

CareerGenie is led by a strong CEO and CTO. They've done a good job early on of building an impressive product and finding very early traction. Last week, they decided to launch a WeFunder campaign which I think is a good strategy for its story, early stage, and today's tough edtech fundraising landscape.

If you have the bandwidth, I'd love to catch up and get your feedback on the campaign (<https://wefunder.com/careergenie>).

I'm also thinking about how to spend my next couple of months as the company builds up more funding/traction. Let me know if you're up for a catch-up and when would be best for you!

Wishing you a great week!