Construction Contracts, page 55

3. We note that you recognize revenue from your construction contracts under the costs incurred or the units of work methods of the percentage-of-completion method. We also note your disclosure that periodically, you evaluate the reasonableness of the estimates used in the determination of the percentage-of-completion, and if, as a result of this evaluation, there are modifications to the revenue or cost previously estimated, or if the total estimated cost of the project exceeds expected revenue, an adjustment is made in order to reflect the effect in the results of the period in which the adjustment or loss is incurred. Since a significant portion of your revenue is recognized using the percentage-of-completion method, a significant change in your estimates could affect the profitability of your business. In this regard, please expand your disclosures in future filings to provide the following:
 - The number of projects with upward estimate changes and the number of projects with downward estimate changes;
 - The range of increase in gross profit from each project and the range of decrease in gross profit from each project; and
 - The gross amount of favorable and unfavorable adjustments to construction contract estimates-to-complete for each period presented.

Please provide us with a copy of your intended revised disclosure.

6. We note from your disclosure that the gain recognized from the transaction with RCO “represents the difference between the fair value of shares of CONIPSA and COVIQSA and the fair value of the shares received in exchange of RCO”; however, your table indicates that the gain was calculated using the carrying value of the shares of CONIPSA and COVIQSA. Please advise. Additionally, please tell how your gain calculation considered the equity participation of other investors not associated with you.

Please cite the authoritative literature you relied upon in determining your accounting treatment and clarify why the “other disclosures required by IFRS 3, Business Combinations are not considered relevant.”
