Note 1 – Business Activity and Summary of Significant Accounting Policies, page 34

1. We note your response to comment 2; you stated that the fee that you charge to your customers for the renewal of monitoring services is the same amount as the fee that is charged to your customers for the initial annual monitoring fee.

However, we asked you to compare the deferred portion of the total initial annual fees to the amount charged for the renewal of monitoring services. Please clarify.

Form 10-Q for the quarter ended March 31, 2008

2. We note your response to comment 8. Based on your description of how you performed your interim impairment review, actual and budgeted revenues for 2008 were less than those used in your goodwill assessment at September 30, 2007. Specifically, you indicate that revenues for 2008 were short $1.9 million or 4.4% and your net income line for 2008 was short by $0.2 million (using actual results through June 30, 2008 and budgeted amounts for the last three months). On page 22 of your Form 10-K for the year ended September 30, 2007, you disclosed the assumed growth rates used in your goodwill valuation analysis including an assumed sales growth rate of 15.3% for 2008 and that the estimated fair value of your reporting unit exceeded its carrying amount by approximately $4.3 million based on your assessment as of September 30, 2007. You also disclosed that a one percentage decrease in the sales growth rate would result in a $1.8 million excess of estimated fair value over carrying value of the reporting unit representing a decline in the excess of $2.5 million. This sensitivity analysis suggests that if the sales growth estimates used in your impairment assessment as of September 30, 2007 were adjusted to reflect the actual and revised projected growth in revenues based on the experience of 2008, the carrying amount of your reporting unit may exceed its estimated fair value. Please clarify how the shortfalls from your revenue projections were taken into account in your interim assessment of goodwill for impairment. Specifically address how the decline in the actual and projected sales growth rates for 2008 and beyond were considered in your interim goodwill impairment review.
