Internet Solutions for Small Business

Aloak and Execulink Join Forces to Provide Comprehensive Web Services

London, ON — May 16, 2002— In a strategic move that will benefit small- and medium-size enterprises (SMEs), Aloak Inc. will be offering its full complement of web services and applications to an expanded customer base through a strategic partnership with Execulink, Southwestern Ontario's largest regional Internet service provider (ISP). This partnership will enable Execulink's access/web hosting customers to take advantage of additional services such as custom web site design and diverse web applications.

Both Aloak and Execulink share a similar strength in anticipating the needs of their customers and providing the right solutions in a timely manner. When the Internet first emerged on the scene, both companies realized the potential for its future commercialization. While Aloak continued to address the problems SMEs faced in achieving a strong web presence in the e-commerce revolution, extensive market research conducted among Execulink's current business customers revealed a similar demand for affordable, web-based marketing solutions. With this alliance, Aloak and Execulink have positioned themselves as a "one-stop solution," helping SMEs stay competitive with a broad spectrum of web-related services that are both strategically on target and cost-effective.

"We look forward to offering Execulink's customers a strong assortment of web products and services that will strengthen their marketing effectiveness as well as enable them to replace traditional processes and simplify their business operations," says Clyde Beattie, Aloak CEO. "This partnership is good for us. It's good for Execulink. But above all, it's good for our customers."

"Our customers have come to depend on us for outstanding service and support," says Keith Stevens, CEO of Execulink. "Aloak offers a perfect fit with equally outstanding Internet services that will help us provide a total package to meet the unique requirements of our business customers."
