Management Appointments at Man Investment Products

Man Group plc today announces the following senior appointments at Man Investment Products, its fast growing Asset Management business, which is a leader in the alternative investment markets.

Chris Chambers has been appointed Chief Executive Officer of Man Investment Products with effect from 1 March 2002, with global responsibility. Chris joins from Credit Suisse First Boston where he was European Head of Equity Capital Markets. He brings with him a wealth of experience in managing financial businesses on an international scale.

David Huyton has been appointed Chief Investment Officer for Man Investment Products. David has been on the board of Man Investment Products for six years and has had primary responsibility for the investment management function of AHL (Man Investment Product's flagship fund) since 1995. David has been employed by Man Group and its affiliated companies for 15 years.

Christoph Moller has been promoted to Chief Executive Officer of Man Investment Products Switzerland with additional responsibility for sales and marketing activities (excluding USA). Christoph has served on the board of Man Investment Products since 1995 and was previously Chief Operating Officer of Man Investment Products Switzerland.

Stanley Fink, Chief Executive Officer of Man Group, said today:

"The Group has seen rapid and sustained growth in Man Investment Products, our Asset Management business. We are delighted to have Chris Chambers join Man Investment Products as CEO, bringing his considerable financial services management experience into the Group. Together with the internal appointments we have announced today we have in place a strengthened team to deliver our plans to grow the business."
