Dear Fellow Shareholder,

Like many of you, the Rice Team, which owns more than 3% of EQT's common stock, is extremely disappointed by EQT's poor performance and failure to derive substantial value from the Rice Energy merger. Last week, EQT stock traded at a ten-year low. Change is urgently required.

EQT shareholders have lost 48% on a Total Shareholder Return basis since the Rice Energy merger¹

At EQT's Annual Meeting of Shareholders on July 10, 2019, you will be asked to make an important decision regarding the future of EQT. For EQT to realize its full potential, EQT needs new vision and new leadership. That is why we are asking you to support our six exceptional new directors, plus Daniel J. Rice IV, who is currently on the EQT Board.

EQT shareholders have a unique opportunity to choose a proven business plan and CEO. The Rice Team believes voting for its nominees offers EQT shareholders the benefit of a highly qualified and experienced leadership team that substantially outperformed its peers while running Rice Energy, a proven plan the team has executed before, and the prospect of driving costs down significantly to create value and ensure sustainability. By contrast, the EQT nominees are supporting an unproven leadership team that was promoted through questionable processes and is proposing a plan that lacks even the ambition to match the cost structure of peers.

We encourage you to read the enclosed material carefully and visit www.EQTPathForward.com for additional information, including our 188-page presentation to EQT shareholders.

It is time for change at EQT. EQT shareholders need a new leadership team and plan to realize the potential of EQT's world-class asset base and the Rice Energy merger.

WE URGE YOU TO VOTE THE WHITE UNIVERSAL PROXY CARD FOR PROVEN TRANSFORMATIONAL CHANGE. VOTE FOR ALL SEVEN OF THE RICE TEAM'S NOMINEES AND THE FIVE EQT NOMINEES SUPPORTED BY THE RICE TEAM

Sincerely,
The Rice Team

EQT's Announced Turnaround Plan Will Not Maximize Returns and is Dependent on Higher Gas Prices

EQT's grand plan to improve the Company's free cash flow is essentially a generic 10% cost-cutting plan. EQT's plan depends heavily on reducing growth rates (and growth capex) and headcount. Importantly, it does not fundamentally change the way century-old EQT does business. Even the Company has described the plan as going after the "low-hanging fruit."

EQT's plan will not make the transformative shifts that are required for EQT to maximize value. The Company's plan also does not address a number of the glaring operational issues, including the fact that it is losing its core leaseholds to competitors because EQT is allowing leases to expire. More generally, EQT has effectively abandoned the promised efficiencies, processes and technology it acquired with the Rice Energy acquisition.

The result is a "plan" that is dependent upon natural gas prices rising much higher than the market current anticipates instead of a plan that lowers EQT's operating costs. If gas prices do not increase as EQT hopes, EQT will be unable to return any cash to shareholders until 2023 without exceeding its target leverage. EQT is so dependent upon its unjustifiable natural gas pricing assumptions, that if those assumptions do not come true, EQT will produce 45% less free cash flow than it is currently projecting.

The Rice Team's Plan Fundamentally Transforms EQT into a Modern, Efficient and Sustainable Business

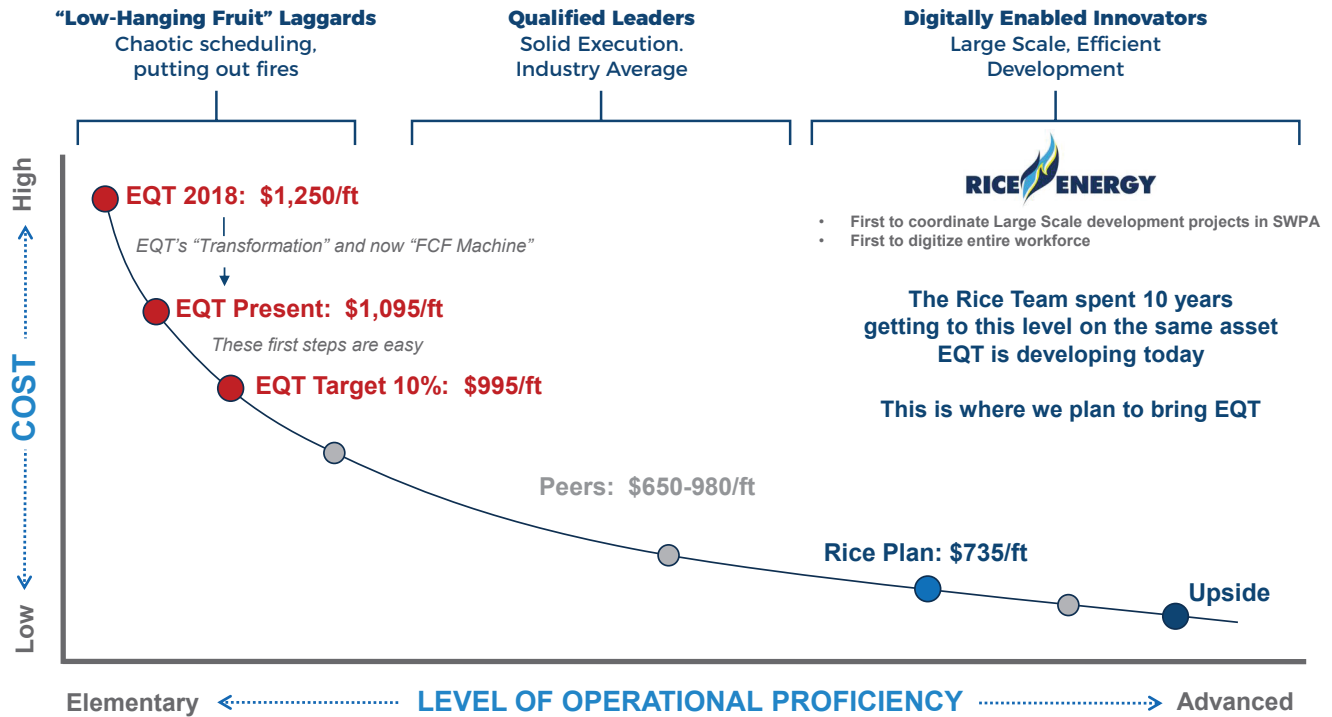

In contrast to EQT's "low-hanging fruit" plan, the Rice Team's plan fundamentally transforms EQT by focusing on Organization, Technology and Operations with a purpose of lowering well costs to levels achieved previously by Rice Energy and EQT's peers today. Our plan will generate an incremental $500 million of FCF annually above the Company's announced January 2019 free cash flow guidance and will create a sustainable business and stable balance sheet even if natural gas prices decline.

Category	EQT's Problem Today	The Rice Team Solution
Organization	Vertical, uninspired and restricted employee base	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> » Ensure we have the most qualified people » Build culture to align with vision » Structure workforce to ensure accountability and collaboration
Technology	Outdated systems/spreadsheets	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> » Digitally connect workforce to streamline "Insight to Action" » Leverage oilfield tech to evolve field operations » Unleash innovation at scale
Operations	Chaotic scheduling, poor well design. Scale used as a crutch	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> » Effective planning to execute large-scale development projects » Execute proven well designs on time and on budget » Leverage EQT's scale to lower per unit costs

The Rice Team's Plan Requires New Leadership to Implement

Unlike EQT's plan, the Rice Team's plan aims to achieve a market-leading cost structure, equal to the cost levels achieved by the Rice Team when they were running Rice Energy. To achieve that cost structure, EQT needs to move to large-scale, efficient well development programs enabled by technology and leading business processes.

If the Rice Team plan is implemented, EQT will achieve costs substantially below those anticipated by EQT's current plan. In fact, we believe EQT will become the low-cost leader in the Appalachian Basin.

The Rice Team has nominated seven accomplished professionals and is supporting five of EQT's nominees.

EQT has been a perennial underperformer, having generated poor returns for shareholders over the last one-, three- and five-years. The stock currently trades near its 10-year low.

EQT'S Performance has Lagged Peers* and Relevant Indexes

* Source: FactSet. Peer Index includes AR, CNX, COG, RRC, SWN. Through December 9, 2018 (day before Rice Team first public engagement with EQT).

This stock price underperformance is the direct result of poor operating performance and a lack of efficiency. On average, EQT drills wells that are less productive than its peers in the same region and which cost more to drill. In an industry in which efficiency is critical to ensuring sustainability in all pricing environments, EQT's failure to adopt technology, efficient processes and large-scale development techniques has left it behind its peers.

EQT'S Operating Performance on Relevant Metrics Lags Peers
