chinadotcom's Ion Global selected by Land Registry for England & Wales to develop its websites

Strategic and User Experience skills and China/Australia synergies key to second e-government win

[Hong Kong, June 13, 2002] chinadotcom corporation (NASDAQ: CHINA; Website: www.corp.china.com), a leading integrated Internet company in Asia, today announced that its business unit, Ion Global, has been selected as preferred supplier by the Land Registry for England and Wales to assist with the development of its websites.

On the back of Ion Global's first UK government win in November 2001, this engagement further showcases the strength of Ion Global's all-around capabilities. This project will leverage Ion Global's expertise in strategy, user experience, technology and marketing, to develop a variety of websites to support the launch of Land Registry's ten-year strategic plan and the official consultation on an electronic conveyancing system. This will lay the foundation for the development of an online strategy to improve and refine the services and tools available on these websites.

The key factors in securing this appointment, which came after winning a strongly contested bid, was Ion Global's combination of strategy, user experience and marketing skills centered in the UK supported by robust technical capabilities and competitive cost structure from its Australia and China offices. The Land Registry is the second successive UK Government win and another example of how Ion Global's 'Asian led footprint with global reach' strategy works in practice.

The aim of the Land Registry's e-conveyancing program is to develop a fully automated e-conveyancing system for England and Wales. It represents a historic change in a fundamental pillar of the UK economy – land ownership.

Tim Moore, Managing Director of Ion Global UK, said, "We are delighted the talent we have assembled is proving the right mix to invigorate UK e-government initiatives." Moore added, "We look forward to further leveraging our unique asset base to help our clients build more productive relationships with their customers."

"We are pleased to see another UK Government project win by our Ion Global UK office," said Dr. Raymond Ch'ien, Executive Chairman of chinadotcom corporation. "This project further confirms the value we are realizing from the synergies built within the group. Our UK office understands the needs and local requirements of the client while our China and Australia offices provide the technical support and back-end service in a most cost-effective way." Dr Chi'en added, "It demonstrates our commitment in creating long-term shareholder value by offering the best technology solutions to a widening client base."

HM Land Registry is a UK Government Department, Executive Agency and Trading Fund responsible to the Lord Chancellor that keeps and maintains the Land Register of England and Wales. On behalf of the Crown, the Land Registry guarantees title to registered estates and interests in land in England and Wales. Established in 1862, it is required by statute to be self-financing and makes no call on public funds. The Land Registry has 24 district land registries in England and Wales, each providing land registration services for different counties and unitary authorities in the UK.
