Summary Overview

- Darden announced that it has entered into a definitive agreement to sell its Red Lobster business and related assets to Golden Gate Capital for $2.113bn in cash
- The agreement is the culmination of a robust process to maximize the value potential of a sale or spin-off of Red Lobster and its real estate assets
- As part of this process, the Company and its advisors directly contacted a broad universe of potential financial and strategic buyers to purchase the Red Lobster business
 - In addition, a significant number of real estate buyers were contacted to facilitate attractive sale / leaseback financing for the purchase of the Red Lobster business
- In reaching the conclusion that this agreement is in the best interest of all Darden's shareholders, the Darden Board considered, among other things, that:
 - The all-cash consideration provides Darden with immediate and certain value to reduce debt and support its capital return objectives
 - The purchase price is approximately 9x Red Lobster's EBITDA for the twelve months ending April 27, 2014
 - The transaction provides substantial immediate cash for the Red Lobster business and eliminates Darden's exposure to future Red Lobster earnings risks and fluctuations
 - The Company explored several separation alternatives and the Board concluded that the agreement with Golden Gate Capital maximizes the value of the Red Lobster business and its real estate assets
 - The separation of Red Lobster from Darden will better enable the management teams of each company to focus their exclusive attention on their distinct value-creation opportunities
- Darden expects the sale of the Red Lobster business, which was unanimously approved by the Board, to close in the first quarter of FY2015, subject to customary closing conditions and regulatory approvals
- Despite lower total revenue following the sale of Red Lobster, Darden does not anticipate an increase in its general and administrative expenses as a percentage of sales

Key Details of the Transaction

Transaction Overview

- Total consideration of $2.1bn on a debt- and cash-free basis
- Purchase multiple of approximately 9x April LTM EBITDA
- Expected to close in the first quarter of FY2015
- Darden expects to receive net cash proceeds of approximately $1.6bn after tax and one-time transaction costs

Use of Proceeds

- Approximately $1bn of net proceeds will be used for debt repayment
 - Credit metrics expected to modestly improve post transaction
 - Investment grade credit profile expected to remain intact
- Approximately $500-$600mm of remaining proceeds will be deployed for a total FY2015 share repurchase program of up to $700mm

Other Considerations

- Transaction is expected to be accretive to Darden's long-term earnings growth
- Expect to maintain the dividend of $2.20 per share for FY2015
- Transaction will have a dilutive impact on FY2015 EPS

Robust Process to Maximize Value

WE RAN A BROAD MULTI-TRACK PROCESS WITH FINANCIAL, STRATEGIC AND REAL ESTATE BUYER PARTICIPATION TO MAXIMIZE THE VALUE OF RED LOBSTER

Background to the Agreement

- Beginning in early 2013, the Board undertook an extensive review of various strategic, operational and financial alternatives to address changes in consumer demand and improve performance
- In December 2013, the Board approved a plan to separate Red Lobster driven by the following objectives:
 - Enhance focus on separate and distinct opportunities to drive long-term shareholder value
 - Reduce volatility at Darden and downward pressure on Darden's sales, earnings and margin growth
 - Create stronger credit profile for Darden
- Following Board approval, the Company began exploring parallel paths for the Red Lobster separation, including sale or spin-off
 - Began potential buyer outreach in December 2013
 - Filed Form 10 for spin-off transaction on March 10, 2014

Sale Process with Strategic and Financial Buyers

- Broad range of parties were directly contacted and given the opportunity to participate in the auction process
 - Contacted approximately 70 potential strategic and financial buyers
 - A significant portion of parties elected to receive confidential information regarding the business and process
 - Narrowed group based on initial proposals
- After final proposals were received, compared and evaluated, the Board determined that Golden Gate's proposal was the value maximizing alternative

Red Lobster Real Estate Process

- The real estate process was designed to maximize value attainable in the sale process by facilitating attractive sale / leaseback financing for the purchase of the Red Lobster business
 - Contacted approximately 25 potential real estate buyers
 - Red Lobster's real estate portfolio attracted widespread interest
- Real estate buyer interest was assessed for several months in order to facilitate strategic pairings with buyers prior to the conclusion of the sale process
- The Company and its advisors paired American Realty Capital Partners with Golden Gate at the conclusion of the Red Lobster real estate auction process, which enabled them to submit a joint final proposal

Delivering on Our Previously Communicated Objectives

Objectives for Darden	Achieved by the Red Lobster Sale
Transform Darden's restaurant portfolio into two independent companies that can each focus on separate and distinct opportunities to maximize shareholder value	✓
Allow "New Darden" and "New Red Lobster" to better serve increasingly divergent guest targets	✓
Better align management incentives with financial performance	✓
Maintain the dividend	✓
Maintain investment grade credit metrics at Darden	✓
Avoid complexity that could derail Olive Garden improvement	✓
Maintain operational and financial flexibility	✓

Review of Transaction Rationale

What We Previously Said We Expect to Accomplish with this Transaction	How the Transaction Achieves this Objective
Higher and more consistent sales and earnings growth driven by expanding customer base and restaurant footprint	Darden, excluding Red Lobster, is expected to have higher sales and earnings growth
More balanced commodity purchasing profile	Reduced exposure to the volatility of seafood costs
Stronger free cash flow from reduced capital expenditures allows for increased share repurchase	Opportunity to reallocate capital from restaurant improvements to share repurchases – now approximately a $700mm program for FY2015
Lower variability in quarterly sales and earnings	Red Lobster has lagged the growth of other brands in the portfolio and exhibited greater earnings volatility
More quickly reducing leverage to improve credit metrics	Expect to pay down approximately $1bn of debt and remain committed to maintaining investment grade credit metrics
Sharper focus on same-restaurant sales and cash flow growth reinforced by changes in management incentive program	Management will be able to exert greater focus on the core concepts; addressing Red Lobster's challenges required a significant amount of management time
Optimizing Darden's real estate assets is a focus for the Company	The value of the Red Lobster real estate was monetized through a sale / leaseback in connection with the sale of the Red Lobster business

Return of Capital Will Continue to be a Priority; Nearly $4 Billion Returned to Shareholders over the Past Decade

Key Priorities for Darden Going Forward

- 1 Continue to execute our comprehensive Brand Renaissance Plan at Olive Garden, building on progress simplifying operations to enhance food quality and taste to improve the guest experience
- 2 Continue to develop LongHorn with a focus on leveraging national cable advertising to continue growing brand awareness
- 3 Remain on track to grow Specialty Restaurant Group total sales by more than $1.0bn over the next 5 years by unit expansion and growing our guest base through targeted social media
- 4 Selective investment in new unit growth to capitalize on white space opportunity and generate mid-to-high single-digit revenue growth and low-to-mid teen operating income growth
- 5 Remain disciplined with respect to capital allocation, limiting capital expenditures to organic growth and drive meaningful free cash flow growth to enable greater return of capital
- 6 Continued focus on reducing operating costs and G&A expenses as a percentage of sales despite lower revenues following the sale of Red Lobster
- 7 Refinements in management compensation incentives to enhance focus on same-restaurant sales and free cash flow
- 8 Assess additional real estate value maximization alternatives

Special Shareholder Meeting Considerations

- On December 19, 2013 Darden announced the Red Lobster process and garnered interest from numerous financial, strategic and real estate buyers
- Following Starboard's announcement that it would seek a special shareholder meeting regarding the Red Lobster separation, bidders strongly advised Darden that the uncertainty associated with a shareholder approval closing condition would be unacceptable given the time and financial resources required to explore a transaction and formulate a final bid
- On April 29, 2014 Darden received final bids for Red Lobster
- Darden's Board was faced with the decision of proceeding with an attractive transaction which had been developed over nearly six months in a process that created significant competitive tension, or effectively terminating the process
- Darden's Board concluded that the best interests of Darden and its shareholders would be served by proceeding with the sale
- In making this decision, the Board considered that:
 - The sale of Red Lobster was highly attractive both financially and strategically
 - The real estate investment climate is excellent and the debt markets are currently very strong
 - The competitive Red Lobster process would be extremely difficult to restart if it were significantly delayed
 - Delay would risk further decline in Red Lobster's performance
 - Delay could result in a less attractive acquisition price or a failed process
- In making its decision to proceed, Darden's Board gave considerable weight to the significant amount of shareholder feedback received
- The clear messages received from shareholders include the following:
 - Many shareholders have expressed concern about a spin-off of Red Lobster because either the spun-off entity's market capitalization will be too small to meet their investment guidelines or they are reluctant to hold Red Lobster shares for a potentially extended turnaround period
 - Many shareholders have expressed the view that an attractive sale of Red Lobster would be a favorable outcome for Darden shareholders
 - Many shareholders have indicated that, while they supported the call of the special meeting because of the desirability of increased shareholder input, they have not decided how they would vote at the meeting
