Financial planning and consultation services include meeting with the client to draft a plan that includes a detailed analysis and recommendation that may encompass specific areas such as net worth, budget and cash flow, income tax, educational analysis, insurance and risk management, retirement, estate planning and investment analysis. The Company charges an agreed upon fee for financial planning services between the client and the investment advisory representative (“IAR”). Financial consultations require an itemized invoice and are based on an hourly rate. The Company’s performance obligation is considered complete once the plan is delivered to the client. Financial planning and consultation fee revenue is reported within investment advisor fee income in the statement of operations.

1. Organization and Significant Accounting Policies (continued)

RIA Advisory Fees:

Registered investment advisory (“RIA”) services are offered by the Company through agreements with third party investment advisors (“Advisor”). The Company’s performance obligation is for the IAR to recommend the investment advisory services of the advisor. The IAR may serve as a liaison between the advisor and the client. Advisory fees are earned as a percentage of assets under management (“AUM”) and may be received by the Company in either advance or arrears depending on the terms of the agreement with the advisor. Revenue from fees paid in advance are recognized over time. Revenue from fees paid in arrears are deemed variable consideration and recognized when they can be estimated without risk of significant reversal since the amount to be received is highly susceptible to factors outside of the Company’s influence such as market volatility, asset movement and investor behavior. Pro-rated chargebacks can occur when advisory fees are paid in advance. An estimated allowance, based upon historical experience, has been established to account for chargebacks. RIA advisory fee revenue is reported within investment advisor fee income in the statement of operations.

Annuities:

Annuities from various insurance companies for which the Company has selling agreements are offered for end investors to purchase. Introducing the investor to the insurance company is considered the main performance obligation of the selling agreement with the insurance company. The Company evaluates the needs of the investor, gathers all necessary documentation and completes a suitability review. The Company’s performance obligation is considered complete once the insurance policy has been issued and delivered to the investor. Annuity commissions are paid to the Company based upon a percentage of the investment amount per the selling agreement between the Company and the insurance company. Annuity commissions are reported within commissions and fees in the statement of operations.

General Securities:

The Company is an introducing broker dealer and has entered into a fully disclosed clearing agreement with Pershing, LLC (“Clearing Firm”). The Clearing Firm is responsible for clearance, custody, trade confirmations and providing monthly investor account statements while the Company’s performance obligation is to provide the Clearing Firm with an investor in order to execute and complete a sale. The Clearing Firm compensates the Company by paying a commission upon submission of purchases and sales. The Company offers mutual funds, unit investment trusts, exchange traded funds, REIT’s, certificate of deposits, stocks, bonds and investment advisory services for purchase through the Clearing Firm. With exception of mutual funds and investment advisory services, revenue from the sale of Clearing Firm related products are considered general securities. The Company recognizes revenue at the point in time that it satisfies a performance obligation by transferring a promised service to an investor. The service is considered transferred when the investor obtains control of that asset, which is at the trade date. General securities commission revenue is reported within commissions and fees in the statement of operations.

The accompanying notes are an integral part of these financial statements.

Mutual Funds:

Mutual funds and 529 plans are offered by the Company for purchase by investors on a fully disclosed basis. Purchases and sales may be made through the Company either directly with the fund company or through the Clearing Firm. The Company's performance obligation is to provide a suitable investor to the fund company after completing all regulatory requirements. Fund companies compensate the Company based on a percentage of the investment amount as stated in the fund prospectus. The Company recognizes mutual fund commissions at the point in time that it satisfies a performance obligation by transferring a promised service to an investor. An asset is transferred when the investor obtains control of that asset, which is at the trade date. Mutual fund commissions are reported within commissions and fees in the statement of operations.

12b-1 Fees and Trails:

The Company receives variable consideration in the form of 12b-1 fees under Rule 12b-1 of the Investment Company Act of 1940. These fees are considered constrained and are only included in the Company's financial statements to the extent that it is probable and that a significant reversal in the amount of cumulative revenue recognized will not occur when uncertainties such as market volatility, asset movement and investor behavior associated with the variable consideration is subsequently received. Revenue from 12b-1 fees are reported within commissions and fees in the statement of operations.

The Company receives variable consideration from trailing commissions. Revenue from fees paid in arrears are deemed variable consideration and recognized when they can be estimated without risk of significant reversal since the amount to be received is highly susceptible to factors outside of the Company's influence such as market volatility, asset movement and investor behavior. Trailing commissions are reported within commissions and fees in the statement of operations.

Revenue Sharing:

AUL variable products include separate accounts that allow investors to choose from an array of funds within investment categories according to their desire for risk tolerance and performance. AUL performs administrative services such as recordkeeping, sub-accounting services, pricing and plan enrollment while the Company acts as the distributor for the variable products offered by AUL. As distributor, the Company's obligations may include distributing prospectuses, sales literature and advertising materials and as a result, receives 12b-1 fees from the funds for marketing and distribution. Revenue sharing fees are a popular method for collecting all or a portion of the plan administrative fees performed by AUL through the plan's investment options. Revenue sharing can consist of 12b-1 fees, but can also consist of payments for record keeping services ("Sub-TA fees"), administrative and other fees. Fund companies compensate the Company according to fee schedules within each fund's prospectus. It is our practice, internally among affiliates, to transfer the fees received by the Company to AUL. The 12b-1 fees collected for marketing and distribution are reported within revenue sharing income in the statement of operations.

The accompanying notes are an integral part of these financial statements.

Administrative Servicing Agreement:

The Company has entered into an administrative service agreement with AUL, whereby certain services have been agreed. The Company's performance obligation is to provide compliance and executive services. These services are ongoing and provided over the term of the service agreement. The amount that AUL pays the Company is calculated annually, expensed monthly and approved by the Board of Directors of American United Mutual Insurance Holding Company, the ultimate parent company of AUL. Over the course of the year, the Company recognizes the revenue received from the administrative services agreement in twelve equal periodic payments. Administrative service agreement fees are reported within other in the statement of operations. See Note 1, related party transactions, for additional detail.

Other:

Miscellaneous revenue items of lesser significant amounts are also earned by the Company throughout the year. These amounts are included in other within the disaggregated revenue table and primarily include marketing fee revenue from third party investment advisors ("Advisor") that are paid to the Company as a combination of a flat fee and or percentage of AUM. The fee may be deducted from the client account in conjunction with the monthly or quarterly RIA fee depending on payment terms per agreements between the advisor and Company. Not all agreements with advisors allow for marketing fees to be paid to the Company. The Company accounts for these fees as a single performance obligation since the Company is performing a series of distinct services that are substantially the same such as training, marketing, staffing and educating its advisors. Marketing fees are reported within commissions and fees in the statement of operations.

Related Party Transactions

AUL furnishes personnel, office space, legal counsel, information technology support and other related services to the Company through an administrative service agreement. This agreement specifies that a monthly payment be made by the Company. Consistent with prior years, the methodology for the determination of these costs is intended to approximate the actual costs incurred by AUL for providing certain services to the Company and is determined through the allocation of costs pursuant to AUL's standard cost allocation. For the year ended December 31, 2022, AUL provided services to the Company for which it earned and was paid $1,033,266. This amount is classified as an expense and included within general office expenses and administration on the Company's statement of operations. In addition, the Company provided certain compliance and executive services to AUL including the distribution of proprietary products, principal suitability review involving the sale of proprietary products and the marketing of such products for which it earned and was paid $1,667,025. Income paid to the Company is calculated by dividing the OAS infrastructure costs minus the Company's share of agent benefits by the number of individual and retirement services registered representatives to approximate the cost of providing services to AUL. This amount is classified as revenue and included in other within the revenues section of the Company's statement of operations.

Within the Company's statement of financial condition, the $63,185 classified as due to parent, net, primarily represents unsettled revenue sharing amounts and general expense items.

The accompanying notes are an integral part of these financial statements.

OneAmerica Securities, Inc.
December 31, 2022

1. Organization and Significant Accounting Policies (continued)

The Company monitors excess capital and as a result, may pay dividends to AUL. During 2022, the Company did not pay any dividends to AUL.

For the year ended December 31, 2022, the Company's statement of operations includes $10,042,006 of AUL revenue sharing income as well as $2,621,500 of AUL proprietary income from variable product sales commission, and $13,657 of insurance agency income, all of which are offset by an equal amount of expense. AUL proprietary and insurance agency income are included in commissions and fees within the revenues section of the Company's statement of operations.

Management Estimates

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with U.S. GAAP requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the reporting period. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

Financial Instruments

Management estimates that the aggregate carrying value of financial instruments (including receivables and payables) recognized on the statement of financial condition approximates their fair value. Financial instruments are short-term in nature, bear interest at current market rates, or are subject to frequent repricing. As of December 31, 2022, the Company did not hold any financial instruments.

Concentrations of Credit Risk in Financial Instruments

The Company's cash on deposit balance is held with financial institutions and exceeds current Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation limits of $250,000.

The clearing and depository operations for the Company's securities transactions are performed by a single clearing broker pursuant to a clearance agreement. Securities transactions are settled daily by the clearing broker. Because of this daily settlement, the amount of unsettled credit exposure is limited to the amount owed to the Company for very short periods of time. At December 31, 2022, the accrued commission receivable of $2,408,795 reflected on the statement of financial condition includes $98,932 representing an amount due from this clearing broker, whom is a member of a nationally recognized exchange. The remaining $2,309,863 consists of commissions and fees receivable from other third parties. The Company consistently monitors the credit worthiness of the clearing broker to attempt to mitigate its exposure to credit risk.

Contingencies

In the normal course of business, the Company is involved in certain legal proceedings or certain asserted claims are filed from time to time against the Company. Management does not believe that any pending legal proceedings would have a material adverse effect on the Company's financial statements.

The accompanying notes are an integral part of these financial statements.

OneAmerica Securities, Inc.
December 31, 2022

2. Net Capital Requirements

The Company is subject to the SEC's Uniform Net Capital Rule ("Rule 15c3-1"), which requires that the ratio of aggregate indebtedness to net capital, as defined, shall not exceed 15-to-1. The rule also provides that capital may not be withdrawn if the resulting net capital ratio would exceed 10-to-1.

At December 31, 2022, the Company had net capital, as defined, of $6,818,661 and $6,570,513 in excess of its minimum requirement of $248,148, and its ratio of aggregate indebtedness to net capital was 0.55 to 1.

3. Income Taxes

The Company is a member of a group that files a consolidated federal income tax return and may, depending on the jurisdiction, join certain members in filing consolidated state income tax returns. The Company is party to tax sharing agreements with AUL and OneAmerica Financial Partners, Inc, the parent company of AUL, that principally provide that the Company will pay or receive an amount equal to the tax on its current year taxable income (loss) generated. Such payments are made through routine intercompany settlements. Deferred tax assets and liabilities are determined based on the difference between the financial statement carrying amounts and tax basis of assets and liabilities using enacted tax rates expected to apply to taxable income in the periods in which the deferred tax asset or liability is expected to be settled or realized.

In accordance with the authoritative guidance on accounting for uncertainty in income taxes under U.S. GAAP, uncertain tax positions should be recognized, measured, presented and disclosed in the financial statements. This guidance requires the affirmative evaluation of tax positions taken or expected to be taken in the course of preparing the Company's tax returns to determine whether it is more-likely-than-not (i.e., greater than 50-percent) that each tax position will be sustained upon examination by a taxing authority based on the technical merits of the position. A tax position that meets the more-likely-than-not recognition threshold is measured to determine the amount of benefit to recognize in the financial statements. Differences between tax positions taken in a tax return and amounts recognized in the financial statements will generally result in an increase in a liability for taxes payable (or a reduction of a tax refund receivable), including the recognition of any related interest and penalties as a component of tax incurred. Any interest or penalties related to federal or state income taxes, if applicable, are recorded when incurred and included as a component of income tax provision in the statement of operations.

The statute of limitations related to the consolidated federal income tax return that the Company is a member of is closed for all tax years up to and including 2018. The expiration of the statute of limitations related to the various state income tax returns that the Company files varies by state.

As of December 31, 2022, management of the Company has reviewed all open tax years and concluded that there is no tax liability resulting from unrecognized tax benefits related to uncertain tax positions taken or expected to be taken in future tax returns. The Company is also not aware of any tax positions for which it is reasonably possible that the total amounts of unrecognized tax benefits will significantly change in the next 12 months. The net income tax expense for the year ended December 31, 2022, is as follows:

	Federal	State	Total
Current income tax expense	$ 1,022,056	$ 200,648	$ 1,222,704
Deferred income tax expense (benefit)	18,786	-	18,786

3. Income Taxes (continued)

The income tax payable net amount and deferred tax asset for the year ending December 31, 2022 is $1,059,543 and $121,387, respectively. The deferred tax asset is primarily composed of temporary differences related to non-deductible accruals. The Company believes it's more likely than not that it will realize the benefit of the deferred income tax assets, and therefore, a valuation allowance was not established.

A reconciliation of the income tax attributable to continuing operations computed at the federal statutory tax rate to the income tax expense included in the statement of operations, for the year ended December 31, 2022, is as follows:

Income tax expense at statutory taxrate (21%)	$ 1,081,895
Nondeductible expenses and other	1,083
State and local taxes, net of federal tax	158,511
Income tax expense	$ 1,241,490

4. Indemnifications

Under the Company's organizational documents, its officers and directors are indemnified against certain liabilities arising out of the performance of their duties to the Company. In addition, in the normal course of business, the Company enters into contracts with its vendors and others that provide for general indemnification. The Company's maximum exposure under these arrangements is unknown as this would involve future claims that may be made against the Company. However, based on experience, the Company expects the risk of loss to be remote.

5. Subsequent Events

Management has evaluated the impact of all subsequent events after December 31, 2022 and has determined that there were no subsequent events requiring recognition of disclosure in the financial statements.
