Re: American International Group, Inc. - Omission of Shareholder Proposal Pursuant to Rule 14a-8

Ladies and Gentlemen:

This letter is submitted by American International Group, Inc. (the "Company") pursuant to Rule 14a-8(j) under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended (the "Exchange Act"), with respect to a proposal (hereinafter referred to as the "Shareholder Proposal") submitted for inclusion in the Company's 2002 proxy statement for its 2002 annual meeting of shareholders (the "Annual Meeting") by Mr. John Jennings Crapo (the "Proponent") (a copy of the Shareholder Proposal and accompanying supporting statement (the "Supporting Statement") are attached hereto as Exhibit A). In accordance with Rule 14a-8(j), six copies of this letter are attached.

The Proponent submitted an original shareholder proposal (attached hereto as Exhibit B), dated December 5, 2001, for inclusion in the Company's proxy statement for the 2002 Annual Meeting. Pursuant to Rule 14a-8(f), in a letter, dated December 20, 2001 (attached hereto as Exhibit C) (the "Objection Letter"), the Company notified the Proponent that his original shareholder proposal was in excess of 500 words and contained more than one proposal; the Company also requested that the Proponent establish his ownership of the Company's common stock. The Proponent responded by letter, dated December 29, 2001, and enclosed the Shareholder Proposal.

The Shareholder Proposal recommends that the board of directors of the Company (the "Directors") "arrange for a meeting of [the Company's] stockholders and proxies. As a committee of the whole to conference as an assembled meeting to meet for the following purposes"

1. to send a transcript of the meeting, and copies of the documents listed in the Shareholder Proposal, to United States Attorney General John Ashcroft, Commissioner of Internal Revenue Charles Rossotti, Commissioner on the Federal Trade Commission Mozelle Thompson, Securities and Exchange Commissioner Laura Unger, and New York State Attorney General Eliot Spitzer;
2. to "report comments on each document in the transcript and provide comments and name and other identification of each discussant"; and
3. to "provide in the next subsequent proxy statement a copy of all information sent to said officials and the report of the officials reply."

The Shareholder Proposal then lists twenty documents to be considered at the meeting (the "Materials"). The Materials comprise over 150 pages and include, among other things, a medical history of an unnamed person, lecture notes, various newspaper articles, medical forms and a letter of recommendation for the Proponent.

The Proponent's Supporting Statement asserts that the Company's shareholders

1. "have a fiduciary duty to obey SEC rules, regulations and laws"; and
2. "have a lawfully mandated duty to cooperate."

Based on the arguments below, the Company believes it may exclude the Shareholder Proposal from its 2002 proxy statement pursuant to Rule 14a-8(b), Rule 14a-8(c), Rule 14a-8(d), Rule 14a-8(i)(3) and Rule 14a-8(i)(5) under the Exchange Act.

Rule 14a-8(b)

Under Question (2) of Rule 14a-8, if the proponent is not a registered holder of the securities and if the proponent has not filed security ownership schedules or forms with the Securities and Exchange Commission (the "SEC"), then the proponent must prove that he or she is eligible to submit a proposal by (1) submitting to the company a written statement from the record holder of his or her securities verifying that, at the time he or she submitted the proposal, the proponent continuously held the securities for at least one year and (2) providing a written statement by the proponent that he or she intends to continue to hold the securities through the date of the shareholder meeting.

Buried in the Materials are the Proponent's monthly account statements from Advest, Inc. covering the period from November 1, 2000 up to and including November 30, 2001. Nothing in the Proponent's letter indicates whether these are part of the Materials to be considered by the Company's shareholders or whether these are in response to the Objection Letter. Assuming the latter, the last monthly statement, dated November 30, 2001, is twenty-nine (29) days prior to the date of the Shareholder Proposal. As such, the Proponent has failed to verify that at the time the Shareholder Proposal was submitted he continuously held the required amount of the Company's common stock for at least one year. See, e.g., Sysco Corporation (Publ. Avail. August 10, 2001) (proposal containing a computer printout of the proponent's account statement dated two days prior to the date of the shareholder proposal could not verify ownership status as of the submission date, as required under Rule 14a-8(b)). Therefore, under Question (2) of Rule 14a-8(b) the Proponent has failed to demonstrate that he is eligible to submit a shareholder proposal.

Rule 14a-8(c)

Under Question (3) of Rule 14a-8, a shareholder proposal may be omitted from a registrant's proxy statement if the shareholder submits "more than one proposal to a company for a particular shareholders' meeting."

The Shareholder Proposal appears to submit at least three proposals: (1) a request that the Directors call a special shareholders' meeting, (2) a demand that the Directors create a transcript of this meeting, transmit the Materials to various officials, and "report comments on each document in the transcript and provide comments and name and other identification of each discussant", and (3) a demand to include the transcript along with any responses from these officials in the Company's next subsequent proxy statement.

The staff of the SEC has repeatedly confirmed that a shareholder proposal violates Rule 14a-8(c) when it requests a company to take several distinct actions. See, e.g., Bob Evans Farms, Inc. (Publ. Avail. May 31, 2001) (proposal recommending the replacement of the current board of directors and the engagement of services of an investment banker to explore all alternatives to enhance the company's value could be omitted under Rule 14a-8(c) on the basis that it constituted multiple proposals); Fotoball USA, Inc. (Publ. Avail. April 3, 2001) (proposal to (1) appoint a special committee to find a buyer, (2) require that the chairman be an independent director, and (3) form a shareholders' advisory committee could be omitted under Rule 14a-8(c) on the basis that it constituted multiple proposals); Enova Corp. (Publ. Avail. February 9, 1998) (proposal to (1) elect all directors every year, (2) institute an "independent lead director", (3) submit all future changes regarding the election of directors to a shareholder vote and (4) apply these recommendations to any successor company, could be omitted under Rule 14a-8(c) on the basis that it constituted multiple proposals). By making at least three distinct proposals (as referenced above), the Proponent has submitted more than one proposal. Based on the foregoing, the Shareholder Proposal may be omitted pursuant to Rule 14a-8(c).

Rule 14a-8(d)

Under Question (4) of Rule 14a-8(d), a shareholder proposal may be omitted from a registrant's proxy statement if "the proposal, including any accompanying supporting statement ... exceed[s] 500 words."

The Shareholder Proposal incorporates the Materials which are over 150 pages long. As discussed above, the Materials are eclectic and include a 1982 letter of the Proponent requesting to take an exam late, the Proponent's December monthly planner and an undated Christmas card, and none of the Materials appear to relate to the Company, its Directors, its business or anything else that could be considered relevant to a subject matter of a shareholder proposal. However, it does appear that the Proponent desires the proposed shareholder meeting to discuss, in some way, the Materials and have the Directors send the Materials to various officials. While it may be unclear what the Proponent is attempting to accomplish with the Shareholder Proposal, it is clear that, in order to assess the Shareholder Proposal, the Company's shareholders need to have the Materials. Without the Materials, a shareholder would be unable to determine the purpose of the proposed special meeting. Almost all of the Materials are not publicly available and would not be accessible by a shareholder. As a result, it is clear that the Shareholder Proposal seeks to impermissibly incorporate materials into the Shareholder Proposal. See, e.g., Templeton Dragon Fund Inc. (Publ. Avail. June 15, 1998) (indicating that the reference to an internet website might violate Rule 14a-8(d)). Since the Shareholder Proposal has no meaning without the Materials, the Shareholder Proposal does, in fact, exceed 500 words and therefore may be omitted pursuant to Rule 14a-8(d). Based on the foregoing, the Proponent has exceeded the 500 word limitation and the Shareholder Proposal may be omitted pursuant to Rule 14a-8(d).

Rule 14a-8(i)(3)

Under Rule 14a-8(i)(3), a shareholder proposal may be omitted from a registrant's proxy statement if the proposal or supporting statement is contrary to any of the SEC's proxy rules. Misleading or vague shareholder proposals may be excluded under Rule 14a-8(i)(3) as contrary to Rule 14a-9. Exclusion on the ground of vagueness is based on whether the proposal is so vague and indefinite "that the shareholders voting upon the proposal or the Company would not be able to determine with any reasonable certainty exactly what action or measures the Company would be required to take in the event the proposal were to be implemented." See Scientific Atlanta (Publ. Avail. September 5, 1981).

As discussed above under "Rule 14a-8(d)", the Shareholder Proposal can be understood only by knowing the content of the Materials. Even reading the Materials, however, will not provide a shareholder a clue as to the purpose of the proposed special meeting. The Materials simply have no rhyme or reason. The staff of the SEC has permitted the exclusion of shareholder proposals that are a model of clarity when compared to the Shareholder Proposal. See, e.g., Tri-Continental Corp., (Publ. Avail. March 14, 2000) (proposal mandating that the company divest itself of stocks of corporations and other businesses which are organized in Germany, Austria, Italy or Japan until "just judgments" are made to victims of the Holocaust and their heirs and for "other inconveniences endured by the aggrieved" and their heirs could be omitted under Rule 14a-8(i)(3) on the basis that the proposal and its supporting statement were vague and misleading); Philadelphia Electric Company (Publ. Avail. July 30, 1992) (proposal to elect a committee of small shareholders to present a plan to the board of directors that "will in some measure equate with the gratuities bestowed on Management, Directors, and other employees" could be omitted under Rule 14a-8(i)(3) on the basis that it was so inherently vague and indefinite that neither the shareholders nor the company would be able to determine with any reasonable certainty exactly what actions the proposal required).

Rather than clarifying the vague nature of the Shareholder Proposal, the Supporting Statement only serves to exacerbate the vague nature of the Shareholder Proposal. The Supporting Statement consists of four sentences:

1. The horrifying attacks on New York City have appalled all stockholders;
2. All stockholders have a fiduciary duty to obey SEC rules, regulations and laws;
3. Shareholders have a lawfully mandated duty to cooperate; and
4. Approval of the Shareholder Proposal will make all shareholders proud of themselves.

These statements have no apparent connection to the Shareholder Proposal itself. At best, these statements might only serve to mislead the shareholders into believing that unless they vote for the Shareholder Proposal they have not found the terrorist attacks to be "horrifying" and that they will not be "proud" of themselves. Moreover, two of the sentences are legally incorrect. First, the Company's shareholders, have no "fiduciary duty" to obey SEC rules, regulations and laws. Second, the Company's shareholders have no "lawfully mandated duty" to cooperate with the Proponent.

Based on the foregoing, we believe that the Shareholder Proposal is misleading and vague and therefore may be excluded under Rule 14a-8(i)(3) as contrary to the SEC's proxy rules.

Rule 14a-8(i)(5)

Under Rule 14a-8(i)(5), a shareholder proposal may be omitted from a registrant's proxy statement if the proposal does not relate to the registrant's operations or business.

The Materials that the Proponent is seeking to discuss at a proposed special shareholders' meeting and send to various governmental officials simply have nothing to do with the Company's operations or business. The eclectic nature of the Materials provides no guidance as to the matters to be addressed at the proposed special meeting. Accordingly, the Shareholder Proposal may be omitted under Rule 14a-8(i)(5) because it has no relevance to the Company's operations or business. See, e.g., New York Times Company (Publ. Avail. February 8, 1993) (proposal requiring the company to disclose the position on legalized abortion with respect to each nominee for election as director could be omitted under Rule 14a-8(i)(5) [formerly Rule 14a-8(c)(5)]); General Telephone & Electric Corporation (Publ. Avail. January 7, 1980) (proposal requesting a ballot proposition that addressed the reduction of the rate of the personal income tax and indexation of the personal income tax brackets to allow for inflation could be omitted pursuant to Rule 14a-8(i)(5) [formerly Rule 14a-8(c)(5)] since the proposal involved matters which were not significantly related to the company's business).

Conclusion

In conclusion, the Company respectfully requests that the staff of the SEC confirm, at its earliest convenience, that it will not recommend any enforcement action to the SEC if the Shareholder Proposal is excluded from the Company's 2002 proxy statement pursuant to Rule 14a-8(b), Rule 14a-8(c), Rule 14a-8(d), Rule 14a-8(i)(3) and Rule 14a-8(i)(5). By copy of this letter, the Proponent has been notified of the Company's intention to omit the Shareholder Proposal from its 2002 proxy statement.

The Company is planning to mail its 2002 proxy statement to shareholders on or about April 5, 2002. We would appreciate a response to this filing in time to permit the Company to meet this schedule.

If you have any questions or comments regarding this request, please contact the undersigned (212-770-5123) or Eric N. Litzky (212-770-6918) of the Company.

Very truly yours,

Kathleen E. Shannon

Re: American International Group, Inc. ("AIG")

Dear Mr. Crapo:

This letter is sent to you in accordance with Rule 14a-8 under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, pursuant to which we must notify you of any procedural or eligibility deficiencies in your shareholder proposal, dated December 5, 2001 and received December 10, 2001, as well as of the time frame for your response, if any, to this letter. For the reasons set forth below, we believe that your proposal may be excluded from our proxy statement for our upcoming 2002 annual meeting of shareholders, unless these deficiencies are cured in a timely resubmitted proposal.

Under Question (2) of Rule 14a-8, in order to be eligible to submit a proposal, a shareholder must have continuously held at least $2,000 in market value, of AIG's securities entitled to be voted on the proposal at the meeting for at least one year by the date the proposal is submitted and must continue to hold those securities through the date of the meeting. While your letter states that you have held shares of AIG common stock for the requisite period of time, according to our registrar and transfer agent, you are not a registered holder of shares of AIG's common stock. Thus, you must establish your eligibility to submit the proposal in one of the two ways specified in Rule 14a-8(b)(2).

Under Question (3) of Rule 14a-8, you may only submit one proposal. It appears that your proposal may relate to two matters: (1) the calling of a special stockholders' meeting to discuss the implications of the September 11 terrorist attacks, and (2) a request for AIG to prepare a report on its findings, and include it in AIG's 2003 proxy statement. In light of this uncertainty, we request pursuant to Rule 14a-8(c) that you clarify your proposal.

Under Question (4) of Rule 14a-8, your proposal, including any supporting statement, may not exceed 500 words. Your proposal, together with your supporting statement exceeds 500 words. Thus, pursuant to Rule 14a-8(d), you must revise your proposal and/or supporting statement to limit the number of words to 500 or less.

Under Question (6) of Rule 14a-8, we are required to inform you that if you would like to respond to this letter or remedy the deficiencies described above, your response must be postmarked, or transmitted electronically, no later than 14 days from the date that you received this letter.

Very truly yours,

Dolan: I'll add local owners

By SCOTT VAN VOORNIS

New York cable tycoon Charles Dolan is pouring on the heat — and possibly the cash — as he heads into the final round of the high-stakes battle to buy the Red Sox.

In a possible bid to curry some grassroots Hub support, the billionaire Cablevision Systems chief yesterday vowed to add local owners and pledged to move quickly on a new or renovated ballpark if he wins the team.

A prime candidate to fill both promises, observers speculate, would be Frank McCourt. The developer controls a prime ballpark site near the

Suffolk County District Attorney Ralph Martin's

Bosley's failed 'coup' bloodless and brainless

Rep. Dan Bosley wants you to think of him as the knight in shining armor riding in on a white horse to the rescue of Reform.

Yeah, sure, his pathetic little insurrection against Speaker Tom Finneran is pretty much finished. The Taliban put up a stiffer fight than the "dissidents." And now Mullah Bosley is waddling off to his cave, denying that he ever had any plans to take on his close personal friend, the Speaker.

Funny thing about coups — they tend to be more successful if you don't announce your plans to the papers until after you're surrounded by tanks. But let's give Dan Bosley credit where credit is due. The solid who would take down Terrible Tommy Finneran is the holder of a new world's record.

Most money grabbed in per diems in a single year: $15,390.

See, the Box is from North Adams. That means he gets daily expenses for his commute. Until this year, Bosley got $45 a day every day he came to work. This year the reps doubled their own "per diems" on a voice vote — Box admits he was for it.

Who wouldn't be? Look at it this way. So far this year, the "reformer" has been paid $15,390 to drive to work.

How much have you been paid to get to your job? The old king of per diems was Rep. Peter Larkin of Pittsfield. But he's been in a slump — with 12 days left in the year, Larkin's only put in for $11,250 in per diems.

But Bosley has filed for his $90 171 times — for a total of $15,390. That puts him in the Guinness Book of World Records.

"Well, sure," he says, "because it's the first year of the new per diems. You know, I have the longest commute in the state."

It's a nice job, being a state rep from Berkshire County. Not only do you get $90 a day for driving to work, you also get over $46,000 in base pay, and Bosley collects another $7,300 as a committee chairman.

And he pays next to no federal income taxes on that $4 large — any rep in a state legislature who lives more than 50 miles from the state capitol gets a write-off of more than $135 a day for each day the legislative body is "in session."

Bosley: "Well, I pay some federal income taxes. How much? I don't know. I have someone who does my taxes."

This Bosley, he's not a terrible person, but he's lost touch with people who don't get paid $90 a day for driving to work. For instance, he says he's not a big fan of Clean Elections, the big goo-goo issue of the decade, which was passed by the voters in 1998.

"I said we should do Clean Elections because the voters wanted it."

But the voters also wanted an income tax cut, and they voted for that in 2000. But somehow it's OK to thumb your nose at that same electorate that wants Clean Elections if they want an income-tax cut.

"Consistency is the hobgoblin of small minds," he says. If Tom Finneran is so evil, how did Bosley vote on repealing the term-limit rule that would have gotten rid of the Speaker? He voted to get rid of term limits, which means he voted to make Mullah Bosley the speaker-for-life.

How does Bosley stand on changing the state constitution to ban prisoners from voting? He's against it. Somewhere, Willie Horton is cheering.

How does Bosley stand on letting cops stop you for the sole reason that you're not wearing a seat belt? He's for it.

Another thing about Finneran. If he's so mean and vindictive, when he got rid of his majority leader, how come Finneran handed the bum a lifetime sinecure as a court clerk. He deep-sixed his Ways and Means chairman — but the ousted rep's brother kept his hack job at Massport.

The speaker's Christmas party is tonight. I don't think Bosley will be going. I've invited Bosley to be on my show this evening, but please, Dan, don't drive into the city on my account. I don't want to be responsible for yet another $90 ride on the Treasury.

Top Massport

Kinton, Lawless were frequent fliers

M. Lawless, drifted between paid time off and plush travel to Arizona, South Florida, California and Helsinki, Finland, according to documents recently obtained by the Herald.

The well-funded downtime at oceanfront and golf resorts in the year preceding the hijackings was much greater than any travel and leave taken by Massport chief Virginia Buckingham — the only Massport official run out of the agency in the post Sept. 11 fervor.

For Lawless, demoted to Port of Boston security director by acting Gov. Jane Swift after repeated airport security lapses, the travel meant a lavish, $4,000 business-class trip to Finland and a long weekend at one of Vegas' top casinos.

For Kinton, promoted to head the agency after Buckingham's resignation, it was a swing through Denver to try out a new United Airlines flight simulator, a winter stop at a premier desert golf resort and a fall swing through the swank Montreal hotel made famous by John Lennon's 1969 "bed-in."

Both men took large swaths of the summer off, including most Mondays and Fridays in the summer months — when travel is often at its peak.

The trips cost Massport thousands and other than Buckingham, left mostly underlings to run the show.

Agency spokesman Jose Juves said the travel was sanctioned and meaningful, opening new doors to Massport managers on critical industry issues. Without the conferences, he said, Logan wouldn't ever achieve the lofty goals set recently by Swift's Massport reform commission.

"This is all in line with the Carter Commission's recommendation that Massport achieve a 'best in class' status," Juves said.

The public records, held for more than two months by Massport lawyers before their release last week, show a pattern of frequent flying by both Lawless and Kinton.

Both men took Massport-funded trips in nine of the 12 months before the attacks.

Kinton was out of town 15 times in that period, six for conferences in favored tourist areas on midday trips ranging in cost up to $2,000. Lawless took 10 out-of-town excursions, all for conferences or presentations.

Among the highlights for Lawless was a September 2000 four-day sojourn to Las Vegas for the Airport Law Enforcement Agencies Network Conference. In paperwork provided by Lawless for Massport honchos who approved the $1,200 trip, the association says working lunches would be provided to make sure enough is accomplished by day "to provide attendees with the opportunity to enjoy the many activities of Las Vegas."

In May, Massport spent nearly $1,400 to send Lawless to the four-day American Association of Port Authorities security seminar in Fort Lauderdale.

The next month, Lawless shuffled off to Helsinki — but only after Massport officials approved business-class airfare at a cost of $1,400 and the four-star Scandic Hotel Continental granted a special e-mail request from Lawless assistant Cindy Albanos: "Mr. Lawless prefers a king size bed." The conference cost the agency more than $4,000.

Kinton's travel schedule was even more hectic, including six trips to Washington — often including an overnight at the posh St. Regis Hotel two blocks from the White House.

In January, the aviation chief took a nearly $1,000 trip to Denver to tour a new United Airlines flight operations center — including in his receipts a $100 airport meal in Denver with United's Boston manager.

The next month, Kinton spent two nights at the luxurious Sheraton El Conquistador Resort and Country Club in Tucson, Ariz., for the Airports Council International winter board meeting. A little more than a week later, Kinton was off to Miami to speak at the Airspace and Airport Capacity Conference.

In March, April, May and June he flew to meetings with airport execs and congressional staffers — including one-day trips to Chicago and Raleigh, N.C. And in the days leading up to the Sept. 11 attack, Kinton was at the Airports Council International Conference in Montreal — spending $150 a night at the famed Fairmont Queen Elizabeth Hotel.

The high life didn't end off the road either. The last three years, Kinton has been a regular at the Legal Seafoods Restaurant at Logan — spending nearly $900 on lunches charged to Massport. In addition to a regular round of Friday/Monday holidays, Kinton took time off on two evenings to attend the FBI Citizens Academy.

Juves defended the travel as "invaluable in the ever-changing industry."

"There is a value in sharing information in the aviation industry, which is heavily dependent on emerging technology and evolving procedures and methods," Juves said.

When there is a crash or security incident, one of the first questions from investigators is whether officials attended any conferences or seminars on the subject, he said.

Industry officials outside Logan defended the worth of conferences, calling them critical for airports to keep up and stay competitive.

But at least one association whose conferences in Southern California and Arizona were attended by Massport higher-ups admitted they'd be no-shows in remote, boring locales.

"Yeah, there is criticism, but you don't want to have (conferences) in Bismark, North Dakota, in February because no one will come," said Todd Hayslip, senior vice president of legislative affairs for the 4,000-member American Association of Airport Executives.

Massport's security chief and aviation expert were out of the office on Sept. 10, the day before terrorists hijacked a pair of airplanes from Logan International Airport and crashed them into the World Trade Center towers.

The absence of both Public Safety Chief Joseph M. Lawless and Aviation Director Thomas J. Kinton was no surprise.

The out-of-town travel was typical of a summer that found Massport's top officials off junketing or on vacation through much of June, July and August.

Throughout the summer Kinton, Lawless and then-executive director Virginia Buckingham overlapped vacations, with schedules that sometimes left just one of the three top airport officials minding the store.

Kinton — often billed as the airport's workhorse — set the pace for vacation days, taking 14 days — nearly a third of the summer — off. That doesn't count the six summer days Kinton spent on publicly funded travel.

Lawless, banished to the Port of Boston in the wake of the hijackings, came in a close second, logging 21 vacation days on top of 10 days travelling on the public dime. Buckingham, a politically connected appointee forced to resign in the wake of the tragedy, was on the job most often last summer, taking just 13 days off from her high profile post.

Over the year, both Lawless and Buckingham blocked out plenty of personal time. Lawless' schedule includes a prohibition on early morning meetings Tuesday and Thursday, the day he drops his daughter, at kindergarten. Buckingham's schedule shows personal appointments almost every Tuesday and Friday morning.

Kinton, a longtime employee with a stockpile of vacation days, stretched every weekend in July and August to at least three days. He punched the clock on just a single summer Friday, heading home that day after a 9:15 meeting at the State House, his schedule shows.

Kinton came to work on just three summer Mondays, records show. He interspersed his vacation time with Massport-funded trips, going to Raleigh, N.C., for an airport visit; Washington, D.C., for meetings with congressional staffers; and Montreal for an Airports Council International Conference. He was in Montreal on Sept. 11 when the terrorists attacked the United States.

Massport spokesman Jose Juarez defended Kinton's and Lawless' light summer schedules, saying both "remain in contact with the airport" even when their calendars show them out of pocket.

"When you sign up for Massport, they own you," Juarez said. "Each took some of the time he's earned and he's entitled to it."

Massport released schedules, expense and travel records for Kinton, Lawless and Buckingham in response to a public records request from the Herald.

Lawless' schedule shows he routinely interspersed official travel with personal time. For instance, Lawless spent June 17 to 20 in Helsinki, Finland, at an airport executives' conference, checked in at the office on June 21, then took a personal day on Friday, June 22.

He took a vacation day on Friday, July 20. The following Monday he headed to Alexandria, Va., for a two-day FAA security conference. He also took Friday, July 20, off.

Lawless finished out the month of July at an airport security summit in San Francisco, which required immediately into a two-week vacation. Lawless also took off every Friday in August, three out of four Fridays in July and two out of four Fridays in June.

EXECUTIVE OFFICE FOR ADMINISTRATION
BUREAU OF PERSONNEL AND FINANCE
RELATION

TO AGENCY HEADS:

At yesterday's meeting in Gardner Auditorium Mr. Williams explained objectives and methods of the study of our personnel plan which he and his associates will conduct.

The purpose of this memorandum is to review your participation in the study, as an administrative officer of the Commonwealth.

Within the next few days, members of the study staff will begin calling to arrange meetings with each agency. Due to the limited time available for this study we will attempt to schedule all meetings in the State House. In preparation for your meeting, we request that you and your appropriate members of your staff do the following:

- A. Assemble job descriptions for all positions in your agency. Your departmental list (staffing) will tell you which titles should be covered. If there are any job descriptions missing from your set, please contact Mr. James Kelly or Mr. Edward Lopez of this office.
- B. Review the job descriptions and note any changes you and your staff feel would be desirable to reflect changes in the duties and responsibilities of the positions concerned.
- C. Note any job classifications which could be combined with another job classification to eliminate unnecessary titles.
- D. Note on each job description the minimum experience or combination of experience and training which should be required of a candidate for each position.
- E. Review the effect on positions in your agency of any changes in salary job group which have been granted to other positions, both within your agency and in other agencies of the Commonwealth, and note any inequities in salary relationships you feel have been caused by these changes.

Reason Selected	Contra-indications	Techniques
Individual cannot improve his social functioning except by deeper insight into his carry-over of defenses and attitudes from infantile situation.	Insight into wishes toward and relationships with parental figures produce degree of regression which either individual cannot control or lies beyond caseworker's capacity to handle.	Same as foregoing (Goal III) except that interpretation now includes some genetic as well as dynamic factors. Area of scrutiny is circumscribed and eliciting of repressed material limited. Relationship: Deeper transference - use of transference to show individual some of his earlier infantile drives carried over into the present.
Individual cannot bridge the gap between actual and potential performances except on basis of deeper insight into his infantile patterns.

- (3) Although the techniques are listed with the treatment goals with which they are most characteristically associated, no inference should be drawn that they are exclusively a part of that treatment goal and no other.
- (4) Analytic consultation is important in the diagnostic evaluation and selection of cases for treatment. Often they can subsequently be carried in line with the general plan outlined.
- (5) Requires analytic consultation both in diagnosis and in the continuing treatment process at intervals.
- (6) Under no circumstances to be entered upon without close analytic supervision and a caseworker equipped by personality, knowledge, and skill to handle the material.

PSYCHIATRIC SOCIAL WORK

A. Historical Background

J.J. CRAPO

The first social workers in Massachusetts Mental Hospitals began functioning in May 1914 at Boston Psychopathic Hospital. At that time work was divided into - 1. Intensive Cases - Took responsibility for full inquiry into social condition of patient and family and for a treatment plan and 2. Slight Service - which consisted of assistance given without inquiry beyond the immediate service.

After a few years, it became apparent that the majority of cases in mental hospitals must remain incomplete and scientific study must be limited to purely medical subjects, unless social service departments were expanded considerably. In the early development of psychiatric social work in Massachusetts, it was formulated that the following duties were of necessity - the province of social service department (prior to the 20's).

1. Making investigations and evaluations which resulted in referral to other agencies for financial or other assistance.
2. Securing medical and social histories.
3. Placement of patients.
4. Home visiting.
5. Doing Social Case work.
6. Doing educational work with hospitals - agencies and the community.

Development of psychiatric social work in state hospitals has been uneven. After 1929 the depression, unemployment and World War II brought an increase in mental disorders and a decrease in Services to the mentally ill because of lack of professional personnel.

Since World War II the interest in Services for the mentally ill, stimulated by citizens, state and federal governments and by V. A. has increased considerably. Since World War II there has been increasing emphasis on case work and consultative contribution of the psychiatric social worker rather than on investigative or administrative functions. Also there has been a more consistent case work approach in working through patient's problems and an increased recognition of the need for intensive case work treatment.

B. Theoretical Formulations

The method primarily employed in psychiatric hospital settings is case work. The beginnings of contemporary case work coincide with the beginning of 20th century. The development of case work as a professional discipline coincides with the emergence of dynamic psychiatry following World War II and the resulting application of analytic concepts to the understanding and treatment of human problems within the social setting.

Case Work theory is based on Freudian formulations and the following are some of the principles which are basic to this diagnostic approach.

1. The concept that there is capacity for change and growth within the human personality and that this change is directly dependent on the Ego, which holds the central position in the psychic structure and through which a person adapts himself to the outside world, securing from it the opportunity to express his fundamental drives and meet his major needs.

2. The individual is seen as fashioned by the inter-relationship between his basic needs and his physical and social environment. Case work help is based on an understanding of psychological and social needs and of the environment in which the patient is hoping to satisfy them. The aim of case work is to enable the person to achieve improvement in some aspect of his social living and to do so by reinforcing his ability to find suitable solutions to his problems and to operate on a more mature and satisfactory level.

3. Case work process begins with what the individual already possesses, with whatever positive resources, external and internal, psychological and physical, are at his disposal. It progresses through his conscious and repeated use of the greatest degree of self direction of which he is capable. This calls for building up strengths rather than overcoming weaknesses. The procedure is a positive one in which the productive use of the person's own resources become the pivot around which the entire helping process revolves.

4. The primary medium of help in reaching the goal is the professional relationship. This is an association in which the worker gives of his understanding, his ego strength and even of his own super ego and in which he uses "his whole self as consciously as possible in the interest of another person". Essential to this relationship are warmth, concern, therapeutic understanding, interest in helping the person to get well, to regain control of his own life and conduct. There must be the discipline that makes it possible for the worker to identify himself with the disturbed person and at the same time to remain sufficiently separated from the disturbance itself so that he can control his own activity in meeting it.

5. Case work recognizes and utilizes in diagnostic understanding and treatment the inter-relationship of past, present and future. Past experiences are used as guides to understanding the present, and early interviews usually contain some evaluation and examination of the past and its meaning to an individual. This clarifies not only present wants, but past wants and hopes for the future. In finding in the past the explanation for the present, one tries hopefully to build a foundation for the future.

In conclusion, the psychiatric social worker must be comfortable in a long-term relationship in which the pace is slow and progress limited. It is important that the worker understand psychotic material but not stimulate it, and that case work treatment emphasize areas of adequate functioning.

C. Pre-Admission and Admission Procedures

Participation in admission procedures immediately identify the psychiatric social worker as being related to the total plan for treatment and rehabilitation of the patient. Specifically, social service functions are as follows:

1. To make family and patient aware of social services available.
2. To represent a channel to the outside community for the patient.

3. To help patient with social problems that may affect his use of the hospital experience.
4. To help the family with its disturbed feelings around admission of the patient to the hospital.
5. To help the family find the community resources it needs because of problems created by hospitalization of patient.
6. To help family understand the hospital and its treatment program.
7. To observe family roles and realignments in relation to hospitalization.
8. To obtain social history and evaluative material for diagnostic study.
9. To evaluate social problems in order to select patients or families for intensive services.

D. In-patient Services to Patients and Relatives

The modern hospital views an admission as an event which is part of patient's total life experience while recognizing it, as a break down in inter-personal relationships. It is within this frame-work that services are mobilized to create a new and more successful adjustment. Case work services are directed toward helping patient with social and interpersonal problems he may have brought to the hospital with him, or that might develop within the hospital, in order that patient may use and understand treatment progress. Interpretation of hospital procedures and programs and working through of feelings regarding these should continue through the residence period. Thus anxieties can be eased and encouragement offered enabling patient to gain confidence enough to invest himself as a partner in the treatment process.

Another case work service is that of linking the patient to his family and the community. Family members have strong needs in their role as relatives of a mentally ill person and professional help is necessary to aid them in dealing with their feelings regarding continued hospitalization.

E. Use of Social Service in Planning For Return To The Community

The part social service plays depends on many factors: whether patient is to be discharged from observation or voluntary status; whether he has a family interested, or is alone and desperately in need of help in becoming reestablished; the staff's opinion of his prognosis and ability to plan for himself, size of social service staff and what duties and functions are given precedence. Many community resources can be utilized at this juncture (Welfare, Rehab, Comm. S.S., Family Service, Employ. Service etc).

The amount of responsibility the social worker assumes depends on needs of individual patients. It might be advised in conclusion that worker is a member of a therapeutic team and "at all times works in cooperation with psychiatrist". (statement optimistic and very hopeful.

Dear Sir:

Commenting on your Editorial (4/5/1978) concerning the City Manager, "He isn't out yet," and your citing
"the non-cooperation" of the City Hospital-Health
Commissioner on the Health-Hospital Budget.

The City Manager is not the only one whom the Commissioner has not co-operated with.

At a recent Hospital-Health Board meeting, the Commissioner requested the support of the Board on the new budget concerning his department. The view of the Board was that we couldn't take any position on it because we hadn't seen his proposals.

On several occasions since this Board was appointed,
the Board also has requested of the Commissioner lists of all employees, what they do, etc. (and this can be born out in the Board's minutes), and to date we have not received this information.

I would add to your Editorial that "The Hospital Board isn't out yet, either," and, therefore, the Commissioner should co-operate with it, too, as it is the body charged by City Ordinances with advising him.

Very truly yours,

John J. Crapo
Member
Board of Health and Hospital

STATEMENT IN SUPPORT OF SENATE BILL 647

This act would abolish the title of head psychiatric social worker for those administrative social workers who are not staff directors but are functioning as director of a program, supervisor, consultant, or coordinator. In establishing a new administrative title it would provide a more up-to-date, appropriate title and salary scale.

This act would eliminate numerous social work administrative problems within the Department of Mental Health. It would also assist in the recruitment and retention of qualified social work administrators.

These proposed changes have already been recommended by the Governor's Task Force on the implementation of the Mental Health Program and would coincide with recent appointments within the Department of Mental Health on a departmental and regional level.

Because of the extensive tasks levied on our troops by the storm, every Guardsman had to contribute to the job of saving human lives and assisting communities wherever possible.

Your dedication and performance of duty reflects great credit on the National Guard and the YANKEE Division. You have truly benefitted your fellow man.

Well done.

Dear PROFESSOR STELLAR:-

During this spring semester while attending your course in in psychological biology in the Commission on Extension Studies, I have found myself overwhelmed with work responsibilities in my job and with the lingering residuals of a "bug."

My request is you forgive my failure to turn in the required term paper tomorrow evening when you administer the final examination and that you allow me to work on it during the summer and allow me to turn it into you the week of Labor Day, September, 1982.

We discussed early in the semester my term paper subject of Temporal lobe Epilepsy, a subject that you approved.

Any consideration you may grant me in this matter, I shall appreciate very much.

Very truly yours,

John Jennings Crafo

Cambridge

GOP to endorse Democrats?

By WILLIAM F. O'NEIL, JR.

The Republican Party in Cambridge may be embarking upon a course of action which could lead to a political bloodbath, possibly splitting asunder the GOP in the University City.

The Observer has learned that the Committee's Executive Board, meeting recently for the purpose of putting together a slate of endorsed candidates for the upcoming municipal elections, refused to endorse a Republican School Committee candidate while giving the nod to three City Council candidates... all of them Democrats.

Harley Victor, chairman of the City Committee, refused to confirm the Observer's information that the Board had given a preliminary endorsement to Councillor Robert Moncreiff, present School Committeeman Francis Duehay, and Henry Owens. On the other hand, Victor would not deny the reports.

Victor did confirm, however, that School Committee candidate, John J. Crapo, Ward 7 Republican Chairman, was denied the Committee's endorsement.

Crapo, visibly upset over the non-endorsement, told the Observer that he was allowed "only three minutes to present my program" and that "half the twelve member board" walked out during the deliberation period.

"I requested reasons for the denial of the endorsement from Mr. Victor and the others remaining," stated Crapo, "and was answered with silence and an offer of a drink of whiskey, which I refused."

"I feel that I have a right to know the reasons for the denial of my requests for an endorsement of my candidacy and I feel the public also has this right for the Republican City Committee unlike some other political groups in Cambridge such as the Civic Association, the Americans for Democratic Action, etc., is established by State Law, its members being either elected or designated in the April Primary Election held every four years state wide, and is, therefore, a public body. I therefore demand an explanation for the denial of my request for endorsement, and I demand the reasons to be made public.

"If my request for an explanation of the Republican City Committee's Executive Board's actions continues to fall on the deaf ears of its ruling 'cabal' - I have no alternative but to conclude it does not care to report on the public, and particularly to the 4,200 registered Republicans in Cambridge whom it contends it represents in matters concerning the Republican Party, the why and wherefores of its policies.

"I as a minority member of the group's membership, feel compelled to do so - and, if the group does not make public its reasons for denying me the endorsement, I shall have no choice but to publicly question the group's intentions and further to consider repudiating it for its activities, for I feel there is no room in the Republican Party for clandestine and contemptible practices."

Victor told the Observer that the City Committee will release a listing of all endorsed candidates during the last week of this month.

Man, 17, shot to death in New Bedford

By JESSICA HERMAN

New Bedford police are seeking the father of a 17-year-old boy who died in an early morning shooting death yesterday of a 17-year-old New Bedford man who was gunned down on the streets, police said.

Matthew Cruz was found lying in a pool of blood after police officers responded to a gunshot about 2:30 a.m. in the area of Chatham and Kempton streets in the city's West End.

Cruz, who was shot at least once in the chest near the heart, was pronounced dead at a short time later at a hospital in West Bedford. Medical technicians tried to revive him, police said.

Police are seeking any information. "We hope that somebody might have come back from a club or a party and saw or heard something," Richard M. Spiller said yesterday.

Cruz was shot in a residential neighborhood, Spiller said.

Police said they have no suspect or motive.

Cruz's death is the fourth homicide in New Bedford this year. The teenager lived a few blocks from where he was killed.

Anyone with information can call New Bedford police detectives at (508) 991-6320.

Dear Editor

Your article concerning the governing political party of ARGENTINA (Boston Globe December 25 2001) FAILED to mention ARGENTINE PRESIDENT ISABEL PERON who is often considered the first woman head of state in the Americas. Mrs. PERON became the wife of General JUAN DOMINGO PERON upon the death of Mrs MARIA EVITA DUARTE PERON

Mrs (Senora) MARIA ESTELA PERON WAS ELECTED VICE PRESIDENT OF THE ARGENTINE REPUBLIC AND TOOK OFFICE OCT 12, 1973. AND SUCCEEDED General Peron as President OF THE ARGENTINE Republic June 29 1974 who resigned due to serious illness. Her full name was Senora MARIA ESTELA MARTINEZ de Peron

More accurately Queen Elizabeth First was first woman head of state. New Foundland was formally claimed BY ENGLAND IN 1583 by Sir HUMPHREY GILBERT known for his interests in discovering a North West Passage

MASSACHUSETTS MENTAL HEALTH SOCIAL WORKERS ASSOCIATION
Board Meeting Nov. 6

The meeting opened at 1:35. Present: Fisher, Congdon, Gidden, Mirsky, Kainer, Love, Loughlin, Sarmanian, Gilbert, Sullivan, and W. Vargus.

Jack Sullivan reported his attendance at a meeting with Personnel at which favorable feeling re: raising Social work salaries were expressed. Favorable feeling also is being expressed within Department of Mental Health. However, Dr. Greenblatt is concerned re: the problem of obtaining funds for this. He apparently favors job classification changes as the best way to up-grade. Dr. Greenblatt is planning a message to the Governor stressing strongly the need for salary up-grading in the Department of Mental Health.

Jack reported that temporary employees who do not meet civil service examination specifications are being let go. Apparently all such employees will eventually be dismissed.

Jack reported that our T.O.'s were not submitted with the regular D.M.H. budget, as agreed during collective bargaining, but were submitted in a supplementary budget. This constitutes a grievance if we should decide to pursue it.

Jack discussed his contacts with Betty Glander, new director of Social Service in central office. She would not accept a grade 19, and is apparently paid as a 21. She has been requested by Dr. Greenblatt to work up a "career ladder" social service and is setting up one which is scaled at somewhat lower salaries than ours. Dr. Greenblatt with Dr. She is interested in our T.O. however, and when the presentation is made to Dr. Greenblatt with Jack and Gene Higgs in attendance we will have opportunity to push for our version in case Betty Glander has not already bought it. This development follows nicely on the heels of Personnel recommendations that we strive for Dr. Greenblatt's backing of our T.O. Personnel was very favorably impressed with our T.O.

It is expected that specifications for psychiatric social workers in new T.O. will call for a Masters Degree. Mental Health Coordinator blocks will be dropped back into either social work or psychology blocks at a commensurate level.

Jack noted that we are again approved as official representatives and bargaining agents for D.M.H. Social workers.

Jack reported that relative to the new Williams Study, job specifications are being mailed to all State employees. These must be returned by March 1. In this regard it was felt that our T.O. would be helpful as a guideline.

In an effort to get copies of the T.O. to all members as quickly as possible, copies were distributed to those Board Members who could most easily pass them on to regional coordinators of the Coordinating Committee. The latter are to be requested to disperse them in their regions. The same plan was followed to facilitate dispersal of the Newsletter.

Henry Mirsky reported the desire of the Coordinating Committee to meet with the Board. It was agreed to hold said meeting at the Massachusetts Conference on Social Welfare, Dec. 4, 3-4:30, with an Open House for all members to follow. Paul Loughlin will arrange for a suite for the meeting.

The meeting adjourned at 4:15. Next regular meeting will be held on Nov. 20 same time, same place.

Respectfully submitted

In the 52 weeks ended $40. 31, 1989 the Waller's Study 6000—the index used to compute relative performance of the 778 shares listed below—was up 7.35%. The blue chip Dow Industrials were up 8.5%. The 778 Forbes 500 companies returned up 2.5%.

Quite a range of prices here. McGraw, which as Mercantile National Bank was trading at a price acquired 10 two decades ago, was recently quoted at 44. Benjamin Huchman, which traded at 25 in 1960, rose long after Warren Buffett took it over, to 25 in 1970.

Q. We don't show 20 year performance below—squad number of the companies didn't even exist 20 years ago—but we do show their 31-week performance on Wall Street. The best performer was Service Merchandise, up 174%. We have specimens, Newark, Holly Farms, Ben-Avram, and C&A.

In this table, a fiscal year ending between June 1986 and May 1989 is designated as fiscal 1988 regardless of the calendar year in which it ends. For instance, for 1988 earnings per share are shown for fiscal 1987. "E" if results are not yet available.

Estimated costs cannot be estimated at this time.

Argentina choice for interim leader faces gulf in his part

Economy crisis isn't Peronist's only test

By Sophie Arle
and Christopher

BUENOS AIRES—Once again in Argentina, the Peronists are back in power. And Argentina, exhausted and anxious after a week of deadly rioting that led to the resignation of President Fernando de la Rúa, are holding their breath to see whether the powerful populist party can overcome deep internal divisions to lead this beleaguered nation to economic recovery.

Interim President Adolfo Rodríguez Saá took the reins of South America's second-largest economy on Sunday after being approved by Congress to lead the country until March 3 special election. Rodríguez Saá announced the country would suspend interest payments on its $123 billion foreign debt, with a new currency would be introduced, and pledged more financial stability. He ruled out a devaluation of the country's currency, the peso, whose exchange rate remains pegged to the dollar.

Argentina had defied treaty for two days until Sunday with only a weaker government, after widespread rioting killed 27 people and brought down the de la Rúa government.

Analysts warned that Argentina's immediate future will depend on whether the Peronists can patch up internal divisions in the face of the crisis.

But as the Radical government of Fernando de la Rúa struggled to dig the country out of its four-year slump, deep divisions have grown within the Peronista Justicialist Party, with much of the squabbling coming from external influences. The government who are trying to keep their positions secure while they jockey for position in the presidential race.

With open elections now set for March 2002 that will allow an unruffled number of candidacies, analysts say power struggles within the party are likely to continue. At best, the Peronista may manage to win some of their internal mud-slinging behind the scenes.

Rodríguez Saá, 64, is a trained lawyer and wealthy land owner and businessman, and a former ally of former president Carlos Menem. He has distanced himself from the scandal that has recently tainted the former president — who has been accused of involvement in illegal arms sales. Rodríguez Saá has risen from political obscurity, as governor of one of the only two Argentine provinces that are growing economically as the rest of the country sinks into debt.

The Congress "chose" Rodríguez Saá because he is the man who best pulls the Peronista together, and political analyst Roberto Marín.

Despite his tarnished image, Menem, 71, who served as president from 1989 to 1995, cannot be ruled out as a possible presidential candidate. He was released only a month ago from nearly six months' house arrest, but remains president of the Peronista party. His popularity remains high. In recent weeks he has criticized de la Rúa for weak leadership and called for partisan unity.

But the former president still carries a bit of baggage, including a reputation as a flamboyant and corrupt leader. In a highly publicized speech, he married a former Chilean beauty queen half his age. And many voters still believe his policies led to the country's current economic woes, because during years of outpouring and allowed rampant corruption to drain the country's wealth.

Yet Menem is also remembered for saving Argentina from its last major economic crisis, when by perforation had prices changing by the hour. In the late 1980s, through a largely free-market based policy that attracted international investment, Menem turned the economy around in the early 1990s, creating a new version of Peronism — known now as "Menemism" — that broke from traditional Peronist policies that protected workers through strict trade and investment laws.

Although the Argentine constitution requires a former president to wait a full four-year term before returning to power, the current state of flux could open the door for another Menem candidacy, observers add last week.

Other leading candidates include businessman Carlos Menem, Ransom de la Rúa, and Carlos Reusén, as well as former Aires mayor Eduardo Duhalde, Saá could also run for the presidency. Though the battle to serve the remaining two years of office will be fierce, analysts say no one really wants to lead a sinking ship.

In the past, the Peronistas have rallied behind their leaders and been quick to settle public dissent. Their political chest is such that even when they were the opposition party, as during the de la Rúa presidency, they could still control large parts of the country. In contrast, neither of the last two Radical presidents, de la Rúa and Raúl Alfonsín, have finished their terms.

Peronist nationalist policies have always appealed to the working masses and found common ground during World War II with fascist Italy and Nazi Germany. The party's main support is still largely among Argentina's working classes and the poor.

Peron and his charismatic wife, Eva, whipped up the masses with emotive speeches from the balcony of the pink presidential palace in Buenos Aires during their glory years in the late 1940s and early 1950s. But Peron did not hesitate to use torture to quell political dissent.

He was forced into exile after a military coup in 1955, and returned to power in 1973 when he died in 1982.

again symbolized popular anger after over a decade of political repression that included torture, kidnappings, and guerrilla warfare. Eva Duarte, known as Evita, gained a status as a national heroine by helping the poor and securing labor union and women's rights for women in 1952.

BUEENOS AIRES — Once again in Argentina, the Peronists are back in power. And Argentines, exhausted and anxious after a week of deadly rioting that led to the resignation of President Frondizi in June, are holding their breath to see whether the powerful Peronist party can overcome deep internal divisions to lead this beleaguered nation to economic recovery.

Interim President Adolfo Rodriguez Saia took the reins of South America's second largest economy on Sunday after being approved by Congress to lead the country until March 3 special election. Rodriguez Saia announced the country would suspend interest payments on $9 billion foreign debt, said a new currency would be introduced, and pledged more financial assistance. He ruled out a devaluation of the country's currency, the peso, whose exchange rate remains pegged to the dollar.

Argentina had drifted heavily for two days with Sunday with only a caretaker government, after widespread rioting killed 27 people and brought down the de la Rúa government.

Peronists warned that Argentinians immediately warned that Argentinians in the future will depend largely on whether the Peronists can push up bilateral divisions in the face of the crisis.

"Right now there is no leader," said a Peronist party official, "very difficult to find a unified leadership," said Buenos Aires analyst Martha Madrid.

The Peronists have argued a "total" leadership after the party, led by Juan Domingo Peron, who returned to power until another deep recession in 1955, came to its

But the former president still carries a lot of baggage, including a reputation as a flamboyant and corrupt leader. In a highly publicized spectacle, he married a former Chilean beauty queen half his age. And many voters still believe his policies led to the country's current economic woes, because Argentina ran up huge public debt during years of overexpansion and allowed rampant corruption to drain the country's wealth.

Yet Peron is also remembered for saving Argentina from its last major economic crisis, when hyperinflation had prices changing by the hour in the late 1950s. Through a largely free-market-based policy that attracted international investment, Menem turned the economy around in the early 1960s, creating a new reputation for the country as a "land of opportunity" — that broke from traditional Peronist policies that protected workers through strict trade and investment laws.

Although the Argentine constitution requires a former president to wait a full four-year term before returning to power, the current state of the country could open the door for another Menem candidacy, observers said last week.

Other leading candidates include the three most powerful provincial governors, Carlos Ruckauf, Juan de la Rúa, and Carlos Menem, as well as Buenos Aires Senator Eduardo Duhalde. Saia could also run for the presidency. Though the battle to serve the remaining two years of office really be fierce, analysts say none really wants to test a daunting ship.

BUENOS AIRES — Once upon a time in Argentina, the Peronists were back in power. And Argentina, exhausted and anxious after a week of deadly rioting that led to the resignation of President Raul Alfonsín, was holding their breath to see whether the powerful populist party could overcome deep internal divisions to lead this beleaguered nation to economic recovery.

Rodríguez Saá announced the country would suspend interest payments on its $152 billion foreign debt, said a new currency would be introduced, and pledged more financial austerity. He ruled out a devaluation of the country's currency, the peso, whose exchange rate has plummeted to the dollar.

Argentina had suffered ten days of two-day strikes Sunday with only a caretaker government, after widespread rioting killed 27 people and brought down the de la Rúa government. Analysts warned that Argentina's immediate future will depend largely on whether the Peronists can patch up internal divisions in the face of the crisis. "Right now there is no leader in the Peronist party as it is very difficult to find a unified voice," said Martín Barón, an analyst for the Peronist party. "The Peronists have earned a reputation for self, at times from

But as the Radical government of Fernando de la Rúa struggled to dig the country out of its four-year slump, deep divisions have grown within the Peronist Judicialist Party, with much of the squabbling coming from several influential governors who are trying to keep their provinces secure while they jockey for position in the presidential race.

With open elections now set for March 2002 that will allow an unlimited number of candidates, analysts say power struggles within the party are likely to continue. At best, the Peronists may manage to bring some of their internal mud-slinging behind the scenes.

Rodríguez Saá, 64, is a trained lawyer and wealthy land-owner and businessman, and a former ally of former president Carlos Menem. He has distanced himself from the scandal that has recently tainted the former president — who has been accused of involvement in illegal arms sales. Rodríguez Saá has risen from political obscurity as governor of one of the only two Argentine provinces that are growing economically as the rest of the country dinks into debilitating public debt.

The Congress chose Rodríguez Saá because he is the man who best pulls the Peronists together, said political analyst Roberto Bourke. Despite his tarnished image, Menem, 71, who served as president from 1989 to 1999, cannot be ruled out as a possible presidential candidate. He was released only a month ago from nearly six months' house arrest, but remains president of the Peronist party. His popularity ratings have risen in recent weeks as he criticized de la Rúa for weak leadership and called for patriotic unity.

But the former president still carries a bit of baggage, including a reputation as a flamboyant and corrupt leader. In a highly publicized spectacle, he married a former Chilean beauty queen half his age. And many voters still believe his policies led to the country's current economic woes, because Argentina ran up huge public debt during years of overspending and allowed rampant corruption to drain the country's wealth.

Yet Menem is also remembered for saving Argentina from its last major economic crisis, when by persuasion had persuaded the country by the hour in the late 1980s. Through a largely free-market-based policy that attracted international investment, Menem turned the economy around in the early 1990s, creating a new version of Peronism — known now as "Menemismo" — that broke from traditional Peronist policies that protected workers through strict trade and investment laws.

Although the Argentine constitution requires a former president to wait a full four-year term before returning to power, the current state of flux could open the door for another Menem candidacy, observers said last week. Other leading candidates include the three most powerful provincial governors, Carlos Rodríguez, Ramón de la Sota, and Carlos Reutemann, as well as Buenos Aires Senator Eduardo Duhalde. Saá could also run for the presidency. Though the battle to serve the remaining two years of office will be fierce, analysts say no one really wants to lead a sinking ship. In the past, the Peronists have relied behind their leader and been quick to stifle public dissent. Their political clout is such that even when they were the opposition party, as during the de la Rúa presidency, they could still control large parts of the country. In contrast, neither of the last two Radical presidents, de la Rúa and Raúl Alfonsín, have finished their term.

Peronist nationalist policies have always appealed to the working masses and found common ground during World War II with fascist Italy and Nazi Germany. The party's main support is still largely among Argentina's working classes and the poor.

Peron and his charismatic wife, Eva, whipped up the masses with emotive speeches from the balcony of the pink presidential palace in Buenos Aires during their glory years in the late 1940s and early 1950s. But Peron did not hesitate to use torture to quell political dissent. He was forced into exile after a military coup in 1955, and returned to power in 1973 when he died in 1974.

again symbolized popular unity after over a decade of political turmoil that included bombings, kidnappings, and guerrilla warfare. Maria Eva Duarte Peron, known as Eva, gained mythical status as a rag-to-riches lion during the postwar boom years. She helped form the country's largest labor union and secured voting rights for women in 1947. She died in 1952.

He has distanced himself from the scandal that has recently tainted the former president — who has been accused of involvement in illegal arms sales. Dear Mr. Balboni,

I am writing to recommend the application of John Jennings Crapo to the Master of Science in Public Affairs Program at Boston State College.

I have known John since 1976 when I ran for State Representative from Cambridge. John was very generous in introducing me to the community and sharing his copious knowledge of campaign politics. I have always been impressed by his understanding of the political process both in theory and in practice. This should help him in his work at Boston State.

John is tenacious and hardworking, as his recent degree from Harvard indicates, and this discipline will bring him success both in graduate level study and in a career as an administrator.

John condemns the system which has created a public sector bloated by those who are paid but do not work. His quiet, circumspect persistence should ensure him success both in his studies and his later career.

Sincerely,

Winthrop Inter-Agency Council

Dear Council Member:

Enclosed you will find a draft copy of the Winthrop Inter-Agency Council By-laws. After a committee reviewed a standard copy of by-laws, they presented the Council with the revised edition at the May 24, 1977 meeting. After discussing the revised copy, Rev. George Tyson volunteered to put the by-laws into a more sequenced order.

We would like your input of these by-laws. Please bring your ideas and suggestions with you for the July 26, 1977 meeting, to be held at the Cliff House Nursing Home, 170 Cliff Avenue, Winthrop at 10:30 am.

Again we would like to thank Rev. George Tyson for all the work he put into the enclosed copy.

Look forward to seeing you on July 26, 1977.

WEDNESDAY

BOSTON HERALD Dec FIFTH 2001 This report must not gather dust

Marshall Carter offered up a simple, but splendid idea for keeping the heat — and the light of day — on proposals for reforming the Massachusetts Port Authority.

The former State Street Bank chairman had lent his name, his energy and his expertise to the commission assigned to come up with a plan for restoring the reputation of the beleaguered agency. But he's well aware that there's an abundance of reports sitting on many a shelf at the State House, artifacts to good intentions and short attention spans.

COHEN

It's why the Carter Commission report concludes with listings of "implementation actions" for the governor, the Legislature, the Massport board and CEO, and even the mayor of Boston, the listings divided into short-term (over the next six months) or longer term (2002 to 2004).

"Why don't you people in the media publish that as a scorecard, maybe on a quarterly basis?" he suggested.

That which has been done, not done, is in process, in the garbage, whatever.

"That's good public pressure," he added.

Carter knows that barring another horrific security lapse at Logan Airport, the public attention span for "reform" is more or less on a par with that of the average toddler. It shouldn't be that way, it just is.

What the commission put into black and white about the patronage system as it exists at Massport didn't come as any surprise. Back in the good old days Massport was a cash cow and no one much cared if more than a little cream was skimmed off the top for patronage jobs. The agency was the original equal-opportunity employer: qualified, not qualified, who cared?

Remember the tale of Gov. Bill Weld's offer of a job to an Irish barmaid, who arrived here asking that age-old question, "Where's me job?" which then became her norm de patronage.

SWIFT: Her future tied to Massport's.

"Under the moratorium on patronage [declared by acting Gov. Jane Swift, who gave the commission its mandate] each individual legislator will have to do his own moral calculation," Carter said. "But we didn't recommend eliminating referrals entirely. If someone wants to recommend someone in his district for a $30,000 job in the garage, that's not what we're worried about."

And it's that kind of thing that would go into the monthly "sunshine report."

It's the creation of a job that's detrimental to the agency," Carter added. "Massport has some 900 professionals who have been able to do the job and do it well" but patronage has created a severe morale problem.

And financial problems it can no longer afford.

The agency has routinely spent about $1.4 million a year on favored charities, for example, attempting to buy goodwill in the community and with a few powerful politicians. It obviously hasn't worked — or that extra runway would have been built eons ago. Applying what the commission termed the "corporate gold standard" of charitable giving and even adjusting that upward, they concluded Massport's annual giving ought to be no more than $57,000 a year.

Yes, that's how detailed and thorough the commission's work was — and in a mere 45 days.

One of the more problematic aspects of implementing the report appears to be the future of the Massport board — some of its members locked in for the next four to seven years under a little sleight of hand performed by former Gov. Paul Cellucci. And that's too bad.

One of the best commission recommendations relative to the board was to mandate that the labor representative — currently Teamster union head George Cashman — be free of any conflict of interests. In other words, the labor member must be from a union which has no contracts at Massport, unlike the incumbent Cashman. What a concept!

Another calls for adding two board members, one a resident of Boston and one from a surrounding community "impacted" by Massport's activities.

"We were very careful with the wording on that," Carter noted. "That person doesn't get to represent that community."

In fact the commission suggested the board adopt basic principles that the Securities and Exchange Commission requires of all boards of publicly held corporations, including "basic knowledge of the industry" and a "willingness to avoid conflicts of interest."

Long before Sept. 11, Massport was a public-sector dinosaur attempting to run a teenage business. The Carter Commission report points it all the right directions. The governor and legislative leaders should be judged on their ability and willingness to see that it's carried out.

Bush demanded that Afghanistan's government, then under Bin Laden or his son, "bring Bin Laden or face attack." On Oct. 7, the U.S. and Great Britain, backed by an international coalition, launched military and air strikes against Afghanistan, but first offensive actions in 2001 was expected to be a long war.

Don Gray M. Hines to a freelance writer who frequently writes on "hot" events

The terrorist attack of Sept. 11, 2001, killed more than 3,000 people, over twice as many as died at Pearl Harbor, and accomplished what no foreign army had been able to do in the United States for nearly 2 centuries: Not since the War of 1812 had an enemy's troops set foot on American soil. With scarcely a moment's notice, the United States was transformed into a foreign-occupied nation. With scarcely a moment's notice, the United States was transformed into a foreign-occupied nation. "With Disruptive Acts of Terror"
The Sept. 11 attack was simply conceived and meticulously executed. The 19 hijackers—3 each on American Airlines Flight 11 and 77 and United Airlines Flight 123, and one on United Flight 93—chose aircraft scheduled to depart from east coast airports within a few minutes of each other, around 8 a.m. The aircraft were exceptionally quiet, either

The flight was the last in a series of flights that led to the establishment of the Tusculum College flight school.

Back in New York City, at what soon would become known as Ground Zero, the overwhelming majority of employees and visitors below the World Trade Center's twin towers left the 90th floor of the North Tower well before the 8th floor of the South Tower were safely evacuated. On the uppermost floors of the 110-story buildings, however, the situation was hopeless. Firefighters at each floor tried frantically with water as some people jumped to their deaths. Others clung to window ledges or balconies. Hundreds of other victims were trapped by a fire storm that engulfed the lower floors.

The South Tower collapsed around 10 A.M., and the North Tower went down about half an hour later; the office workers—and hundreds of rescue workers as well—were crushed in a cascade of more than 1 million tons of steel and concrete, collapsing before reaching its base.

When Penn Rich returned to Washington that night, smoke was still rising from the Pentagon, and 16 boxes of power machines had been reduced to rubble. In his first formal address to an assembled, seedy nation, he called the attack "evil, depicable, act of terror" and pledged that the perpetrators would be brought to justice.

Assessing the Damages
Almost immediately, public officials and business leaders began the grim task of calculating the damage. No hope remained for all 732 passengers (including the 19 hijackers) and 33 crew members on board the four hijacked airliners. Among the dead were television producer David Angel, Aetna Technologies co-founder Daniel Lewin, and actress-producer Barry Berenson. Feltkin, all on American

In addition to those on board Flight 77, the assault on the Pentagon killed 25 people.

Much more difficult to assess was the death toll in Ground Zero, still smoldering a month after the attack. By then, however, the number of people who had been killed was more than 400 bodies had been recovered, in addition to those on Board Flight 11 and 175, over 4,000 people, including citizens of more than 60 countries, were still missing and presumed dead. Some companies that had offices in the World Trade Center were devastated, including Cable News. The company's first layoff came less than two days after the September 11 attacks, and the company lost more than 600 employees in the first six months. Cable News lost 100,000 employees in an office in New York City and 100,000 elsewhere. New York City lost its police force, firefighters, whose courage and professionalism in the aftermath after the planes hit had shocked/boast national heroes, were lost in the collapsing buildings as they labored to rescue survivors. The city lost more than 100,000 people, and nearly 75 to 100 pounds of equipment up 300 flights of stairs. Recovery and reconstruction costs were expected to exand $140 million. With near-unanimity, Congress on Sept. 14 approved $40 billion in emergency spending, of which half was allocated for disaster recovery operations in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, New York City, New York State, Virginia, and Pennsylvania. On Oct. 9, New York City Mayor Rudolph Giuliani—whose energetic and inspirational leadership had buoyed the city's spirits—forecast that the attack would cost the city 100,000 jobs and billions in lost revenue. That same day Giuliani and New York Gov. George Pataki, a longtime rival who had been working closely with the mayor since Sept. 11, asked the federal government to provide another $54 billion in incentives and subsidies to compensate the city for its losses.

The nation's airline industry was directly affected by the September 11 terrorist attacks. Commercial air traffic resumed on Sept. 13 after a 2-day shutdown, experts said. Combined losses of at least $100 million per day. The airlines estimated that losses from the shutdown and subsequent slump were at least $18 billion. Major operators such as Continental, American, United, US Airways, and Delta announced schedule reductions and layoffs of 20% or more. People affected were cut among foreign airlines and in the aircraft manufacturing industry. On Sept. 21, Congress passed a $4.5-billion

$1.5 billion trading bill to keep domestic capitalists alert. Stock trading, halted on the morning of Sept. 11, resumed the following Monday after an unprecedented 6-day halt. Economic uncertainties prompted the worst one-week sell-off since the Great Depression, with a loss of $1.4 trillion in market value. Investors reaped some of their losses the following week, as the markets stabilized and recovered but plunging economists predicted the following week. The Federal Reserve Board announced that it would increase the prime rate by 1/2 percent to 4 1/2 percent, as Feds Bush and company called for a $75 billion on economic stimulus package valued as up to $75 billion.

Appropriations of federal funds were matched by a corresponding increase in state and local government spending to give support (an estimated $800 million by mid-October) to aid relief organizations and victims' families.

Response and Retaliation

The crisis response brought heightened vigilance at air terminals and other public facilities, including the presence of uniformed National Guard troops with M-16 assault rifles at airport checkpoints. In a nationally televised address to a joint session of Congress on Sept. 20, Pres. Bush warned Americans to be alert for "anyone who might be plotting to harm this country." On Sept. 21, a newly established Presidential Council on Homeland Security, 15 days later, Ridge's cabinet members announced the creation of a "Red Cell" and "Red Cell Plus" advisory for emergency security and a national database for identifying national threats. The "Red Cell" would be a group of military and intelligence officials charged with identifying threats to the U.S. and its interests abroad. "Red Cell Plus" would be a group of officials monitoring the U.S. and its interests abroad, including the U.S., new security measures were implemented at major airports, and at major public facilities, including shopping malls, and at major sports events, including the World Series, and the Super Bowl.

Meanwhile, on Oct. 11, the FBI publicly indicated that there could be further terrorist attacks within the U.S. or against U.S. interests abroad, possibly within days.

To unravel international terrorism's financial support network, Bush, Bush on Sept. 24 signed an executive order authorizing the use of 27 organizations and individuals, including Al Qaeda, bin Laden, and Bin Laden's aide Ayman al-Zawahiri, founder of an Egyptian terrorist group. Al Qaeda, that also appeared on the list, bin Laden and Zawahiri topped the FBI's list of 22 worst terrorist suspects, released by Bush on Oct. 10 and the arrest of additional individuals and organizations were targeted Oct. 12. U.S. government officials and other civic and religious leaders made clear that the U.S. had no quarrel with mainstream Islam or with the vast majority of the world's more than 1 billion Muslims. They were responding, in part, to a wave of harassment against Muslim Americans, including the accusation of "unpatriotic" in at least 6 states in the first week after the 9-11. Some 50th states, required by their

Because most local TV broadcast antennas were along the World Trade Center, New Yorkers without cable could receive only one or two channels in the months after the attack.

Swift bypasses Pike, but board conducts business

Subm by John CRANE, No. 52

By DOUG MARCHETTI

Hours after being bypassed on a handful of Big Dig work orders awaiting approval, the fractured Turnpike Authority board of directors yesterday signed off on the $10.3 million worth of additional payments.

The Pike board's vote on the four "contract modifications" came just hours after the Massachusetts Highway Department's board of commissioners took the rare step of approving the payments without Pike approval.

The bizarre situation "erupted" up yesterday as the Turnpike Authority remained embroiled in crisis, with two of its three members "suspended" by acting Gov. Jane Swift while they insist they are still empowered to direct Turnpike business.

Swift ordered MassHighway to act without Pike approval Thursday after a Herald report detailed the growing concerns of contractors about their ability to continue working on the $14.5 billion megaproject without being paid.

The Construction Industries of Massachusetts, a powerful group representing contractors, had written a letter saying that the political turmoil gripping the Pike board was holding up millions in payments and threatening to cause the $14.5 billion megaproject to grind to a halt.

The Pike board has to approve any Big Dig payments that exceed $1 million.

"We're in kind of extraordinary times right now," Pike CEO Rick Capka said Thursday while announcing his decision to forward the payments to MassHighway for final approval.

"We do not have a quorum of board members that can take the appropriate actions at the board level."

Embattled Turnpike board members Christy Mihos and Jordan Levy, whom the governor tried to have suspended from the independent authority pending removal hearings, had wanted to sign off on the payments weeks ago but opted to wait until they had some clarification from the Supreme Judicial Court about their status.

Last week the SJC denied their request for a temporary injunction against Swift that would have allowed them to definitively take care of Pike business.

During yesterday's meeting — the third straight boycotted by Capka and board chairman David Forsberg — Levy and Mihos said they didn't have a problem with MassHighway's move.

"Whatever mechanism there is to make sure people are paid, we should use it," said Levy. "But it shouldn't have to come to this. It shouldn't have come to this."

Earlier this year, Pike officials estimated there were about 9,000 change orders pending on the project worth a potential $1.3 billion — some of which will be approved, some of which will be negotiated down and some of which will go to arbitration.

Project officials have budgeted about $600 million to pay for the outstanding change orders.

DIVISION OF CORPORATION FINANCE INFORMAL PROCEDURES REGARDING SHAREHOLDER PROPOSALS

The Division of Corporation Finance believes that its responsibility with respect to matters arising under Rule 14a-8 [17 CFR 240.14a-8], as with other matters under the proxy rules, is to aid those who must comply with the rule by offering informal advice and suggestions and to determine, initially, whether or not it may be appropriate in a particular matter to recommend enforcement action to the Commission. In connection with a shareholder proposal under Rule 14a-8, the Division's staff considers the information furnished to it by the Company in support of its intention to exclude the proposals from the Company's proxy materials, as well as any information furnished by the proponent or the proponent's representative.

Although Rule 14a-8(k) does not require any communications from shareholders to the Commission's staff, the staff will always consider information concerning alleged violations of the statutes administered by the Commission, including argument as to whether or not activities proposed to be taken would be violative of the statute or rule involved. The receipt by the staff of such information, however, should not be construed as changing the staff's informal procedures and proxy review into a formal or adversary procedure.

It is important to note that the staff's and Commission's no-action responses to Rule 14a-8(j) submissions reflect only informal views. The determinations reached in these no-action letters do not and cannot adjudicate the merits of a company's position with respect to the proposal. Only a court such as a U.S. District Court can decide whether a company is obligated to include shareholder proposals in its proxy materials. Accordingly a discretionary determination not to recommend or take Commission enforcement action, does not preclude a proponent, or any shareholder of a company, from pursuing any rights he or she may have against the company in court, should the management omit the proposal from the company's proxy material.

Re: American International Group, Inc.
Incoming letter dated January 15, 2002

The proposal recommends the board arrange a meeting of stockholders.

There appears to be some basis for your view that AIG may exclude the proposal under rule 14a-8(i)(3) as vague and indefinite. Accordingly, we will not recommend enforcement action to the Commission if AIG omits the proposal from its proxy materials in reliance on rule 14a-8(i)(3). In reaching this position, we have not found it necessary to address the alternative bases for omission upon which AIG relies.

Sincerely,

Keir Devon Gumbs
Special Counsel
