JCR considers personal integrity to be the most important hiring criterion for the analysts – as well as for other employees. For this reason, we conduct thorough background checks on each recruit or job applicant. Although background checks usually vary in form and substance, JCR may make oral inquiries to the recruit's or the applicant's former employers. With respect to professional skills and competence, we offer jobs to individuals with meaningful experience in credit analysis as a credit officer in a financial institution or a person with similar qualification. Additionally, every new recruit goes through a probation period of six months after being hired, during which time his/her qualification as a professional is carefully scrutinized.
