Attunity Announces Addition to Board of Directors

WAKEFIELD, Mass.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--June 11, 2002--Attunity Ltd. (NASDAQ: ATTU - News), a leader in business process, application and data integration solutions for the extended enterprise, today announced the appointment of Robert J. Majteles to Attunity's Board of Directors.

Majteles has been a successful CEO of three different high tech companies -- CAMAX Systems Inc., a mechanical engineering software firm now owned by Electronic Data Systems Corporation (NYSE:EDS - News); ULTRADATA Corp. a publicly-traded developer of software for financial institutions, now owned by John H Harland Co (NYSE:JH - News); and Citadon, Inc., a leading provider of collaboration software to the construction and engineering industries. Prior to these companies, Majteles was a merchant banker with Investment Advisers, Inc., a fund management firm located in Minneapolis, MN and a mergers and acquisitions attorney at Skadden, Arps, Slate, Meagher & Flom. Majteles received a law degree from Stanford University and a Bachelor of Arts degree from Columbia University.

"Rob comes highly recommended by Special Situations Fund, Attunity's largest investor. Rob has a proven history of guiding technology companies to success, including a company in which Special Situations Fund was a large investor. His experience, expertise and industry relationships add significant value to our team. We are extremely pleased to have attracted Rob to the Attunity Board," said Arie Gonen, chairman of the board of Attunity.
