TAMBO GRANDE PROJECT
FEASIBILITY and ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT STUDY UPDATE

Manhattan Minerals Corp. is pleased to provide a further update on the Feasibility Study and Environmental Impact Study (EIS) for the Tambo Grande Project in northern Peru. These studies remain scheduled for completion in mid 2002 and are being prepared by AMEC E&C Services Ltd. (for the Feasibility Study), and Klohn Crippen Consultants Ltd. (for the EIS). The Feasibility Study is one condition required to exercise the Option Agreement with the Government of Peru (Centromin).

The major technical components of the Feasibility and EIA have been completed, including mine planning and process engineering, concentrate marketing analysis, tailings design, and river engineering. Technical and socio-economic studies along the transportation route, including the port, are complete and are being incorporated into the draft document. A study of power supply and power-line routing has also been completed. A detailed characterization of the San Lorenzo irrigation system has been completed and will be used along with studies of the agricultural economy to provide baseline information for sustainable development initiatives.

The operating plan envisages a 7,500 tpd gold/silver plant being operated initially to process the oxide cap material. In the third year of operation a copper/zinc flotation plant will be commissioned and operated at 10,000 tpd using one grinding line, and then expanded in the fourth year to 20,000 tpd, after converting the grinding capacity of the oxide plant.

Operating and capital cost estimates are well underway and will be completed in the early part of June.

The Company continues to actively engage the local population in dialogue, through the community workshops it began in 2001. Since the beginning of this year over 600 participants total have attended in 25 workshops. In addition, presentations have been made to regional governments, Federal regulatory authorities and Governors, as part of the consultation process.

The socio-economic components of the EIS are the most critical to successfully developing the Tambo Grande Project. Detailed analysis of the regions social and economic systems is continuing, with the support of a range of Peruvian and international consultants including local Universities. Community Development and Resettlement Planning continues to be an important aspect of the project.

Manhattan is committed to developing the Tambo Grande Project with full community participation and involvement.
