Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

Cash and Cash Equivalents

The Company considers all time deposits held in banks with initial terms of maturity at three months or less to be cash equivalents for the purposes of the statement of financial condition. Cash and securities segregated under Federal and other regulations are not treated as cash or cash equivalents.

Revenue Recognition

Brokerage commissions for executing transactions are recognized as revenue at the point in time the associated service is fulfilled which is based on the trade date because that is when the Company believes the underlying financial instrument or purchaser is identified, the pricing is agreed upon and the risks and rewards of ownership have been transferred to/from the customer. Commissions received from the sale of direct mutual funds, variable annuities and other insurance products are recognized at the time the associated service is fulfilled.

Estimates

The presentation of financial statements in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of revenue and expenses during the reporting period. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

The Company is engaged in various trading and brokerage activities in which counter-parties primarily include broker-dealers, banks, and other financial institutions.
