data. There can be no assurance that advances in computer capabilities, new discoveries in the field of cryptography or other developments will prevent the compromise of our customer's personal data. If any such compromise of our security or the security of information residing with our business associates or third parties were to occur, it could have a material adverse effect on our reputation, operating results and financial condition. Any compromise of our data security may materially increase the costs we incur to protect against such breaches and could subject us to additional legal risk.

The Company's success depends on the experience and skill of the board of directors, its executive officers and key employees.

In particular, the Company is dependent on Charles Anderson and Jaskarn Bajwa (the "Founders") who are Optimus Storage Network Inc.'s sole Directors, Software and Infrastructure Design and Development Talent. The Company has or intends to enter into employment agreements with Charles Anderson and Jaskarn Bajwa although there can be no assurance that it will do so or that they will continue to be employed by the Company for a particular period of time. The loss of Charles Anderson and Jaskarn Bajwa or any member of the board of directors or executive officer could harm the Company's business, financial condition, cash flow and results of operations.

We rely on various intellectual property rights, including trademarks in order to operate our business.

Such intellectual property rights, however, may not be sufficiently broad or otherwise may not provide us a significant competitive advantage. In addition, the steps that we have taken to maintain and protect our intellectual property may not prevent it from being challenged, invalidated, circumvented or designed-around, particularly in countries where intellectual property rights are not highly developed or protected. In some circumstances, enforcement may not be available to us because an infringer has a dominant intellectual property position or for other business reasons, or countries may require compulsory licensing of our intellectual property. Our failure to obtain or maintain intellectual property rights that convey competitive advantage, adequately protect our intellectual property or detect or prevent circumvention or unauthorized use of such property, could adversely impact our competitive position and results of operations. We also rely on nondisclosure and noncompetition agreements with employees, consultants and other parties to protect, in part, trade secrets and other proprietary rights. There can be no assurance that these agreements will adequately protect our trade secrets and other proprietary rights and will not be breached, that we will have adequate remedies for any breach, that others will not independently develop substantially equivalent proprietary information or that third parties will not otherwise gain access to our trade secrets or other proprietary rights.

As we expand our business, protecting our intellectual property will become increasingly important. The protective steps we have taken may be inadequate to deter our competitors from using our proprietary information. In order to protect or enforce our patent rights, we may be required to initiate litigation against third parties, such as infringement lawsuits. Also, these third parties may assert claims against us with or without provocation. These lawsuits could be expensive, take significant time and could divert management's attention from other business concerns. The law relating to the scope and validity of claims in the technology field in which we operate is still evolving and, consequently, intellectual property positions in our industry are generally uncertain. We cannot assure you that we will prevail in any of these potential suits or that the damages or other remedies awarded, if any, would be commercially valuable.

From time to time, third parties may claim that one or more of our products or services infringe their intellectual property rights.

Any dispute or litigation regarding patents or other intellectual property could be costly and time-consuming due to the complexity of our technology and the uncertainty of intellectual property litigation and could divert our management and key personnel from our business operations. A claim of intellectual property infringement could force us to enter into a costly or restrictive license agreement, which might not be available under acceptable terms or at all, could require us to redesign our products, which would be costly and time-consuming, and/or could subject us to an injunction against development and sale of certain of our products or services. We may have to pay substantial damages, including damages for past infringement if it is ultimately determined that our products infringe on a third party's proprietary rights. Even if these claims are without merit, defending a lawsuit takes significant time, may be expensive and may divert management's attention from other business concerns. Any public announcements related to litigation or interference proceedings initiated or threatened against us could cause our business to be harmed. Our intellectual property portfolio may not be useful in asserting a counterclaim, or negotiating a license, in response to a claim of intellectual property infringement. In certain of our businesses we rely on third party intellectual property licenses and we cannot ensure that these licenses will be available to us in the future on favorable terms or at all.

The amount of capital the Company is attempting to raise in this Offering may not be enough to sustain the Company's current business plan if the Offering is underfunded.

In order to achieve the Company's near and long-term goals, the Company may need to procure funds in addition to the amount raised in the Offering. There is no guarantee the Company will be able to raise such funds on acceptable terms or at all. If we are not able to raise sufficient capital in the future, we may not be able to execute our business plan, our continued operations will be in jeopardy and we may be forced to cease operations and sell or otherwise transfer all or substantially all of our remaining assets, which could cause an Investor to lose all or a portion of his or her investment.

We are subject to income taxes as well as non-income based taxes, such as payroll, sales, use, value-added, net worth, property and goods and services taxes, in both the U.S. and possibly various foreign jurisdictions Significant judgment is required in determining our provision for income taxes and other tax liabilities. In the ordinary course of our business, there are many transactions and calculations where the ultimate tax determination is uncertain. Although we believe that our tax estimates are reasonable: (i) there is no assurance that the final determination of tax audits or tax disputes will not be different from what is reflected in our income tax provisions, expense amounts for non-income based taxes and accruals and (ii) any material differences could have an adverse effect on our financial position and results of operations in the period or periods for which determination is made.

We are not subject to Sarbanes-Oxley regulations and lack the financial controls and safeguards required of public companies

We do not have the internal infrastructure necessary, and are not required, to complete an attestation about our financial controls that would be required under Section 404 of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002. There can be no assurance that there are no significant deficiencies or material weaknesses in the quality of our financial controls. We expect to incur additional expenses and diversion of management's time if and when it becomes necessary to perform the system and process evaluation, testing and remediation required in order to comply with the management certification and auditor attestation requirements.

Changes in employment laws or regulation could harm our performance

Various federal and state labor laws govern our relationship with our employees and affect operating costs. These laws include minimum wage requirements, overtime pay, healthcare reform and the implementation of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act, unemployment tax rates, workers' compensation rates, citizenship requirements, union membership and sales taxes. A number of factors could adversely affect our operating results, including additional government-imposed increases in minimum wages, overtime pay, paid leaves of absence and mandated health benefits, mandated training for employees, increased tax reporting and tax payment requirements for employees who receive tips, a reduction in the number of states that allow tips to be credited toward minimum wage requirements, changing regulations from the National Labor Relations Board and increased employee litigation including claims relating to the Fair Labor Standards Act.

The Company's business operations may be materially adversely affected by a pandemic such as the Coronavirus (COVID-19) outbreak

In December 2019, a novel strain of coronavirus was reported to have surfaced in Wuhan, China, which spread throughout other parts of the world, including the United States. On January 30, 2020, the World Health Organization declared the outbreak of the coronavirus disease (COVID-19) a "Public Health Emergency of International Concern." On January 31, 2020, U.S. Health and Human Services Secretary Alex M. Azar II declared a public health emergency for the United States to aid the U.S. healthcare community in responding to COVID-19, and on March 11, 2020 the World Health Organization characterized the outbreak as a "pandemic." COVID-19 resulted in a widespread health crisis that adversely affected the economies and financial markets worldwide. The Company's business could be materially and adversely affected. The extent to which COVID-19 impacts the Company's business will depend on future developments, which are highly uncertain and cannot be predicted, including new information which may emerge concerning the severity of COVID-19 and the actions to contain COVID-19 or treat its impact, among others. If the disruptions posed by COVID-19 or other matters of global concern continue for an extended period of time, the Company's operations may be materially adversely affected.

We face risks related to health epidemics and other outbreaks, which could significantly disrupt the Company's operations and could have a material adverse impact on us.

The outbreak of pandemics and epidemics could materially and adversely affect the Company's business, financial condition, and results of operations. If a pandemic occurs in areas in which we have material operations or sales, the Company's business activities originating from affected areas, including sales, materials, and supply chain related activities, could be adversely affected. Disruptive activities could include the temporary closure of facilities used in the Company's supply chain processes, restrictions on the export or shipment of products necessary to run the Company's business, business closures in impacted areas, and restrictions on the Company's employees' or consultants' ability to travel and to meet with customers, vendors or other business relationships. The extent to which a pandemic or other health outbreak impacts the Company's results will depend on future developments, which are highly uncertain and cannot be predicted, including new information which may emerge concerning the severity of a virus and the actions to contain it or treat its impact, among others. Pandemics can also result in social, economic, and labor instability which may adversely impact the Company's business.

If the Company's employees or employees of any of the Company's vendors, suppliers or customers become ill or are quarantined and in either or both events are therefore unable to work, the Company's operations could be subject to disruption. The extent to which a pandemic affects the Company's results will depend on future developments that are highly uncertain and cannot be predicted.

We face risks relating to public health conditions such as the COVID-19 pandemic, which could adversely affect the Company's customers, business, and results of operations.

Our business and prospects could be materially adversely affected by the COVID-19 pandemic or recurrences of that or any other such disease in the future. Material adverse effects from COVID-19 and similar occurrences could result in numerous known and currently unknown ways including from quarantines and lockdowns which impair the Company's business including: marketing and sales efforts, supply chain, etc. If the Company purchases materials from suppliers in affected areas, the Company may not be able to procure such products in a timely manner. The effects of a pandemic can place travel restrictions on key personnel which could have a material impact on the business. In addition, a significant outbreak of contagious diseases in the human population could result in a widespread health crisis that could adversely affect the economies and financial markets of many countries, resulting in an economic downturn that could reduce the demand for the Company's products and impair the Company's business prospects including as a result of being unable to raise additional capital on acceptable terms to us, if at all.

The United States tax rules applicable to an investment in the Securities and the underlying Cryptocurrency are uncertain and the tax consequences to an investor of an investment in the Securities could differ from the investor's expectations.

The tax rules applicable to the Securities and the underlying Cryptocurrency held by the Company are complex, and no statutory, judicial, or administrative authority directly addresses the characterization of an investment in Cryptocurrency. The tax consequences to an Investor of the Securities could differ from the Investor's expectations. Investor's should consult their own tax advisors.

Regulatory changes or actions may alter the nature of an investment in the Securities or restrict the use of Cryptocurrency or the operation of the Cryptocurrency network in a manner that adversely affects an investment in the Securities.

Until recently, little or no regulatory attention has been directed toward Cryptocurrency and the Cryptocurrency network by U.S. federal and state governments, foreign governments and self-regulatory agencies. As Cryptocurrency have grown in popularity and in market size, the U.S. Congress and certain U.S. agencies (e.g., FinCEN and the Federal Bureau of Investigation) have begun to examine the operations of the Cryptocurrency network, Cryptocurrency users and the Cryptocurrency exchange market. Local state regulators such as the California Department of Financial Institutions and the New York State Department of Financial Services have also initiated examinations of Bitcoin. Additionally, a U.S. federal magistrate judge in the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Texas has ruled that "Bitcoin is a currency or form of money," although there is no indication yet whether other courts or federal or state regulators will follow the federal magistrate's opinion. There is a possibility of future regulatory change altering, perhaps to a material extent, the nature of an investment in the Securities or the ability of the Company to continue to operate. Currently, neither the SEC nor the CFTC has formally asserted regulatory authority over the Bitcoin network or Bitcoin trading and ownership. To the extent that Cryptocurrency are determined to be a security, commodity future or other regulated asset, or to the extent that a U.S. or foreign government or quasi-governmental agency exerts regulatory authority over the Cryptocurrency network or Cryptocurrency trading and ownership, trading or ownership in Cryptocurrency or the Securities may be adversely affected.

To the extent that future regulatory actions or policies limit the ability to exchange Cryptocurrency or utilize them for payments, the demand for Cryptocurrency will decrease.

New regulations may make it more difficult to acquire and/or use Cryptocurrency. Furthermore, regulatory actions may limit the ability of end-users to convert Cryptocurrency into fiat currency (e.g., U.S. Dollars) or use Cryptocurrency to pay for goods and services. Such regulatory actions or policies would negatively affect our business and decrease the value of the Securities.

Cryptocurrency currently faces an uncertain regulatory landscape in not only the United States but also in many foreign jurisdictions such as the European Union.

While the German Ministry of Finance has declared Bitcoin to be "Rechnungseinheiten" (a form of private money that is recognized as a unit of account, but not recognized in the same manner as fiat currency), most regulatory bodies have not yet issued official statements regarding intention to regulate or determinations on regulation of Cryptocurrency, Cryptocurrency users and the Cryptocurrency network. Conversely, regulatory bodies in some countries such as Canada and India have declined to exercise regulatory authority when afforded the opportunity. Various foreign jurisdictions may, in the near future, adopt laws, regulations or directives that affect the Cryptocurrency network and its users, particularly Cryptocurrency exchanges and service providers that fall within such jurisdictions' regulatory scope. Such laws, regulations or directives may conflict with those of the United States and may negatively impact the acceptance of Cryptocurrency by users, merchants and service providers outside of the United States and may therefore impede the growth of the Cryptocurrency economy. We are not able to predict the effect of any future regulatory change on the Company or Cryptocurrency, but such change could be substantial and adverse to the Company or the value of the Securities.

It may be illegal now, or in the future, to acquire, own, hold, sell or use Cryptocurrency in one or more countries

Although currently Cryptocurrency are not regulated or are lightly regulated in most countries, including the United States, one or more countries may take regulatory actions in the future that severely restricts the right to acquire, own, hold, sell or use Cryptocurrency or to exchange Cryptocurrency for fiat currency. Such an action may also result in the restriction of ownership, holding or trading in the Securities. Such a restriction could result in the termination and liquidation of the Company at a time that is disadvantageous to Investor, or may adversely affect an investment in the Company.

The Company may be deemed a "money transmitter."

To the extent that the activities of the Company cause it to be deemed a "money transmitter" under the regulations promulgated by FinCEN under the authority of the U.S. Bank Secrecy Act, the Company may be required to comply with FinCEN regulations, including those that would mandate the Company to implement anti-money laundering programs, make certain reports to FinCEN and maintain certain records. Such additional regulatory obligations may cause the Company to incur extraordinary expenses, possibly affecting an investment in the Securities in a material and adverse manner. Additionally, certain states including California, Idaho and New York require Cryptocurrency businesses to register on the state level as money transmitters.

Current and future legislation, CFTC and SEC rulemaking and other regulatory developments may impact the manner in which Cryptocurrency are treated for classification and clearing purposes

In particular, Cryptocurrency may not be excluded from the definition of "commodity future" or "security" by such future CFTC and SEC rulemaking, respectively. As of the date of this Memorandum, the Company is not aware of any rules that have been proposed to regulate Cryptocurrency as commodity futures or securities. The Company cannot be certain as to how future regulatory developments will impact the treatment of Cryptocurrency under the law. Such additional registrations may result in extraordinary expenses of the Company thereby materially and adversely impacting the Securities.

The Company could be negatively impacted if found to have infringed on intellectual property rights

Technology companies, including many of the Company's competitors, frequently enter into litigation based on allegations of patent infringement or other violations of intellectual property rights. In addition, patent holding companies seek to monetize patents they have purchased or otherwise obtained. As the Company grows, the intellectual property rights claims against it will likely increase. The Company intends to vigorously defend infringement actions in court and before the U.S. International Trade Commission. The plaintiffs in these actions frequently seek injunctions and substantial damages. Regardless of the scope or validity of such patents or other intellectual property rights, or the merits of any claims by potential or actual litigants, the Company may have to engage in protracted litigation. If the Company is found to infringe one or more patents or other intellectual property rights, regardless of whether it can develop non-infringing technology, it may be required to pay substantial damages or royalties to a third-party, or it may be subject to a temporary or permanent injunction prohibiting the Company from marketing or selling certain products. In certain cases, the Company may consider the desirability of entering into licensing agreements, although no assurance can be given that such licenses can be obtained on acceptable terms or that litigation will not occur. These licenses may also significantly increase the Company's operating expenses.

Regardless of the merit of particular claims, litigation may be expensive, time-consuming, disruptive to the Company's operations and distracting to management. In recognition of these considerations, the Company may enter into arrangements to settle litigation. If one or more legal matters were resolved against the Company's consolidated financial statements for that reporting period could be materially adversely affected. Further, such an outcome could result in significant compensatory, punitive or trebled monetary damages, disgorgement of revenue or profits, remedial corporate measures or injunctive relief against the Company that could adversely affect its financial condition and results of operations.

Indemnity provisions in various agreements potentially expose us to substantial liability for intellectual property infringement and other losses.

Our agreements with advertisers, advertising agencies, customers and other third parties may include indemnification provisions under which we agree to indemnify them for losses suffered or incurred as a result of claims of intellectual property infringement, damages caused by us to property or persons, or other liabilities relating to or arising from our products, services or other contractual obligations. The term of these indemnity provisions generally survives termination or expiration of the applicable agreement. Large indemnity payments would harm our business, financial condition and results of operations. In addition, any type of intellectual property lawsuit, whether initiated by us or a third party, would likely be time consuming and expensive to resolve and would divert management's time and attention.

We rely heavily on our technology and intellectual property, but we may be unable to adequately or cost-effectively protect or enforce our intellectual property rights, thereby weakening our competitive position and increasing operating costs.

To protect our rights in our services and technology, we rely on a combination of copyright and trademark laws, patents, trade secrets, confidentiality agreements with employees and third parties, and protective contractual provisions. We also rely on laws pertaining to trademarks and domain names to protect the value of our corporate brands and reputation. Despite our efforts to protect our proprietary rights, unauthorized parties may copy aspects of our services or technology, obtain and use information, marks, or technology that we regard as proprietary, or otherwise violate or infringe our intellectual property rights. In addition, it is possible that others could independently develop substantially equivalent intellectual property. If we do not effectively protect our intellectual property, or if others independently develop substantially equivalent intellectual property, our competitive position could be weakened.

Effectively policing the unauthorized use of our services and technology is time-consuming and costly, and the steps taken by us may not prevent misappropriation of our technology or other proprietary assets. The efforts we have taken to protect our proprietary rights may not be sufficient or effective, and unauthorized parties may copy aspects of our services, use similar marks or domain names, or obtain and use information, marks, or technology that we regard as proprietary. We may have to litigate to enforce our intellectual property rights, to protect our trade secrets, or to determine the validity and scope of others' proprietary rights, which are sometimes not clear or may change. Litigation can be time consuming and expensive, and the outcome can be difficult to predict.

We rely on agreements with third parties to provide certain services, goods, technology, and intellectual property rights necessary to enable us to implement some of our applications.

Our ability to implement and provide our applications and services to our clients depends, in part, on services, goods, technology, and intellectual property rights owned or controlled by third parties. These third parties may become unable to or refuse to continue to provide these services, goods, technology, or intellectual property rights on commercially reasonable terms consistent with our business practices, or otherwise discontinue a service important for us to continue to operate our applications. If we fail to replace these services, goods, technologies, or intellectual property rights in a timely manner or on commercially reasonable terms, our operating results and financial condition could be harmed. In addition, we exercise limited control over our third-party vendors, which increases our vulnerability to problems with technology and services those vendors provide. If the services, technology, or intellectual property of third parties were to fail to perform as expected, it could subject us to potential liability, adversely affect our renewal rates, and have an adverse effect on our financial condition and results of operations.

We depend on profitable royalty-bearing licenses of our technology, and if we are unable to maintain and generate such license agreements, then we may not be able to sustain existing levels of revenue or increase revenue.

We depend upon the identification, investment in and license of new patents for our revenues. If we are unable to maintain such license agreements and to continue to develop new license arrangements, then we may not have the resources to identify new technology-based opportunities for future patents and inventions in order to maintain sustainable revenue and growth.

Our current or future license agreements may not provide the volume or quality of royalty revenue to sustain our business. In some cases, other technology sources may compete against us as they seek to license and commercialize technologies. These and other strategies may reduce the number of technology sources and potential clients to whom we can market our services. Our inability to maintain current relationships and sources of technology or to secure new licensees, may have a material adverse effect on our business and results of operations.

We must acquire or develop new products, evolve existing ones, address any defects or errors, and adapt to technology change.

Technical developments, client requirements, programming languages, and industry standards change frequently in our markets. As a result, success in current markets and new markets will depend upon our ability to enhance current products, address any product defects or errors, acquire or develop and introduce new products that meet client needs, keep pace with technology changes, respond to competitive products, and achieve market acceptance. Product development requires substantial investments for research, refinement, and testing. We may not have sufficient resources to make necessary product development investments. We may experience technical or other difficulties that will delay or prevent the successful development, introduction, or implementation of new or enhanced products. We may also experience technical or other difficulties in the integration of acquired technologies into our existing platform and applications. Inability to introduce or implement new or enhanced products in a timely manner could result in loss of market share if competitors are able to provide solutions to meet customer needs before we do, give rise to unanticipated expenses related to further development or modification of acquired technologies as a result of integration issues, and adversely affect future performance.

Cyclical and seasonal fluctuations in the economy, in internet usage and in traditional retail shopping may have an effect on our business.

Both cyclical and seasonal fluctuations in internet usage and traditional retail seasonality may affect our business. Internet usage generally slows during the summer months, and queries typically increase significantly in the fourth quarter of each year. These seasonal trends may cause fluctuations in our quarterly results, including fluctuations in revenues.

The products we sell are advanced, and we need to rapidly and successfully develop and introduce new products in a competitive, demanding and rapidly changing environment.

To succeed in our intensely competitive industry, we must continually improve, refresh and expand our product and service offerings to include newer features, functionality or solutions, and keep pace with price-to-performance gains in the industry. Shortened product life cycles due to customer demands and competitive pressures impact the pace at which we must introduce and implement new technology. This requires a high level of innovation by both our software developers and the suppliers of the third-party software components included in our systems. In addition, bringing new solutions to the market entails a costly and lengthy process, and requires us to accurately anticipate customer needs and technology trends. We must continue to respond to market demands, develop leading technologies and maintain leadership in analytic data solutions performance and scalability, or our business operations may be adversely affected.

We must also anticipate and respond to customer demands regarding the compatibility of our current and prior offerings. These demands could hinder the pace of introducing and implementing new technology. Our future results may be affected if our products cannot effectively interface and perform well with software products of other companies and with our customers' existing IT infrastructures, or if we are unsuccessful in our efforts to enter into agreements allowing integration of third-party technology with our database and software platforms. Our efforts to develop the interoperability of our products may require significant investments of capital and employee resources. In addition, many of our principal products are used with products offered by third parties and, in the future, some vendors of non-Company products may become less willing to provide us with access to their products, technical information and marketing and sales support. As a result of these and other factors, our ability to introduce new or improved solutions could be adversely impacted and our business would be negatively affected.

Industry consolidation may result in increased competition, which could result in a loss of customers or a reduction in revenue.

Some of our competitors have made or may make acquisitions or may enter into partnerships or other strategic relationships to offer more comprehensive services than they individually had offered or achieve greater economies of scale. In addition, new entrants not currently considered to be competitors may enter our market through acquisitions, partnerships or strategic relationships. We expect these trends to continue as companies attempt to strengthen or maintain their market positions. The potential entrants may have competitive advantages over us, such as greater name recognition, longer operating histories, more varied services and larger marketing budgets, as well as greater financial, technical and other resources. The companies resulting from combinations or that expand or vertically integrate their business to include the market that we address may create more compelling service offerings and may offer greater pricing flexibility than we can or may engage in business practices that make it more difficult for us to compete effectively, including on the basis of price, sales and marketing programs, technology or service functionality. These pressures could result in a substantial loss of our customers or a reduction in our revenue.

Our business could be negatively impacted by cyber security threats, attacks and other disruptions

Like others in our industry, we continue to face advanced and persistent attacks on our information infrastructure where we manage and store various proprietary information and sensitive/confidential data relating to our operations. These attacks may include sophisticated malware (viruses, worms, and other malicious software programs) and phishing emails that attack our products or otherwise exploit any security vulnerabilities. These intrusions sometimes may be zero-day malware that are difficult to identify because they are not included in the signature set of commercially available antivirus scanning programs. Experienced computer programmers and hackers may be able to penetrate our network security and misappropriate or compromise our confidential information or that of our customers or other third-parties, create system disruptions, or cause shutdowns. Additionally, sophisticated software and applications that we produce or procure from third-parties may contain defects in design or manufacture, including "bugs" and other problems that could unexpectedly interfere with the operation of the information infrastructure. A disruption, infiltration or failure of our information infrastructure systems or any of our data centers as a result of software or hardware malfunctions, computer viruses, cyber attacks, employee theft or misuse, power disruptions, natural disasters or accidents could cause breaches of data security, loss of critical data and performance delays, which in turn could adversely affect our business.

If we do not respond to technological changes or upgrade our websites and technology systems, our growth prospects and results of operations could be adversely affected

To remain competitive, we must continue to enhance and improve the functionality and features of our websites and technology infrastructure. As a result, we will need to continue to improve and expand our hosting and network infrastructure and related software capabilities. These improvements may require greater levels of spending than we have experienced in the past. Without such improvements, our operations might suffer from unanticipated system disruptions, slow application performance or unreliable service levels, any of which could negatively affect our reputation and ability to attract and retain customers and contributors. Furthermore, in order to continue to attract and retain new customers, we are likely to incur expenses in connection with continuously updating and improving our user interface and experience. We may face significant delays in introducing new services, products and enhancements. If competitors introduce new products and services using new technologies or if new industry standards and practices emerge, our existing websites and our proprietary technology and systems may become obsolete or less competitive, and our business may be harmed. In addition, the expansion and improvement of our systems and infrastructure may require us to commit substantial financial, operational and technical resources, with no assurance that our business will improve.

Lack of Operating History.

The Company is newly formed and, accordingly, has little or no operating history upon which potential investors can evaluate the Company's likely performance. Although the users, customers, and affiliates of the Company may have experience in the Self Storage, IT and related technologies, there can be no assurance that the performance of those activities will be reflective of the future performance of the Company. There is no assurance that the past performance by the Directors, Officers, the Founders or any of their affiliates will be indicative of the Company's future results. In addition, there can be no assurance that the Company will be profitable or that investors will receive any distributions from the Company.

We Rely on a Small Group of Employees

The Company has a very small management team. The loss of any key employees could have a material adverse impact on our operations. Additionally, we expect that we could need to hire additional employees to scale our business and execute our growth strategy. There is no guarantee that we will be successful in identifying, hiring, training, and retaining qualified employees when and as needed.

Adverse Conditions

There can be no assurance that the Company will operate profitably. An investment in a Company's shares involves the risk of adverse changes in general economic conditions, as well as other factors affecting the Company.

No Voting Rights

Holders of Tokenized Securities of Common Stock ("Shareholders" or "Tokenized Shareholders") will have no voting rights in the Company other than as required by law. Holders of Tokenized Securities of Common Stock will neither have the right to vote on the deployment of capital, nor the management of the day-to-day operations of the Company. The management of the Company will be left to the sole discretion of the Board of Directors.

Side Letter Agreements

The Officers, Directors, and/or the Founders of the Company, when legally permissible, may enter into a side letter or similar agreement with a specific shareholder in connection with their admission to the corporation as a shareholder without the need for approval from any other shareholder. These side letters may modify or supplement the terms of the corporation's bylaws in a way that provides more favorable rights to that shareholder compared to other shareholders. Any rights or terms established in a side letter with a shareholder will only apply to that particular shareholder and will not require the approval of any other shareholder, regardless of any conflicting provisions in the bylaws.

Non-Disclosure Pursuant to the Securities Exchange Act of 1934

The Company is not required to provide disclosure pursuant to the Securities & Exchange Act of 1934. As such, the Company is not required to file quarterly or annual reports. In addition, the Company is not required to prepare proxy or information statements; our common stock (which includes the Tokenized Securities of Common Stock) will not be subject to the protection of the going private regulations; the Company will be subject to only limited portions of the tender offer rules; our officers, directors, and more than ten percent (10%) shareholders ("insiders") are not required to file beneficial ownership reports about their holdings in our Company; insiders will not be subject to the short-swing profit recovery provisions of the Exchange Act; and more than five percent (5%) shareholders of classes of our equity securities will not be required to report information about their ownership positions in the securities.

Federal and State Securities Laws; Absence of Regulation Applicable to the Company.

The Company has not registered this offering under the Securities Act in reliance on the exemptive provisions of Section 4(a)(2) of the Securities Act and Regulation D promulgated by the SEC. The Company also has relied on exemptions from securities registration requirements under applicable state securities laws. Investors in the Company, therefore, will not receive any of the benefits that registration may be deemed to afford. The Company does not intend to register as an “investment company” under the Investment Company Act pursuant to an exemption therefrom. The Officers do not intend to register as an “investment adviser” under the Investment Advisers Act pursuant to an exemption therefrom. Investors in the Company, therefore, will not have the protections that may be deemed to be afforded to investors under those acts.

The offering price for the Tokenized Securities of Common Stock have been determined arbitrarily by the company and may not be related to the assets or book value of the company or any other established criteria for valuing a business. The company makes no representation that the Tokenized Securities of Common Stock will have a market value equal to the offering price or that it can be resold at the original offering price

Additional Funds; Dilution.

The company may offer additional stock to affiliated real estate agents in the future, which may dilute the ownership percentage of existing Holders of Tokenized Securities of Common Stock, including current prospective investors.

No Assurance of Cash Distributions.

There is no assurance that the company will make any cash distributions from the underlying businesses it invests in or to the Holders of Tokenized Securities of Common Stock. Additionally, there is no guarantee that any cumulative cash distributions made by the company will equal or exceed the amounts invested by a purchaser of Class "A" Common Stock.

Leverage Risks.

To the extent the Company incurs indebtedness, principal and interest payments on such indebtedness will have to be made when due, regardless of whether sufficient cash flow or income is available. If payments on any debts and obligations are not made when due by these businesses, they may sustain a loss on its investment. Such a loss may result in substantial adverse consequences to the Company, including adverse income tax consequences.

Restrictions on Transferability; Lack of Liquidity.

The Tokenized Securities of Common Stock have not been registered under the Securities Act or any applicable state securities laws and may only be resold pursuant to the terms provided in §227.501 of Regulation CF. The Tokenized Securities of Common Stock are further subject to certain transfer restrictions contained in the Company’s Certificate of Incorporation. The investors in the Company have no right to require such registration. No public or other market exists for the Tokenized Securities of Common Stock, nor is such a market likely to develop. The Company does not intend to apply for listing of the Tokenized Securities of Common Stock on any securities exchange. The transferability of the Tokenized Securities of Common Stock is specifically restricted under the Certificate of Incorporation, which includes a provision requiring the Officer's consent before any transfer can be made.

Income Tax Risks

There are various complex federal, state and local tax considerations associated with an investment in the Company. The summary of these considerations set forth in this Memorandum is not intended as a substitute for careful tax planning. The income tax consequences of an investment in the Company are complex and will not be the same for taxpayers. ACCORDINGLY, PROSPECTIVE INVESTORS ARE STRONGLY ADVISED TO CONSULT THEIR TAX ADVISORS IN RESPECT TO THEIR OWN TAX SITUATION PRIOR TO MAKING AN INVESTMENT IN THE COMPANY.

The Company will be taxed as a Delaware C-Corp and expects to be treated as such for federal income tax purposes. Investors may have taxable income and income tax liability arising from their investments in the company, even in years when they receive no cash distributions. This tax liability will be an out-of-pocket cost to the investors.

Apart from federal income taxes, investors may also incur income tax liabilities under the state or local income tax laws of the jurisdictions in which the company operates and in the jurisdiction of the investor's residence or domicile. It is important to note that state and local income tax laws vary by location and federal, state, and local income tax laws are complex and subject to change.

Moreover, special income tax considerations may apply to qualified employee benefit plans and other tax-exempt entities. As such, investors should consult with a tax advisor to understand their specific tax obligations and liabilities arising from their investment in the company.

No assurance can be given that the Company's interpretation of the existing Federal income tax laws and Treasury Regulations will not be challenged by the Internal Revenue Service (the "IRS"), resulting in any increase in taxable income or a decrease in allowable deductions. In recent years, numerous changes to the Code have been enacted. These changes have affected marginal tax rates, personal exemptions, itemized deductions, depreciation and amortization rates, and other provisions of the Code. There can be no assurance that the present federal income tax treatment of an investment in the Company will not be adversely affected by future legislative, judicial or administrative action. Any modification or change in the Code or the regulations promulgated thereunder, or any judicial decision, could be applied retroactively to an investment in the Company. In view of this uncertainty, prospective investors are urged to consider ongoing developments in this area and consult their advisors concerning the effects of such developments on an investment in the Company in light of their own personal tax situations.

In evaluating an investment in the Company, a prospective investor should consider all of the tax consequences of the investment, including (i) "at risk" limitations, (ii) determination of an investor's basis in the Stock, (iii) allocations of profit and losses, (iv) interest expense, (v) disposition of the Property or Stock, (vi) organization, start-up and syndication expenses, (vii) risk of audit, (viii) imposition of penalties and interest, (ix) passive activity loss limitations, (x) depreciation, (xi) the possibility of tax liability on the Company's current operating income in excess of amounts that the Executives deems advisable to distribute, (xii) the possibility that state or local income tax treatment may be adverse; and (xiii) the possibility that there may be adverse changes in the income tax laws and their interpretation. Moreover, there is uncertainty concerning certain other of the income tax aspects of an investment in the Company, and there can be no assurance that some of the deductions claimed or positions taken by the Company may not be successfully challenged by the IRS. The Company will consider taking all deductions and positions for which there is support, even though it may be aware that the IRS might not agree. An audit of the Company's information return may result in the disallowance of certain deductions, an increase in the Company's gross or taxable income and an audit of the income tax or information returns of the investors that could further result in adverse adjustments to non-Company items of income, deductions or credits.

The Company will not seek a ruling from the IRS with respect to any tax matters described in this Memorandum, and it is unlikely that such a ruling could be obtained, if sought.

Conflicts of Interest

The interests of one or more of the Holders of Tokenized Securities of Common Stock and the interests of the Company may conflict from time to time. Although the Board of Directors and the Officers of the Company will devote as much time to the business of the Company as is reasonably necessary to manage and supervise the business and affairs of the Company and to accomplish the purposes of the Company, the Board of Directors, executive officers, and their affiliates, agents, and employees may engage in other business ventures, some of which may be in competition with the Company, or may pursue business opportunities whether or not arising from the conduct of Company business. The Board of Directors, executive officers, and their affiliates, agents, and employees may be subject to other obligations that affect their ability to perform their obligations to the Company.

Reliance on Officers and Directors

The Holders of Tokenized Securities of Common Stock will be relying to a substantial extent on the experience, relationships, expertise of the leadership of the Company, in particular, the Board, Officers, and Directors. The loss of the services of any of the key Officers or Directors of the Company could have a material adverse effect on the Company's operations. There can be no assurance that the Company will be able to attract and hire suitable replacements in the event of any such loss of services.

Lack of Management Control by Tokenized Shareholders

The Holders of Tokenized Securities of Common Stock will not have the right or power to participate in the management or control of the corporation's business. The corporation will be managed solely by the Board of Directors. For additional information, please refer to the Company's Certificate of Incorporation attached hereto as Exhibit D .

Limited Recourse

The Board of Directors, as well as their affiliates, employees, and agents, will not be liable to the Holders of Tokenized Securities of Common Stock for any loss, liability, damage, cost, or expense incurred as a result of any act or omission concerning the business or activities of the corporation, as long as they act in good faith and are not guilty of gross negligence, willful misconduct, or violation of fiduciary duty. As a result, Holders of Tokenized Securities of Common Stock may have a more limited right of action than they would in the absence of this provision.

Limited Employment of Counsel.

The legal counsel for the corporation does not represent potential shareholders in connection with the business of the corporation or any offering of stock, and such counsel disclaims any fiduciary or attorney-client relationship with investors. Potential Holders of Tokenized Securities of Common Stock should seek advice from their own legal counsel regarding legal matters. The corporation's legal counsel was not requested to, and did not attempt to, verify or confirm any statement contained in this memorandum and the exhibits hereto regarding the corporation or its affiliates.

Risks Related to the Securities

The Tokenized Securities will not be freely tradable until one year from the initial purchase date. Although the Tokenized Securities of Common Stock may be tradable under federal securities law, state securities regulations may apply and each Purchaser should consult with his or her attorney.

You should be aware of the long-term nature of this investment. There is not now and likely will not be a public market for the Tokenized Securities of Common Stock. Because the Tokenized Securities of Common Stock have not been registered under the Securities Act or under the securities laws of any state or non-United States jurisdiction, the Tokenized Securities of Common Stock have transfer restrictions and cannot be resold in the United States except pursuant to Rule 501 of Regulation CF. It is not currently contemplated that registration under the Securities Act or other securities laws will be affected. Limitations on the transfer of the Tokenized Securities of Common Stock may also adversely affect the price that you might be able to obtain for the Tokenized Securities of Common Stock in a private sale. Purchasers should be aware of the long-term nature of their investment in the Company. Each Purchaser in this Offering will be required to represent that it is purchasing the Securities for its own account, for investment purposes and not with a view to resale or distribution thereof.

Neither the Offering nor the Securities have been registered under federal or state securities laws, leading to an absence of certain regulation applicable to the Company.

No governmental agency has reviewed or passed upon this Offering, the Company or any Securities of the Company. The Company also has relied on exemptions from securities registration requirements under applicable state securities laws. Investors in the Company, therefore, will not receive any of the benefits that such registration would otherwise provide. Prospective investors must therefore assess the adequacy of disclosure and the fairness of the terms of this Offering on their own or in conjunction with their personal advisors.

No Guarantee of Return on Investment

There is no assurance that a Purchaser will realize a return on its investment or that it will not lose its entire investment. For this reason, each Purchaser should read the Form C and all Exhibits carefully and should consult with its own attorney and business advisor prior to making any investment decision.

A majority of the Company is owned by a small number of owners.

Prior to the Offering, the Company's current owners of 20% or more beneficially own up to 100.0% of the Company. Subject to any fiduciary duties owed to our other owners or investors under Delaware law, these owners may be able to exercise significant influence over matters requiring owner approval, including the election of Directors or Officers and approval of significant Company transactions, and will have significant control over the Company's management and policies. Some of these persons may have interests that are different from yours. For example, these owners may support proposals and actions with which you may disagree. The concentration of ownership could delay or prevent a change in control of the Company or otherwise discourage a potential acquirer from attempting to obtain control of the Company, which in turn could reduce the price potential investors are willing to pay for the Company. In addition, these owners could use their voting influence to maintain the Company's existing management, delay or prevent changes in control of the Company, or support or reject other management and board proposals that are subject to owner approval.

The Company has the right to extend the Offering deadline

The Company may extend the Offering deadline beyond what is currently stated herein. This means that your investment may continue to be held in escrow while the Company attempts to raise the Minimum Amount even after the Offering deadline stated herein is reached. Your investment will not be accruing interest during this time and will simply be held until such time as the new Offering deadline is reached without the Company receiving the Minimum Amount, at which time it will be returned to you without interest or deduction, or the Company receives the Minimum Amount, at which time it will be released to the Company to be used as set forth herein. Upon or shortly after release of such funds to the Company, the Securities will be issued and distributed to you.

There is no present market for the Securities and we have arbitrarily set the price

We have arbitrarily set the price of the Securities with reference to the general status of the securities market and other relevant factors. The Offering price for the Securities should not be considered an indication of the actual value of the Securities and is not based on our net worth or prior earnings. We cannot assure you that the Securities could be resold by you at the Offering price or at any other price.

Your ownership of the shares of stock will be subject to dilution.

Owners do not have preemptive rights. If the Company conducts subsequent Offerings of or Securities convertible into, issues shares pursuant to a compensation or distribution reinvestment plan, or otherwise issues additional shares, investors who purchase shares in this Offering who do not participate in those other stock issuances may experience dilution in their percentage ownership of the Company's outstanding shares. Furthermore, shareholders may experience a dilution in the value of their shares depending on the terms and pricing of any future share issuances (including the shares being sold in this Offering) and the value of the Company's assets at the time of issuance.

The Securities will be equity interests in the Company and will not constitute indebtedness.

The Securities will rank junior to all existing and future indebtedness and other non-equity claims on the Company with respect to assets available to satisfy claims on the Company, including in a liquidation of the Company. Additionally, unlike indebtedness, for which principal and interest would customarily be payable on specified due dates, there will be no specified payments of dividends with respect to the Securities and dividends are payable only if, when and as authorized and declared by the Company and depend on, among other matters, the Company's historical and projected results of operations, liquidity, cash flows, capital levels, financial condition, debt service requirements and other cash needs, financing covenants, applicable state law, federal and state regulatory prohibitions and other restrictions and any other factors the Company's board of directors deems relevant at the time. In addition, the terms of the Securities will not limit the amount of debt or other obligations the Company may incur in the future. Accordingly, the Company may incur substantial amounts of additional debt and other obligations that will rank senior to the Securities.

There can be no assurance that we will ever provide liquidity to Purchasers through either a sale of the Company or a registration of the Securities

There can be no assurance that any form of merger, combination, or sale of the Company will take place, or that any merger, combination, or sale would provide liquidity for Purchasers. Furthermore, we may be unable to register the Securities for resale by Purchasers for legal, commercial, regulatory, market-related or other reasons. In the event that we are unable to effect a registration, Purchasers could be unable to sell their Securities unless an exemption from registration is available.

The Company does not anticipate paying any cash dividends for the foreseeable future

The Company currently intends to retain future earnings, if any, for the foreseeable future, to repay indebtedness and to support its business. The Company does not intend in the foreseeable future to pay any dividends to holders of its shares of .

In addition to the risks listed above, businesses are often subject to risks not foreseen or fully appreciated by the management. It is not possible to foresee all risks that may affect us. Moreover, the Company cannot predict whether the Company will successfully effectuate the Company's current business plan. Each prospective Purchaser is encouraged to carefully analyze the risks and merits of an investment in the Securities and should take into consideration when making such analysis, among other, the Risk Factors discussed above.

BUSINESS

Description of the Business

Optimus Storage Network has as a main focus the existing and rapidly emerging Millennial and generation Z self storage market participants. These demographics are familiar with technology and prefer its use and convenience over traditional lead generating channels. Generally customers find a storage facility with a simple internet search of their local area. Optimus Storage Network focuses on technology features and positions itself to take advantage of these trends by offering a technology platform for self-storage facilities to market their facilities more efficiently with a unique blockchain solution. The Company intends to introduce a multi-chain solution for its blockchain based technologies. Smart contracts will be built in accordance to the designated blockchains for the multi-chain offering. For the avoidance of doubt, the Company's CEO and executives shall have the right to utilize various platforms or solutions to ensure a stable use environment and not be dependent on a single blockchain.

Business Plan

Optimus Storage Network's ("OSN") core business consists of the following: Self Storage Unit Locator marketplace– Optimus Storage Network will develop a web3 marketplace for facilities to list, market and rent units online. Customers will access this portal, promoted by OSN, and be able to search units based on location with a visible map and other search features, rent the unit, and pay for it with either credit, or crypto payment options we introduce via a 3rd party relationship. Marketing Ecosystem – This is a broadly defined category for Self Storage Operators and Customers to participate with Optimus Storage Network's overall strategy to make the experience of renting a storage unit more seamless, functional and profitable using the efficiency of the blockchain. Stable Coin – At the appropriate time and with proper regulatory approval, OSN will expand our reach with a fully auditable Stable Coin offering to further facilitate the cost savings of a crypto based payment solution geared toward and supported by the Self Storage industry. This step will require additional regulatory steps to ensure compliance with all Securities regulations.

History of the Business

The Company's Products and/or Services

Product / Service	Description	Current Market
Self Storage Unit Marketplace Locator	Optimus Storage Network is developing a web3 marketplace for facilities to list and market their facilities.	Self Storage customers and Owners.
OSN Blockchain integrations	Optimus Storage Network intends to sponsor real world facilities to help expand their current operations.	Owners, developers and direct investors.

The proceeds of this offering may be used for technological development and in building business operations as detailed above. Overall, the Company's objectives and use of proceeds may be subject to change based on various factors and relevant market conditions. These factors can include macroeconomic events, regulatory changes, and modifications to the business model, as well as other internal or external factors that may affect the company's operations or strategic direction.

Using blockchain technology, the Company will develop and distribute a self storage marketing service in a number of ways, such as (i) using smart contracts, the company will use smart contracts on the blockchain to automate the rental process for self storage units; (ii) allowing customers to enter into rental agreements with the company using smart contracts, which would automatically execute the terms of the agreement and facilitate the payment process in accordance with state and local laws; (iii) developing a decentralized self storage platform where the platform could facilitate individuals or businesses to rent out their storage space to others in need of self storage; and (iv) implementing a decentralized identity system whereby such system is used to allow customers to easily verify their identity and access their stored items using a secure digital identity.

Competition

The Company's primary competitors are Management software and marketplace apps creators and 3rd Party Management companies.

Due to the emerging nature of cryptocurrency and crypto markets competitors remain varied and dispersed. Direct competitors: crypto branding and services businesses. Since OSN focuses on bringing cryptocurrency into the industry which is currently dominated by management software companies offering property management, there is minimal direct competition relating to a blockchain based solution. However, the software companies that currently dominate the market are formidable with their reach in the industry. It is our intention to work with the existing companies and not directly compete in these areas, as we can add value to current industry products, increasing efficiency and cost savings to owners and users. Uniqueness: In addition to their experience in the Self Storage industry, the OSN founders are knowledgeable of cryptocurrency markets and the blockchain's efficiency. OSN also retains a first-mover advantage within the self-storage industry and is lean enough in size to be incentivized to pursue the desired target market as consumer demand evolves.

Supply Chain and Customer Base

Using the blockchain to run the self storage management system offers a number of benefits to the company and its stakeholders due to the existing technology readily available. We will not be dependent on a single blockchain or suppliers to meet the company's goals. For example, the blockchain could provide a secure and transparent platform for managing the rental process and tracking payments, as well as enabling the use of smart contracts to automate certain tasks. The blockchain could also potentially help to reduce the risk of fraud or errors in the rental process, as all transactions would be recorded on the blockchain in an immutable manner.

The Company intends on leveraging its current relationships in the Self Storage industry. The OSN Directors operate one of the largest private self-storage oriented groups on Facebook, which at the time of this writing, exceeds 16,000 members; nearly half of those members state they are direct owners of physical storage facilities (note: the results have not been verified).

Intellectual Property

The Company is not dependent on any intellectual property.

The Company intends to pursue trademark and copyright protection on all newly created intellectual property.

Governmental/Regulatory Approval and Compliance

Financial Regulations

In accordance with Section 404 of the Sarbanes Oxley Act of 2002, we are not obligated to and may be required to perform an attestation about our financial controls. There can be no guarantee that our financial controls are free from severe flaws or substantial material vulnerabilities. If and when it becomes necessary to carry out the system and process examination, testing, and remediation necessary to comply with the management certification and auditor attestation criteria, we anticipate incurring extra costs and diverting management's time to ensure compliance.

Cryptocurrency Regulation We are not able to predict the effect of any future regulatory change on the Company or cryptocurrency, but such change could be substantial and adverse to the Company or the value of the Shares. Any country, including the United States, may take regulatory action at any point in the future. Said regulatory action may significantly limit the ability to purchase, possess, store, trade, and/or utilize cryptocurrency, as well as, affect the ability to convert crypto currency into fiat currency. The limitation of ownership, holding, or trading in the Securities may also follow from such a course of action. Such a limitation may force the Company's closure and liquidation at a time when investors would be hurt, or it might have a negative impact on an investment in the Company. The Company may be deemed a "money transmitter." To the extent that the activities of the Company cause it to be deemed a "money transmitter" under the regulations promulgated by FinCEN under the authority of the U.S. Bank Secrecy Act, the Company may be required to comply with FinCEN regulations, including those that would mandate the Company to implement anti-money laundering programs, make certain reports to FinCEN and maintain certain records. Such additional regulatory obligations may cause the Company to incur extraordinary expenses, possibly affecting an investment in the Securities in a material and adverse manner.

Potential Legislation Current and future legislation, CFTC and SEC rulemaking and other regulatory developments may impact the manner in which cryptocurrencies are treated for classification and clearing purposes. In particular, cryptocurrencies may not be excluded from the definition of "commodity future" or "security" by such future CFTC and SEC rulemaking, respectively. As of the date of this Memorandum, the Company is not aware of any rules that have been proposed to regulate cryptocurrencies as commodity futures or securities and has taken efforts to ensure compliance. The Company cannot be certain as to how future regulatory developments will impact the treatment of cryptocurrencies under the law. Such additional registrations may result in extraordinary expenses of the Company thereby materially and adversely impacting the Securities.

Taxes Determining our allowance for income taxes and other tax liabilities requires a great deal of discretion. There are several computations and transactions that occur often in our organization when it is difficult to predict how much tax will ultimately be due. The final outcome of tax audits or tax disputes may differ from what is reflected in our income tax provisions, expense amounts for non-income based taxes, and accruals, despite the fact that we believe our tax estimates are reasonable. Any material differences could have a negative impact on our financial position and operating results in the period or periods for which the determination is made.

INDEPENDENT AUDITORS' REPORT

The Board of Directors

Optimus Storage Network, Inc.

8 The Green, STE A

Dover, DE 19901

REPORT ON FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

I have audited the consolidated balance sheets of Optimus Storage Network, Inc. as of February 28, 2023 and the related statements of operations, changes in owner's equity and cash flows for the period then ended. These financial statements are the responsibility of the Company's management.

MANAGEMENT'S RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

Management is responsible for the preparation and fair presentation of these financial statements in accordance with principles generally accepted in the United States of America; this includes the design, implementation, and maintenance of internal control relevant to the preparation of financial statements that are free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error.

AUDITOR'S RESPONSIBILITY

My responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on my audits. I conducted my audits in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards as accepted in the United States of America. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement.

An audit includes performing procedures to obtain audit evidence about the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. The procedures selected depend on the auditor's judgment, including the assessment of risks of material misstatements of the financial statements, whether due to fraud or error. In making those risk assessments, the auditor considers internal control relevant to the Company's preparation and fair presentation of the financial statements in order to design audit procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances, but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the effectiveness of the Company's internal control. Accordingly, I express no such opinion.

An audit also includes evaluating appropriateness of accounting policies used and the reasonableness of significant accounting estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall presentation of the financial statements. Examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements.

An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation.

I believe that the audit evidence I have obtained is sufficient and appropriate to provide a basis for my audit opinion.

OPINION

In my opinion, the financial statements referred to above present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of Optimus Storage Network, Inc. as of February 28, 2023, and the results of operations, changes in owner's equity and cash flows for the period then ended in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America.

EMPHASIS OF MATTER PARAGRAPH

The accompanying financial statements have been prepared assuming that the company will continue as going concern. As discussed in note 2 the Company has incurred cumulative net losses of $(69,630) and negative cash flow from operations since incorporation and funded from the Principals of the Company to date in anticipation of a capital raise. This raises substantial doubt about the company's ability to continue as going concern if operations rely solely on continued capital input from the principals. Management plan is also explained in note 2, our opinion is not modified with respect to this matter.
