Claim for Exemption of Accountants Opinion

Per Section 240.17a-5(e)(2) financial statements and schedules contained herein are not covered by an opinion of an independent accountant because broker/dealers securities business consists solely of sales of investment company shares. All funds are payable directly to the investment company. Confirmations are sent directly to customers from the investment company. The above procedures are in accordance with Rule 240.15c3-1(a)(2)(vi) establishing activities of broker/dealers with minimum net capital of $5,000.00.

Gentlemen:

Enclosed is the 2001 Annual Statement of Financial Condition for John Magacs.

I hereby request approval by the Securities and Exchange Commission to continue submitting statements without an independent accountants opinion as the Securities and Exchange Commission has accepted in the past.

Reasons for this are stated in the "Claim of Exemption of Accountants Opinion" included in my statement of financial condition:

Per Section 240.17a-5(e)(2) financial statements and schedules contained herein are not covered by an opinion of an independent accountant because broker/dealer securities business consists solely of sales of investment company shares. All funds are payable directly to the investment company. Confirmations are sent directly to customers from the investment company. The above procedures are in accordance with Rule 240.15c3-1(a)(2)(vi) establishing activities of broker/dealers with minimum net capital of $5,000.00.

Very truly yours,

John Magacs
