Delivering a Stronger Southwest Airlines for Customers, Employees and Shareholders

Elliott Investment Management, one of Southwest Airline's largest shareholders, believes that Southwest represents the most compelling airline turnaround opportunity in the last two decades. Our goal is to restore Southwest's status as an industry-leading airline.

The Stronger Southwest plan calls for clear steps to improve performance for the benefit of customers, employees and shareholders, including:

- ▶ Restoring the efficiency required to continue offering low fares
- ▶ Modernizing the product offering to align with today's customer preferences and expectations
- ▶ Strengthening management capabilities to ensure strong operational performance
- ▶ Facilitating investment in technology and new assets to run the reliable operation that passengers and employees deserve

As one of the Company's largest investors, we look forward to collaborating with Southwest to restore best-in-class performance.

I would rate them as the worst-performing management team in airlines. This was a Company that has destroyed more value based on their own inaction than anyone else in the industry. They need to go.

Southwest's Response Shows the Need for New Leadership

Since we released our materials on June 10, 2024, Southwest's leadership has:

- Reduced second quarter revenue guidance – representing the eighth guidance cut in 18 months
- Adopted a shareholder-unfriendly "poison pill" to prevent Elliott from increasing its ownership above 12.5%
- Added a hand-picked new director in a clear effort to entrench the current Board and management
- Initiated disappointing third-quarter guidance continuing the trend of deteriorating performance

Southwest's response demonstrates how profoundly out of touch the Board and management are with shareholder sentiment and the reality of the situation.

The CEO is a headwind to a turnaround. Firing him is the tailwind.
