To The Board Of Directors
M. Amarico, Inc.

I have examined the financial statements of M. Amarico, Inc. for the period ended December 31, 2001, and have issued my report thereon dated February 26, 2002. As part of my examination, I made a study and evaluation of the system as required by generally accepted auditing standards and Rule 17A-5 of the Securities and Exchange Commission. This study and evaluation included the accounting system, the procedures for safeguarding securities, and practices and procedures followed by the client in making the periodic computations of aggregate indebtedness and net capital under Rule 17A-3 (A) (11). Since the corporation claims exemption from compliance with Rule 15C3-3, I satisfied myself that all transactions were cleared through U.S. Clearing Corp. and no information came to my attention that the Corporation did not comply with this requirement. Rule 17A-5 states that the scope of the study and evaluation should be sufficient to provide assurance that any material weakness existing at the date of my examination would be disclosed. Under generally accepted auditing standards and Rule 17A-5, the purposes of such study and evaluation are to establish a basis for reliance thereon in determining the nature, timing, and extent of other auditing procedures necessary for expressing an opinion on the financial statements and to provide a basis for reporting material weaknesses in internal auditing control.

The objective of internal accounting control is to provide reasonable, but not absolute, assurance concerning the safeguarding of assets against loss from unauthorized use or disposition and concerning the reliability of financial records for preparing financial statements and maintaining accountability for assets. However, for the purpose of this report under Rule 17A-5, the determination of weakness to be reported was made without considering the practicability of corrective action by management within the frame work of a cost/benefit relationship.

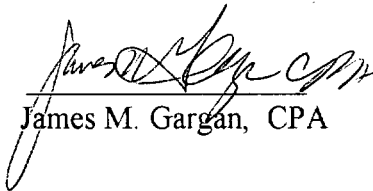

There are inherent limitations that should be recognized in considering the potential effectiveness of any system of internal accounting control. In the performance of most control procedures, errors can result from the misunderstanding of instructions, mistakes of judgement, carelessness, or other personal factors. Control procedures whose effectiveness depends on segregation of duties can be circumvented intentionally by management either with respect to the execution and recording of transactions or with respect to the estimates and judgements required in the preparations of financial statements. Further, projection of any evaluation of internal accounting control for future period is subject to the risk that the procedures may become inadequate because of changes in conditions or that the degree of compliance with the procedures may deteriorate.

CPA

My study and evaluation of the system of internal accounting control for the period ended December 31, 2001, which was made for the purposes set forth in the first paragraph above, that may have existed during the period, disclosed no weaknesses that I believe to be material.
